panies now prospecting in coastal waters may find petroleum deposits raises the question of whether Ottawa or the provinces would collect the royalties.

Nova Scotia contends that since it already collects royalties on coal from submarine mines a legal precedent has been established.

The Atlantic premiers pronounced the conference as a whole a satisfactory one. Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island was happy at the prospect that a special federal-provincial conference will be held in Charlottetown Sept. 1 - 2, about a month before Queen Elizabeth visits the island for Confederation centennial celebrations.

"They all decided to come down just for the event," he said. "It'll be a big time."

Premier Smallwood called it "a very good conference." Mr. Stanfield said it had "served a very useful purpose."

The Nova Scotia premiers said his government will give full co-operation to the proposal for the tax study committee. "We will co-operate with all concerned in establishing it and making it work."

Blood Donor Clinics Are Lagging Slightly

Charlottetown was 40 donors short at the end of the first two days of the spring sessions of the Red Cross blood donor clinics being held at Zion Church Hall, although there was a splendid turnout during both the morning and evening hours.

The morning's objective of 120 was exactly reached, but the evening quota of 300 ended up being 14 short. This, added to the deficit of 22 from the previous day, accounted for the overall shortage of 40.

Gilbert Gaudet, chairman of the Red Cross blood donor committee at Prince of Wales College, had members of his committee on hand at all sessions to check on the attendance of college students for the competition which is in "full swing" between the girls and the boys.

The girls are making every effort to come out "on top" this time as they like the prospects of having the boys as their "slaves for a day" which is the penalty being meted out to the "losers".

Several Red Cross "Volunteens' in their smart red and white checked aprons, were among the helpers drawn from Queen Charlotte, Birchwood and Notre Dame High School. Red Cross councils, who attracted favorable comment as they went about their various duties.

Red Cross home nursing graduates, who have taken the required number of hospital experience hours, assisted the nurses who look after the rest beds.

Mrs. Percy Cameron, and the members of Zion Women's Auxiliary again looked after the preparation of the refreshments for the donors who were served by representatives of the Zonta Club and of the Baptist Ladies' Aid.

In commenting on the results to date, Evening Archer, chairmon of the Charlottetown Red Cross blood donor committee said he feels confident there will be an "all out" response at today's concluding sessions to put Charlottetown "Over the top" once more in this important project.

efforts will be to acquaint the public with the need for a safety organization. "The aim," she said, "is to create a safety organization composed of local people." Referring to the number of engagements she will have with women's groups, Mrs. Gilstorf said "we find that if the women can give voluntarily of their time to promote safety, the men can give financially." She added that the formation of a safety council and its work would involve fund raising in the province.

"One of the things we would like to see," she said, "is a program of driver education in all secondary schools. It is hoped that such a program would be the outcome of the formation of a safety council."

Not only is highway safety promoted by the council, said Mrs. Gilstorf, but safety in the home, on the farm, in recreation and water as well.

"Home training in safety is important," she said, "and the council would promote such a program."

HEAVY SCHEDULE

Mrs. Gilstorf has a heavy schedule to follow during her stay in the province. Today she will tour the city and this afternoon will speak at the Charlottetown Golf Club to a meeting of representatives of University Women's Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, I.O.D.E., and the city hospital nurses' sorority. Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Gilstorf will go to the Marshfield Women's Institute Hall to address a meeting of institute members from Marshfield, Covehead, York and Carleton.

Monday, Mrs. Gilstorf will be in Summerside and that afternoon will meet with representatives of several women's organizations.

Tuesday evening, there will be a reception and dinner at the Charlottetown Legion Home where Mrs. Gilstorf will meet with government representatives, corporation fleet owners and transport fleet operators. Mrs. Gilstorf leaves for Halifax Wednesday.

ALLIED YOUTH

more liable to pay off "fifteen years from now" than at the time they are done.

Dr. Skipp was introduced to the group by David M. Boswell provincial director of alcohol studies, and thanked by Supt. A.S. McNeil, "L" Division, RCMP.

CONTROL MANUFACTURERS

Earlier in the day, Rev. Henry Tye, Park Street United Church, suggested that the best solution to the alcohol problem, would be to have nationalization of breweries and distilleries.

He also advocated a national advertising code which would eliminate advertisements giving the impression that the non-drinker is "out of step with what is normal."

He noted that the Canadian Government had adopted four successive policies with regard to the use of liquor: (1) "laissez-faire"; (2) prohibition; (3) government control of amount available to consumer; and (4) control of liquor outlets; and that none of these had been successful in eradicating the problems.

CONVICTIONS UP

Mr. Tye pointed out to the delegates that, in Canada, Court convictions for drunkenness had increased from one for every 293 people in 1901 to one for every 95 people in 1959.

He said that the young people as a group were "inheriting a ready-made problem to be a part of . . . adulthood," and urged that they "know it as thoroughly as any subject in school."

"The greatest mark any one of you can make is to be able to say 'I drink or I do not drink because I have decided. I didn't drift into it'," Mr. Tye concluded.

Following his address, the delegates adjourned to Montgomery Hall for lunch.

SING-SONG HELD

Yesterday afternoon's program included a rousing sing-song, and a short speech by J.A.S. Williams, supervisor of curriculum with the provincial department of education.

Late in the afternoon, delegates formed some ten discussion groups to talk over such subjects as: alcohol in the home, drinking and driving, alcohol and the family, and various aspects of the Allied Youth program.

Last evening's program began at Montgomery Hall where Michael Hennessey, registrar of St. Dunstan's University, was guest speaker at a banquet.

The conference continues today with the program starting at 9 a.m. with speeches by candidates for Provincial Allied Youth offices.

Highlights of the morning will be a question period, in which questions from the floor will be discussed by a panel consisting of: A. Keith Ellinwood, counsellor for alcoholics and youth worker; Eugene MacDonald, director of welfare; Rev. Donald McLennan, Mt. Stewart; Sgt. Eric Tedford, superintendent of traffic safety, RCMP; Dr. Robert Forsythe, medical supervisor of Riverside Hospital; John Read representing youth agencies; and Mr. Boswell.

Mrs. Peabody Explains Her Racial Stand

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Malcolm Peabody said Thursday she deliberately exposed herself to arrest and imprisonment in an overcrowded St. Augustine jail because "all my life, I have been concerned with discrimination and injustice."

The white-haired, 72-year-old mother of Massachusetts Governor Endicott Peabody made this statement from a federal court witness box as three lawyers sought the court's intervention in a city jarred by three years of racial strife.

"I would rather stand up for the constitution of the United States," she declared, "than the ordinances of St. Augustine."

She was brought here in a police car with four other witnesses after spending two nights in a jail jammed beyond its capacity with civil rights demonstrators.

But Mrs. Peabody planned to have her $300 bond posted and leave today.

"Why did you go to St Augustine and why did you go to that motor lodge to be arrested?" asked Tobias Simon, one of three lawyers who have petitioned for Judge Bryan Simpson to take jurisdiction over those in the jails of the oldest city in the United States.

Mrs. Peabody replied: "All my life I have been concerned with discrimination and injustice, and so have my husband and my children. Talking hasn't done any good.

"We decided that the Negroes needed help. When I asked if someone of my age could be useful, they told me yes, so I came."

Soviets Call Party Meeting

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Communist party today called for a meeting of the world's Communists for a final showdown with the Chinese Reds.

A 10,000-word official party statement in Pravda charged that the Chinese Communists were trying to split the world Communist movement.

Publication of the statement signalled the Kremlins resumption of public polemics with Peking and indicated the Soviets had given up any attempt at compromise.

MacArthur's Condition Unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen Douglas MacArthur is conscious but under sedation.

Walter Reed Army Hospital physicians reported Thursday afternoon that there was no change in the 84-year-old general's condition, which they said in the morning was declining.

Brig.-Gen. Henry S. Murphey, hospital commander, said MacArthur's heart, constitution and "his will to live" have helped the old warrior withstand the rigors and complications of three major operations within the last month.
