How Can I!!!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I press the seams in a velvet dress?

A. Place a damp cloth over a hot iron and draw the creased part of the velvet across the edge of the iron and on top of the damp cloth. This is a good way to press open seams on a velvet dress.

Q. How can I clean a greasy kitchen sink?

A. Just sprinkle the sink generously with a good cleansing powder, then wipe it off with a newspaper or soft paper. Grease will not then be washed down the drain pipe.

Q. How can I soften hardened blue?

A. If your blue dries up, add hot vinegar, drop by drop, until it becomes liquid again. The vinegar should be at boiling point.

Furniture

To polish highly finished furniture, make a suds of pure castile soap, and with a soft sponge or cloth, go over a small surface, rubbing it perfectly dry with a soft-silk handkerchief before wetting another portion.

Custard

When baking custard, place the dish in a pan of hot water in the oven. This keeps the temperature even and below the boiling point, thus preventing the custard from becoming watery.

Thin Fabrics About one teaspoon of borax added to one quart of water makes an excellent solution for stiffening thin fabrics and fine laces.

Bridal Party In Charlottetown

Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. S. Callbeck

Pale pink chrysanthemums and shaded blue delphinium in tall brass vases were on the altar of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Malden, Mass., for the marriage on September 27 of Joan F. Matheson only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Eric Matheson, Melrose, formerly of Malden and James Donald Sinclair Callbeck, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Callbeck, Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

Rev. Ernest D. Sillers performed the double ring ceremony. Robert K. Love was organist and the following selections were sung by a group of St. Paul's choir boys: "Oh Lord Most Holy," "The Lord's My Shepherd," "Brother James Air," and "The Lord's Prayer." Malotte, and following the benediction, "May the Grace of Christ Our Savior" and "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling."

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period gown of chantilly lace over blush satin, fashioned with portrait neckline with a lace bertha, her chapel-length veil of imported French illusion was caught to a Victorian cap of matching lace and satin and her bouquet was of rapturous roses forget-me-nots and stephanotis.

Miss Joan Woodard of Malden was maid of honor. Mrs. Shirley Simpson of Summerside, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Their gowns were Dior blue taffeta, waltz length. Their headresses were matching half veils caught in back with tiny flowers and long streamers of rose mauve velvet ribbon. They carried sheaves of deep rose carnations, mauve asters and pale blue delphinium.

Miss Louise Stevenson, cousin of the bride, and Miss Paula Caffrey, both of Malden, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns like the honor attendants and their veils were tied with royal blue velvet ribbons. They carried pale pink carnations with deepest blue delphinium.

Miss Jane Isobel Coleman of Newton was flower girl. She wore shell pink taffeta with rosegay and hair wreath of pinocchio roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Matheson, mother of the bride, wore horizon blue taffeta with pearl and rhinestone trimming and bronze hat and accessories. Her corsage was of Nassua roses.

Miss Dorothy Callbeck, sister of the groom wore rose beige and her corsage was of yellow roses.

Mr. Callbeck had as best man his brother, G. Wendall Callbeck of Hamilton, Ontario. Ushers were Gardner Dalzell of Montreal, P.Q. Charman Cousins, of Halifax, N.S. and Norman G. Snyder of Malden.

Pourers during the reception and tea which followed in the parish house were Mrs. C. E. Corney, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Russell F. Sullivan of Melrose, Mrs. Norman G. Snyder was in charge of the guest book. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. William T. Matheson of Summerside, P.E.I., grandparents of the bride, who in a few days are observing their fifth wedding anniversary.

The bride is a graduate of Malden High and the Kathleen Dell school. The groom graduated from Prince of Wales College and Acadia University in Canada.

The bride's travelling costume was a velvet redingote of geranium pink worn over a dress of ivory faille with matching hat of velvet, her corsage was of pink roses and stephanotis.

Following a honeymoon in Kentucky and other Southern States, Mr. and Mrs. Callbeck will reside in Valleyfield, Quebec.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

"I suppose, Ellen, I can be thankful that I am always kept busy" a youngish farmwife said with a rueful chuckle this evening when at the mention of the approach of another Thanksgiving Day we took some inventory of our blessings. "At least, it doesn't leave me with any time for self-pity."

"Fat says to be busy is one of life's best blessings—to have a work that needs one and the strength to do it," we smiled.

"It's all very well for Fat to have a philosophy like that," she laughed "and he with neither chick nor child! Would he still feel the same if he had a half-dozen to do for as I have? To say nothing of the planning that goes with it all. Dear me! I scarcely get them dressed for the summer when it's time to start all over again for the winter!"

"But don't you see? That is your biggest and best blessing—to have them, and they to have you!" we reminded her.

"Oh, I know that Ellen" she said soberly. "Don't think for a moment that at heart I'm not grateful for everything, so much indeed that I can't bear the

Modern Etiquette

By Roberts Lee

Q. If a man is accompanying a girl who is driving her own car, should he make any offer to do the driving?

A. It would be better not. Some women are sensitive about their driving and might think such an offer reflects on their ability to drive. Of course, if the woman suggests that the man drive, then he may accept.

Q. Should a bride write a note of thanks to someone who has given her a check as a gift, just as she does for other presents?

A. Most certainly, and, if possible, she should tell the donor what she is going to do with the money.

Q. Is it really considered good form to extend any and all kinds of invitations over the telephone?

A. One may use the telephone for almost any invitation, with the exception of formal ones.

Morning Smile

Two farmers were dickering over the sale of a bull. "I think your price is pretty high," remarked the would-be buyer. "Is the critter pedigreed?"

"Is he pedigreed?" the owner fairly snorted. "You ask if he's got a pedigree? Why, man, if that bull could talk, he wouldn't even speak to you."

A LETTER TO YOU FROM GREER GARSON!

Dear friends: I would like to tell you about a picture which touched me very deeply. It tells of a town that might be yours—and what might happen there. It's called "Scandal at Scourie" and it's the story of a spirited woman who fights spiteful, small-minded people for the right to adopt a child whose faith is different from her own. She's proud and fiery and before she's through, the town's hisses have turned into hurrahs and their hate to love. It was a pleasure and a privilege to be in this wonderful role with such inspiring players as Walter Pidgeon and charming Donna Corcoran. It's entertainment that's different and real and I sincerely hope you like it. Greer Garson.

Vacillating Affairs

Girl, Confused By Two Romances, Not Sure Which Man She Prefers

DEAR MISS DIX: Bert and I went steady for three years, though we had several breakups during that time. Three months ago, by mutual agreement, we parted to see if we were really in love. I began going out with Ray and Bert went with other girls. Then Bert came around one night, said he knew I was the one he loved, and asked me to marry him. We went together for a while and though I was sure I loved Bert, I missed Ray. I broke off with Bert again, am now going with Ray and wish I were back again with Bert. Do you think I have messed my life up completely, or would Bert go with me again if I wrote and told him how I felt? I am so mixed up, but hope you can unravel the problem for me. L. T.

ANSWER: Surely you realize yourself that it's always the man you aren't going with that holds the big attraction for you. When you're going with Bert it's Ray you hanker after, and vice versa. No one in the world can overcome the indecision for you. You must settle down to a session of fact-finding, to discover where your heart really belongs. It's very unfair to Bert to keep beckoning him on, then throwing him aside, when you know he loves you. My conclusion is that neither boy has a permanent hold on your heart, but that some third young man will step into the picture with a charm that will leave absolutely no doubt in your mind. Vacillating affections, such as yours, have very dangerous implications. If you married one of these two lads, you'd spend the rest of your life wondering whether you made the right choice and yearning for the rejected suitor. My advice would be to drop both boys for a while and circulate among a new group.

DEAR MISS DIX: My children are widely separated in age, my
