TRICKS OF THE TRADE.

GREAT THINGS DONE IN WAR WITHOUT BLOODSHED.

Peculiar Stratagems Which Have Been Successful in Befooling the Enemy—Clever Artifices to Gain Advantages in The Field—Ruses in War.

It may be interesting in view of the war now raging between China and Japan to show a few of the "tricks of the trade"; in other words, a few of the peculiar strategems which have been successful from time to time in past wars.

Pampeluna was lost to the Spaniards in a curious way. The French troops stationed in the district were all allowed to enter the town occasionally for their provisions, and this foraging party gradually increased in number. One day, on arriving in town, they started snowballing each other, and as the excitement increased each soldier from the outside kept joining in the battle. Comrades armed rushed in apparently to share the sport; but when a sufficient number of the French soldiers had been introduced, the guards at the gates were seized, and the remainder of the army entered the town to complete the conquest.

About the same time the French gained access to San Sebastian by another clever artifice. The general commanding the French soldiers obtained permission from the Spanish commander to send the sick of his army into San Sebastian. He seems to have had a large number of men sick and in need of sea air, for, on receiving permission, he sent upwards of 2,000 to the hospitals.

They were bandaged in every conceivable way, and some had their arms supported by slings. The Spainards afforded every accommodation, and ultimately allowed about 500 to be placed in the citadel. Having been thus far successful, it only remained for these, presumably, poor, dying, cripples, but otherwise healthy soldiers, to leave the hospitals one morning, before daylight, and take possession of the fortifications—and this they did before the bewildered garrison realized that the soldiers that they had so carefully tended were not friends, but enemies.

The Americans once played a neat trick upon an English fleet. The ships in question were threatening a part of the American coast, when it was rumored that a man had discovered a combustible which could be easily transmitted to the fleet and ignited, and which would produce terrible results. Of course, the information was conveyed to the British commander and, no doubt, he was sadly disturbed in consequence. At any rate, one day several barrels were set afloat in the direction of the vessels, followed by a man with a complicated arrangement in a boat. On nearing their destination one of them exploded, whereupon the fleet shipped anchor and departed in great haste. The inventor had done his utmost, however, for the remaining barrels were harmless.

It is said that once when the French made a descent on the coast of Wales, they were held in check for some time by a rather peculiar strategem. The women, who then generally wore long red cloaks, were collected and marched among the hills in full view of the invaders, and as they kept appearing in different points, it gave the idea that there was a considerable number of soldiers near at hand. The French were somewhat afraid of attacking, and as a sufficient force was soon collected to repel them, they took to their ships in a hurry.

In another case a besieged city, short of provisions, was on the point of surrendering, as they found it impossible to convey a message outside for help. In these straits a young man volunteered to pass the enemy and if possible obtain assistance. To do this he left the city with a bridle in his hand, and, mixing with the invaders, asked if any one of them had seen his horse. In this way he got through their ranks and was the means of getting the city delivered.

A Moorish General on one occasion rallied his troops in a very simple manner. They were begining to retreat when he sat down in a field, declaring that he would there wait for death, seeing that he was forsaken by his troops. They were ashamed of their conduct, and returning, ultimately gained the victory.—Columbus Press.

A Burmese Wife's Strategy.

If a Burmese wife and husband quarrel and determine to separate, the wife, who always does all the marketing, goes out and buys two little candles of equal length, which are made especially for this use. She brings them home. She and her husband sit down on the floor, place the candles between them, and light them simultaneously. One candle stands for him, the other for her. The one whose candle burns out first rises and goes out of the house forever, with nothing but what he or she may have on. The other takes all the property. This looks fair enough on the face of it, but it often happens that the wife on her way home with the candles takes a tiny scraping from the bottom of one of them. A very little will be enough. If the husband and the house are empty of pretty much everything but children, she takes the shortened candle and walks out free and content. But if the house is well furnished, and the husband's possessions are considerable, he gets the short candle and does the walking.

You Will Reap.

You may have a little notion
That the world is only chance,
That the harvest don't depend upon
The grain a fellow plants,
But there's an old-time saying,
By all nations it is known,
That when comes the time of harvest
You will reap as you have sown.

Every brush you give your counter
Is just so much stock in trade;
Every counter you have painted
Is a customer you've made.
Every time your name is printed
Is a dollar laid away,
Every thought you give your business
Hastens in a better day.

Then never mind the reaping,
If the sowing has been right,
For the laws of nature govern,
And she'll always treat you white.
Don't you be afraid of business,
Open out and make a show,
For the laws of nature govern,
And you'll reap just what you sow.
—Printer's Ink.

A man strolled in to church and the verger followed him up and, tapping him on the shoulder and pointing to a small cur that had followed him to the sacred edifice, said: "Dogs are not admitted." "That's not my dog," replied the visitor. "But he follows you." "Well, so do you." The verger growled and removed the dog with unnecessary violence.—Comic Cuts.

PECULIAR in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses great curative value. You should TRY IT.

THE KISS OF CHILDREN.

No thought or sense unsatisfied
The kiss of children brings,
No after taste of bitter things,
No tearful prayer for peace denied,
No shadow of remorse's wings,
No sense of fallen worth and pride—
But from their lips contentment springs.

The kiss of children wakes
The hope of endless better things.
It stirs our hearts, till memory sings
Of our lost innocence and takes
Us by the hand—that childlike clings
To hers—along her paths, and makes
Us nobler for the truth that breaks
The dream the kiss of children brings.
—Charles G. Rogers, in N. E. Magazine.

TOO SLOW FOR THE DOG.

A Drummer's Story About Souther Railway Speed.

There is a fallacy in the North that Southern trains are lamentably slow as regards speed. A New York drummer told a story to a newspaper man the other day in which this idea was illustrated.

"I heard of a drummer," said he, "who got on the train at Atlanta to go to New Orleans. He had a dog that he was very fond of, but the conductor wouldn't let him carry it into the coach.

"'I suppose you'll let me tie him on to the rear coach, then,' said the drummer.

"'Oh, yes,' said the conductor, derisively, 'do that by all means; but,' he added 'I shouldn't guarantee that you'd have much dog by the time we got started.'

"'Oh, that's all right; I'm willing to risk that,' he said, and he tied his prized canine to the rear coach. The conductor spoke to the engineer about it, and it was agreed that the train should do some of the swiftest running of its history. It fairly flew until the first station was reached. Then the conductor came around with a smile to where the drummer was sitting and asked about the dog.

"'Oh, he's all right,' said the drummer, carelessly, and continued reading. The conductor went back and saw that the animal was trotting along behind without effort, the rope hanging slackly. He gave the cue to the engineer, and some magnificent running was the result. A few miles further down the conductor came around to the drummer and said: "'Where's your doggie now?' 'He's keeping up,' said the drummer. The two walked back to the rear end, but there was no dog. The rope was trailing along behind. The conductor smiled triumphantly. The drummer laughed easily.

"'By jove, he's gnawed his rope and gone on ahead.' And sure enough it was true. When the junction was reached there sat the dog patiently waiting for his master."

This is the way some drummers while away the hours.—Atlanta Constitution.

About Rain Drops.

There are certain differences in the rains which fall at different seasons of the year which are interesting to study. Of course, to enter deeply into the subject would take too long and involve too many explanations. But a curious little fact about the size of rain drops may be easily understood by any reader.

The height of clouds above the earth is always greater in summer time in temperate latitudes and in tropical countries. And it is least in the polar regions and in the winter of the temperate zone.

Raindrops always increase in size as they fall. This is occasioned by the accumulation of moisture from the air through which they fall. And this being so, it is evident that their size will depend upon the height of the clouds from which they descend, as well as the rapidity of condensation. Hence, we find that tropical rains and summer showers fall in large, heavy drops, while the fine, drizzling rains, mists and fogs are characteristic of cold latitudes.

Good House Plant.

Although the heliotrope is a tender plant, extremely sensitive to cold, it is one of the best plants for cultivation indoors. It seems to have few diseases, and is usually free from insect enemies, while with abundant water and sunshine and sufficient artificial heat it will bloom all winter long year after year, and is so tenacious of life that when cut down to a mere stick it quickly shoots forth luxuriant new wood. In addition to all this, the more the plant is pruned the more luxuriantly it blossoms. The blossoms should be cut with a considerable length of the new wood upon which they grow, and if at once fully immersed in water and then placed in a deep, well-filled vase they remain fresh and odorous for many days. The plant is a little difficult for amateurs to propagate from cuttings, though with plenty of water the sun and some bottom heat the young cuttings quickly root and prosper.

Not Proud of His Work.

Napoleon was a great soldier, but he could not spell. His handwriting was also so bad as to give rise to the rumor that he used undecipherable characters to conceal the fact that he, the master of Europe, could not master French orthography.

In the early days of the Empire a man of modest aspect presented himself before the Emperor.

"Who are you?" asked the Emperor.

"Sire, I had the honor at Brienne for fifteen months to give writing lessons to your majesty."

"You turned out a nice pupil!" said the Emperor, with vivacity. "I congratulate you on your success!" Nevertheless, he conferred a pension upon his old master.

To Whiten the Neck and Arms.

To whiten the neck and arms the following treatment is highly recommended. First wash in as hot water as possible, drying the skin very thoroughly afterward. Then apply: Powdered borax, one drachm; glycerine, half an ounce; eight ounces elderflower water, two drachms simple tincture of benzoin, hazeline, two drachms. Rub this mixture on at night and do the arms and neck up in soft linen until morning.

Produce of Fractions of a Penny.

The old lesson as to "little drops of water, little grains of sand" making the universe has had one more exemplification. It is the custom of the Bank of England not to pay fractions of a penny. In the case of dividends on government stock these fractions have in the course of years amounted to one hundred and forty thousand pounds, which amount, it is stated, was a few years ago paid over to the chancellor of the exchequer.

This Was a Poser.

Little Margaret was going to a children's party the other day and her mother was telling her some little politeness to be observed.

"And when you come away," she said, "Go up to your little hostess and thank her for giving you a pleasant time."

"But, mamma," objected the small girl, "suppose I don't have a pleasant time; what must I say then?"—N. Y. Times.

Master—Pat, I have a suspicion that either you or I was drunk last night.

Pat—Give a suspicion an that koind me self, sor.

Master—Well, Pat, you rascal which of us was it?

Pat—Well, sor, oi'll not be castin' any reflection, but oi do be sayin' that oi invied yez.

Minister—And so you say your little prayer every night before you go to bed? That's right. And now tell me, why do you do that?

Little Ethel—Because mamma says she'll spank me if I don't.

THE DRESS OF MEN.

Some of the Absurdities of the Present Day.

Among the many definitions of man is one which defines him as the only animal that wears clothes. Now, this would be correct, if we added the word vertebrate; for several of the lower animals do wear clothes, and wear them, too, with a sense of their fitness and sensible use that puts the bimanous vertebrate to shame. Among these animals who have solved the problem of rational dress are the hermit crab, the larva of the caddis and certain caterpillars. These clothes are rational in so far as they are fitting for whatever the wearers are doing (of course, the problem is simplified when the day's occupation consists of little else than eating and sleeping; but how far below these creatures in our use of dress are we!

The lungs, as far as anatomy goes, are exposed at the back almost more than at the front. Yet man's clothing overlooks this fact. A man's shirt is at least three times thicker in front than at the back; his waistcoat is always a mere lining at the back, and if, as the majority of men do, he does not button his coat, his back is sure to be much exposed. Take, again, the change from morning to night. During the day a man goes about with thick woolen clothes, thick socks, thick boots or shoes, with spats. At night he puts on very thin clothes, a waistcoat which is no protection whatever, thin shoes, silk socks, without any spats, and sallies forth to dine, after which, perhaps, a dance or a theatre. When arrived he congratulates himself that he is not as those poor silly women, who go about with the upper part of their chests bare. We are certain, however, that men catch cold from wearing evening dress far more than women do, and it behooves all who go out in the evening to keep the legs and feet warm, as well as the upper part of the body, and to wear an extra vest, to make up for the practical disappearance of the waistcoat.

Screens for the House.

Tall frames with wire screens are coming more and more into use in households where there are small children. Placed around the stove or in front of a fire, they furnish special immunity against accidents, a frequent occurrence where great care is not taken. Around the baby's tub it protects him from draughts while getting a bath—around his crib it has many uses, a barrier against draughts, excessive sunlight and changing objects, etc. It can be utilized to form an enclosure making a small play-house for children from which they cannot escape nor be unreasonably disturbed. It can also be utilized for various other purposes not, however, germane to the uses for which it was originally intended, and which it would not be practicable to enumerate here.

Merely a suggestion. Why pay a quarter for three cigars when you can get five "Something Goods" for the same money?—and they are equal to any ten center. We don't want you to take our word for it either, we only ask you to buy a quarter's worth and judge for yourself.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

TOOTHACHE!

This is addressed to all those who are suffering from Toothache, or who may require treatment of any kind at the hands of a Dentist. I make the very best Teeth, guaranteed, for $5 a set. If not satisfactory, money refunded. Gold and Silver Fillings a specialty. The following letter from Dr Robertson, of Crapaud, as regards the PAINLESS EXTRACTION of Teeth, speaks for itself:—

To J E McDonald, D D S, Summerside, P E

Dear Doctor,—I am so well pleased with the work you have done for me, that I will take it as a special favor if you will give publicity to this letter. I positively assert that after an experience extending over twenty-two years under the hands of many dentists, you are the only one who ever extracted a tooth for me ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT PAIN. The TEN teeth you removed for me at one sitting did not hurt a particle, as Mr James Dawson of Tryon, who was present at the operation, heard me testify. The man who invented your method should be knighted.

I am yours, gratefully,
H. W. ROBERTSON, M. D.

Dairymen, Attention

Of the Cheese and Butter Factories in operation in 1894, we furnished, to the satisfaction of all concerned, the necessary apparatus for the following:—Winsloe, Hampton, Tryon, Crapaud, Grand River, Dunk River, Mount Stewart, and Vernon River Bridge.

In the summer of 1894 we made nine Cheese Vats (each holding from 650 to 700 gallons of milk), and two Butter Vats (each averaging 400 gallons of milk); no complaints were made—satisfaction given.

From our large experience in the past we are now better than ever prepared to meet the wants of Dairymen. We guarantee satisfaction, and respectfully solicit the patronage of those who are contemplating the erection of Cheese or Butter Ftories.

Our make of Vats is superior to all others, and our fifteen and twenty gallon Cans are the best and cheapest in the pro. vin e.

Terms to suit puchasers.
