HAPPENINGS

An "at home" reception for friends, held at the Sacred Heart Home marked the 100th birthday of Miss Flora Ann Campbell on Saturday.

Miss Campbell was born in 1862 in Cape Traverse, and has been residing at the Sacred Heart Home for the past 22 years.

The Rev. L. M. Murray of Kensington United Church conducted the regular worship service at Margate United Church on Sunday morning, November 18, and officiated at the sacraments of the Lord's Supper and of Baptism. Baptised at this service were "William Mark,' son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Henderson, and "Donald Brian," son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Mayhew.

Fifty members of the Square Dance Club held their annual dinner meeting at the Royal Canadian Legion Home, Kensington on Tuesday evening. Grace was offered by Mr. Wallace Murray. Members attended from Lot 16, Summerside, Clinton, Norboro, Kelvin and Kensington. Mr. Leo Farrell of Lot 16 was re - elected president. George Bryant was elected vice president, and Ivan Bowness treasurer. The president thanked the members of the Legion Ladies Auxiliary for the meal, and the president, Mrs. Eare MacKay responded.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mill, Malpeque, were visitors to Moncton during the past week when the former attended the lobster festival meetings, and Mrs. Mill was the guest of relatives.

Miss Betty Carol Matheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil A. Matheson, Southport, was the recipient of a scholarship donated by the Royal Edward Chapter of the IODE. The presentation was made by Miss Margaret Irving.

Mrs. W. A. Henry, 19 Goodwill Avenue, Charlottetown, has been named Queen's County division commissioner for the P.E.I. Girl Guide Association.

The Rainbow Club met last Monday afternoon at Sunset Lodge, with Mrs. P. Sherram presiding. She welcomed two new members Mrs. Christopher Gledhill and Mrs. A. Gillespie.

The scripture and prayer was read by Brig. E. Keeping. Plans for the annual Christmas party were discussed and a committee formed to organize this. The party will be held on December 17. The meeting closed with the mizpah Benediction. Mrs. J. A. MacNair was accompanist.

The last pre-Christmas meeting of the Junior Ladies Aid of the Prince Edward Island Hospital was held at the Cundall Home recently.

The president, Mrs. DeBlois, presided and welcomed a new member Mrs. Richard Becker and a guest, Mrs. Norman Dallin.

The meeting approved the expenditure of $50 to go toward nurses' recreation at the YMCA. Mrs. Stead, convener of the League of Mercy Coffee Party, thanked the members for the co-operation in this undertaking.

The dates of April 1, 2 and 3 were announced for the parade of spring fashions. Mrs. Lloyd Cox volunteered to convene the Christmas tree project. A wreath from the aid was placed at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by Mrs. Jain Craig, Mrs. Eric Green, Mrs. Earl Hume and Mrs. Louis Johnston.

MR. AND MRS. KEITH G. HURLY

Young Couple Pledge Vows In Pretty Autumn Ceremony

A pretty fall wedding was solemnized at Central Christian Church in Charlottetown recently, when Annie Laurie MacLean, daughter of Mrs. Anthony Jaworski of Toronto, Ont. and the late Francis MacLean, became the bride of Keith Gray Hurley, son of Mrs. Harold Hurley and the late Harold Hurley of Dear Island, N.B.

Mr. W.O. Weale officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mrs Allison MacRae played the nuptial music and accompanied the guest soloist, Mrs. Douglas McKenney. Baskets of white Gladioli and autumn foliage adorned the altar, and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harry Smith, was attended by Miss Marion Perry. Reid Hurley, brother of the groom, was the bestman and the ushers were Douglas McKenney and John Macdonald.

The bride was wearing a floor -length gown of white peau-de-sole and brocade; three magnified roses marked the start of her chapel train. Her shoulder length veil of white illusion fell from a double crown of pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli. Her pearl necklace was a gift from the groom.

The bridesmaid wore a street-length dress of gold velvet. Her dress had three tiny roses modified at waist. She wore matching accessories and carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

The mother of the bride was unable to attend the ceremony. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Harry Smith, was attired in a sheath dress of navy blue brocade, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the groom chose a nutmeg color suit with loden green and brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow carnat ions.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Maritime Christian College. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. W.O. Weale. Mrs. Russell Perry and Mrs. W.O. Weale presided over the teacups. Miss Leona Weale and Miss Carol Ann Graham served the bridal party. Miss Veona Gallant, Miss Mary Lou MacLeod, Miss Nancy MacKinnon, Miss Rosenea Beck and Miss Marilyn Norris served the guests. Miss Anita Matheson circulated the guest book.

Later the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the eastern United States. For travelling the bride donned a light gold sheath dress and jacket ensemble with a brown marlbou hat, paisley purse and brown accessories. Her corsage was of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurley have since taken up residence at 73 Brackley Point Road, Sherwood.

Prior to the wedding the bride was entertained at a community shower held at Parkdale by Mrs. Earl Foster. Mrs. Wallace Jackson and Mrs. Douglas McKenney also entertained with showers in the brides' honor. A rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Mrs. Preston Beck, with the hostesses being Mrs. Preston Beck and Mrs. Malcolm Beck. A community shower was also held for the couple at Deer Island, N.B.

Out of town guests at the wedding were from Deer Island, N.B. Harvey Station, N.B. Campbello Island, N.B. Sackville, N.B.

MARY HAWORTH

Woman's Treatment Of Toddler Shocks Neighbors

Dear Mary Haworth: I live in a community with many military personnel and near me is a family with two children. The older, a boy, is not yet three years old.

It seems terrible to me (and a few others) that he gets spanked with a paddle — like a fraternity hazing board: fairly thick, long and narrow— if he doesn't mind perfectly.

He is a sweet child, really. His mother has a nasty temper and his father does her bidding mostly. (So many military men of rank seem to have this failing, of letting their wives wear the pants in the family!)

Am I wrong in getting upset over this? I've never let on I'm aware of it, but sometimes I feel like using the paddle on the parents— hard! This form of punishment has been going on for a year that I know of. Please advise me. Sincerely, — W.N.

Dear W.N: I should think there was something wrong with you, if you weren't distressed about the neighbors beating their toddler-age child with a club (for such it is) because he doesn't mind perfectly.

Indeed I am somewhat appalled by your lackadaisical tolerance, in letting such a situation drift for a year, without your campaigning to put a stop to it.

The question, of course, is how to intervene effectively without being mistaken for a malicious busybody. Inasmuch as some "few others" (you say) are mindful of the problem and share your concern, perhaps you and they could get together, to act collectively, in asking suitable authorities what can be done for the hapless child.

Given responsible group support of this kind, you might telephone the nearest Legal Aid Bureau or Family Service Agency or Child Guidance Clinic or Red Cross Home Service Department, or, you might write to the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor— asking for guidance in doing your duty as good neighbors in the circumstances.

The kindest construction one can put on the mother's behavior (as described) is to infer that she is emotionally sick, hence wilfessly hostile and hysterical in response to her children's needs of care.— M.H.

Dear Mary Haworth: This is to correct an error in your column of 7 October, in which you referred an inquiry to this office (Office of the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D.C.)

The word "Information" in the title of this office is sometimes misleading. We do furnish certain information about the Army, clear news releases, etc., but information on the whereabouts of Army personnel should be addressed as follows: The Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D.C. Sincerely, C.V.L., Major Signal Corps, OCI

Dear Sir: Thank you for this precise correction. In a sense I was right, after all. I felt sure (as I told the inquirer) that your office would have the answer on how to go about finding a long-lost Army pal, in the event he is still in service. Now we all have the answer, namely: check with the Adjutant General's office. Thanks again.— M.H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Reflections Of The Sea And A New Way Of Life

With November well along on the past lap of the way, and in this strangest of strange harvests, our farmers today combined a last field of grain, in a far field of Rob's.

Taking advantage of this interval of weather which favors it, they commenced it, after Sunday had traced gentle footsteps along the fields and was gone away... This early approach to the work reminded us of an elder generation of men, gone now from their farms by the Strait, who having observed most respectfully their Sabbaths and its services, put by its garb and retired to rest. But rose in the wee sma' hours of Monday, donned their working apparel, and after a bite of breakfast, they hitched horses to farm-carts, and were off post haste to harvest the treasure of seeweed which was coming in— or had recently been left by the tide, on the shore.

Had they, we have wondered, as they walked or rode to their churches allowed a thought of this secular item to intrude among better things? Would they presumpe- dare- even, to note the direction of the wind then, which clearly pointed out to them, a rich haul in the offing? Would they mention it to their wives? If so, it would certainly not be mentioned in the presence of the children to lead their Sabbath thoughts astray.

We can hear yet the clatter of the seaweed-carts, in the lane, or on a road leading shoreward, in the twilight, or moonlit Monday morning.

Have you ever seen a harvest of seaweed lie deep and dark and wide on an incoming tide? And stayed to watch the waves lap gently, or, it might be wildly, against the sands? And at length ebb and retreat, leaving this largess of the sea to be spread sooner or later, in some form of fertilizer on the fields? And seen the farmers stake their claims to it, marking the boundaries clearly between mine and thine? We have. And seen them fill the carts that lumbered then up the cuttings in the red cliffs, to empty quickly against a heap building there. And been pleased when the harvest was great.

And enjoyed the clear sea-tang of the wind. And if it were summer, seen the sun reachout to the passing fishing -boats; heard the gulls cries mingle with the sound of the waves, and watched the swallows excursion from the cliffs. That was a harvest of the night, or dawning, or day. It came from the sea.

Today's was of the land. It stands unfinished— to be completed maybe tomorrow. And what of Papa Starling, this Monday?

He was turning the key in the fairy-like lock of their dwelling, when we came nearby this morning. Beside him she watched, rubbing a mist from her glasses. Dressed for the trip, they were: she chic in "a little black number" and crowned by a modish chapeau. It was black too, but of irridescent feathers, which shone in the brittle sunslight.

He turned, and tucked his cap beneath his arm.

"Well, Missis" he smiled, "the time has come' the Walrus said—" yes, to talk of..."

"...the parting" she said solemnly.

"That's right, Mama!" he encouraged her, "and sunny climes ahead... Oh, I was putting the key in my pocket. But you will keep it for us?"

"Yes. It will be in the old clock on the mantel" we said.

"Than, it's 'Cherrio' until we see you-all..." he began.

"... in... the Spring" she finished, with obvious emotion.

"You have your purse, Mama? And the 'Papers' and all? Then" he smiled down at her, and crooked an arm suggestively, "we must literally, fly away!"

As presently this day will go, up and over the late moon and away.

Until tomorrow— Diary — Good-night.

St. Elizabeth's Aid Society Considers Orphanage Plans

A largely attended meeting of the St. Elizabeth's Aid Society was held on Wednesday evening, November 21 at St. Vincent's Orphanage. The meeting was preceded by the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, given by the chaplain, Rev. George MacDonald.

Mrs. F. A. Coyle president, chaired the meeting, which was opened with a prayer by the Superior, Sister Mary of Fatima.

Following reports by Mrs. E. J. Wynne and Mrs. A. J. Gormley, the treasurer, Mrs. Ella Connolly gave her report. After the routine business was dealt with members discussed future plans for St. Vincent's Orphanage and the part the St. Elizabeth's Aid Society will play in them.

It was decided to discuss this matter further after the next meeting, which will be held in late January or early February. It was also decided that a group of members would visit the orphanage next week to give the sisters some much needed, practical help.

Sister Mary of Fatima gave a interesting talk on the work being done at the orphanage and she voiced appreciation of the work of the St. Elizabeth's Aid Society over the years.

Mrs. Coyle expressed the aid's sympathy to the family of the late Mrs. Ernest McCarey, whose death occurred recently. Mrs. McCarey was at one time a very active member of the society. Members also expressed regret over the fact that Mrs. L. B. MacMillan, a charter member of the society, was a patient in the hospital.

Mrs. Coyle announced that a showing of films would be held at the National Film Board theatre on Friday afternoon, December 7 at 3.30 p.m.

Members were very pleased to welcome Mrs. M. McNeley back into the society, after an absence of six years, when she was residing in Calgary, Alta. A special guest at the meeting was Mrs. Ed Foley of Summerside, who later entertained with piano music, which was enjoyed by the members.

After adjournment of the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the Sisters, assisted by the older children. A distribution of small gifts to the Sisters and children took place and a sing-song with the Queen concluded the evening.

Among the Sisters attending the meeting were Sister Mary Catherine, Sister Alphonsus, Sister Lucia Ann and Sister Rosanna.

Presbyterian Ladies Aid Holds Meeting

Alberton Presbyterian Ladies' Aid held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Wilkie with the president, Mrs. Myrl Matthews, conducting the business.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. Basil Matthews. Plans were made for the children's Christmas concert to be held in the church hall December 14.

On the second Sunday in December white gifts will be brought to the church.

Plans for the annual Christmas sale were finalized.

It was decided to omit a December meeting. The January one will be held at a place to be announced later. Worship will be led by Mrs. Harold Horne.

CONSERVATIVELY SPEAKING

By ISLANDER

Greetings and stuff like that! You'll remember me without too much trouble. Just get an election started on P.E.I. and around they come and say, "Islander, get your pen limbered up. There's work to do." So to work I go.

There's a lot of talk around about how sudden the election was called. This is to be expected from people who get caught off guard. Personally I wasn't surprised. To me it made a lot of sense. And it will to you too before long. There's things cooking and plenty of them. Like all of you I was listening on Friday night when Premier Walter Shaw went on television to tell his story. Now there's no secret as to why an election was called. If you want a little tip, here's one: The things that are brewing right now are everybody's business and they mean some big changes in ways of doing things. And no right-thinking fellow makes big changes—even if they are designed to give the Island the biggest boost it ever got—without calling in the people that really count—the people of the province.

Last Wednesday I went to Summerside and while there an old pal of mine—he's a staunch Liberal—came charging down the street and I stopped him. I said, "Joe, why aren't you at the big Liberal get-together?" and he said, "I tried to go but I got in the wrong place". Later I found out he didn't get in the wrong place at all. What happened was he got into the big Liberal pow-wow and he started to listen. He stood all he could of it and then got up and left. He explained it to me like this "I was sitting and all of a sudden I saw I was in the wrong place. They were talking about hospital premiums and new freezing plants and homes for the aged. How I got into a Conservative rally by mistake I'll never know." Later I was listening to Alec Matheson on the radio and I saw what Joe meant The Liberals have taken the Conservative program lock, stock and barrel. I don't get upset over that. That's human. That's what anybody does who hasn't got a platform of his own.

Has anybody said to you lately, "There's no issue in this election?" I've heard that around some. There's not too many elections in this day and age in which there's no issues. And this one's no exception. The biggest question in the world is—"Who's going to run the peoples' business?" That's the issue in every election. And anybody who says there are no issues is just kidding himself. This election has a stake for everyone who wants good care for retarded children or who wants to see more jobs for all kinds of people. There's a real issue for all the folks that want our youngsters to grow up and stay right here. There's even an issue for all the people who want more schooling for their kids and who want them to stay in bettie schools longer. I'm starting to make a list of all the things you'll be voting for on December 10th. It looks like a long list to me Anybody who tells you there's nothing at stake is trying to fool you. Don't fall for it. You do what I'm doin'—make a list of th things you've gained in the last three years. Then just say t the guy who tells you there is no issues, "Maybe there aren' any for you. For me there is plenty. I'm going to vote for Walte Shaw and his boys because I want to see a good future for thi Island. Maybe if we all do this our grandkids will be stayin here instead of wanderin' off to Toronto or the States."
