Director Informs Committee

TORONTO (CP)—Use of the hallucinatory drug LSD is "not nearly as serious" in Ontario as it is in various parts of the United States, the legislature's committee on government commissions was told Wednesday.

H. D. Archibald, executive director of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, told the committee "we don't know much about the illicit use of LSD."

"All we know at the moment is what we read in the papers," asked whether the foundation was increasing its attempts to educate children about alcoholism by providing information to teachers for school instruction.

The foundation said it already has under way such a program and that it hopes it will be expanded by offering courses for teachers about alcoholism that can be translated into school instruction.

Alberta's buildings were surveyed during a pilot project in 1964 and Saskatchewan won't be covered until 1967. The other provinces will be done this summer, although Ontario and Quebec are not likely to be completed until 1967.

What the surveyors will look for: The physical dimensions of all buildings of 1,000 square feet of floor space or more, which offer a "protection factor of 10 or more"; and structural information such as construction materials, glassed areas, water, sewage, electrical, heating and ventilation facilities.

The computer tells us how many people could be accommodated in a certain building, or on a floor of a certain building, and what protection against radiation the structure would provide as is—and what work must be done to improve and increase that protection," says Mr. Bailey.

Out of the mountain of statistics the emergency planning organization hopes to be able to recommend certain building changes, mainly of an improvised nature, that could be made should the danger of a nuclear war seem imminent.

"It's a little like having the sandbags ready in case of a flood—even if they're never needed."

One aspect of provincial and municipal co-operation has been to publicize the project so building owners can aid the young surveyors when they come knocking.

"Our target is to complete the project by the end of 1967," says Mr. Bailey.

Canada is divided into 34 "emergency government zones," and using these geographical designations, an area survey officer will lead the surveyors into the field. Staff recruitment, under the civil service commission, has been under way for three years.

Britain Sends Special Group

LONDON (AP)—The British government is sending a special emissary to Ottawa and Washington to discuss the future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the possibility of moving its political and military headquarters to London.

A government announcement said George Thomson, No. 3 man at the foreign office, will be in Washington May 15 and will go to Ottawa two days later for talks with the Canadians.

Thomson has been sounding out European leaders in Strasbourg, France, on the question of moving both the NATO ministerial council and military headquarters from Paris to London. He discussed this in Brussels Wednesday with the Belgian government informants said, and is flying to Paris tonight.

President de Gaulle has ordered NATO's military installations, including Canadian and American bases, to leave France and served notice that he is withdrawing all French forces from the NATO military setup.

He said, however, that France remains faithful to the Atlantic alliance although opposed to its integrated military concept. For that reason he wants the council, the alliance's political body, to remain in Paris.

WILL CHECK CLAIM
 WARSAW (AP)—The United States has told Poland it will investigate charges that a Polish ship was damaged in a U.S. air raid against North Viet Nam last month, an American embassy spokesman said Thursday.

April 25, the Polish government said it reserved the right to claim compensation for damages which the Poles said the freighter Beniowski suffered April 19 at a port near Haiphong.

Apparently responded under the compulsion of our forcing bids. With excess values he presumably would have shown more signs of life. Furthermore, we have already bid our hand to the hit and have nothing further to add.

Another way of approaching the problem is to apply the general principle that it takes two opening bids, or their equivalent, to make a game. Partner has a minimum opening bid and we have less than an opening bid, so the total adds up to less than game.

3. Four hearts. Game is certain, of course, despite partner's signoffs. However, there is still a chance for a slam, and the jump to four hearts is made to encourage partner to go on.

4. Three hearts. It is still not clear whether the best contract is in hearts, notrump or clubs. The best way of representing the shortage of diamonds is by showing heart support on top of the two previous suit bids. North will then be in a position to select the proper contract.

Ordinarily, Q-x is not regarded as adequate support for partner's rebid suit, since the repetition of the suit may be based on five-card length. However, since there is a distinct possibility in this case that North has a six-card suit, a trial raise to three hearts (forcing) is perfectly proper.

1. Three spades. The purpose of this bid is to identify the 6-5 distribution. Since North failed to support spades previously, he cannot possibly construe the three spade bid as showing a four-card suit. Hence, North will know we have five spades.

At the same time, North will realize that the clubs are at least six long, since we would have named the spades first had the suits been equal in length. This is in line with the general principle that the higher-ranking of two equally long suits is bid first.

2. Pass. The indications are that this is not a game-going hand. North opened the bidding, all right, but since then has twice indicated minimum values. The two heart rebid showed limited values and the two notrump bid was also of a minimum nature. In each case North apparently responded under the compulsion of our forcing bids. With excess values he presumably would have shown more signs of life. Furthermore, we have already bid our hand to the hit and have nothing further to add.
