Teachers Unionization Opposed By U.S. Official

By JEAN MacISAAC
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

In the midst of controversy in educational circles in the United States over the desire of the AFL-CIO to organize teachers, an American educational official said Thursday that he believes the National Education Association can solve the problems of teachers without their resorting to unionization.

Robert Wyatt, president-elect of the National Education Association of the United States, said that it is the position of the association that teachers in public schools should have independent professional status, and not align themselves with any particular segment of the economy.

Mr. Wyatt, in Charlottetown as an observer to the Canadian Teachers Federation annual meeting, is here on a goodwill and learning mission to learn CTF functions and the progress of education in general in Canada. A native of Indianapolis, Ind., he is also executive secretary of the Indiana State Teachers Association.

"The matter will be resolved," he continued, "on the basis of whether or not the association can produce the economic and social status that the teaching profession requires."

NEW YORK STRIKE

When asked about the AFL-CIO success in New York, the NEA president said that New York never had good teachers' organizations. As a result, salaries "slid back" and the financial and political situation in the city and state complicated matters. In a teachers' vote the union was the organization with the largest number of votes, and became the bargaining agent.

The teachers strike that followed alienated many, he said, and "the union is going to have to prove it can produce".

MORE

Mr. Wyatt said he believed not all AFL-CIO leaders had the same attitude to public school teachers, and that in Indiana, the situation was excellent.

PRAYER RULING

A lot of misunderstanding has resulted from the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling that no agency of government can write a prayer and inject it into the schools, he declared.

When New York State had what he described as a "harmless little prayer" for use in schools, protests resulted in the Supreme Court ruling, followed by "blowups" about taking God out of the schools.

"In my opinion, it does not take prayer out of the schools," he stated. "It means that no governmental agency can prescribe a prayer. The government has to keep still."

Commenting on progressive education and traditionalism, Mr. Wyatt was of the opinion that with the pressure of automation, world ideological struggles and rising costs of education, schools must utilize every possible product of science and technology.

"The child must more and more become the object of study. Schools fall into grooves and can't get out," he said. If the structure of the school is not fitting the child's needs it must be changed.

Dr. J.S. Bonnell Plans Trip

Rev. J. S. Bonnell, DD, leaves this morning for Toronto where he will complete the last of four Sundays in the pulpit of Deer Park United Church. The following Sunday he preaches in Chautauqua, Western New York, and lectures on week days. (The average Sunday morning service here brings together 7,000 persons).

On August 1, Dr. and Mrs. Bonnell will leave New York on the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth for 12 days in London, England. They will return on the Queen Mary on Aug. 16, when they will fly back to their summer home in Georgetown for another three weeks.

This five-point statement was made along with the regulatory agency's announcement of 55 applications to be heard at a public sitting in Ottawa starting Monday, Aug. 13. The applications include 13 for TV rebroadcasting stations, most of them in western Canada.

Dealing with alleged infractions of regulations by the four stations, the BBG did not specify which of its regulations are involved or whether the stations are CBC or private, TV or radio.

It noted that section 15 of the Broadcasting Act provides for suspension of a licence and section 18 for summary conviction under the Criminal Code for breaches of regulations.

The BBG said it will proceed under section 18. Thus the licensees would be tried summarily. If convicted, they would face fines of up to $500 or three months in jail or both.

It marks the first time since the BBG was created in 1958—as the CBC's successor in the regulatory field — that it has stepped beyond what it today called "warning and reprimand" in enforcing the law on Canada's 129 television and 269 radio stations.

The announcement said the BBG can detect "apparent infractions" by checking program logs submitted weekly by all stations, by monitoring the stations, and through complaints made to the board.

TEACHER

demic background for teachers to be professional in the real sense of the word.

He favored a university degree, followed by a year of teacher training.

Mr. MacDonald, however, took the opposite view. He said the integrated program leaves teacher education totally in the hands of those concerned with the preparation of teachers, makes the student acquainted with his future profession from the beginning and is more apt to retain candidates for the profession.

No college can produce results by adding offerings of the faculty of education to a regular college course, he maintained.

"The day of uniform education would depend on price and quality, he noted. He felt such items as strawberries, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and others could still be sold if they were attractively packaged and marketed at a competitive price.

He said the British people are price conscious and "quite willing to go around the corner for a better price on anything."

U.K. ENTRY IN ECM

Regarding Britain's entry in the European Common Market, he said the government must be satisfied first that three conditions are being met. 1. — Is it reasonable for agriculture at home? 2. — Are our partners in the Outer Seven—such as the Scandinavian countries reasonably satisfied they will not suffer from our entry into the other market. 3. — We must satisfy ourselves that by joining the central trade interest of the Commonwealth be not endangered.

"If these conditions are not met then we would simply call the deal off," he stated.

It is much too early to prophesy regarding Britain's final action as at present "we only have bits and pieces of the plan and we want to look at the whole picture before deciding," he said.

OVERALL FREE TRADE

He thought, and Mr. Codling agreed, that joining the ECM might be a move in the direction of a general return to the principles of overall free trade, as "there will be no customs barrier across the Strait of Dover."

This situation might react favorably to permitting more Canadian-made articles to find their way into the European market.

U.K. Market Said Open For Island Lobsters

By RALPH CAMERON
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

There is a wide open market for fresh P.E.I. lobster in Great Britain, in the opinion of Kenneth McGregor, KMG, senior British Trade Commissioner to Canada.

The commissioner thought the idea of shipping live lobster by air intriguing, but noted it would be a luxury item in a country where the lobster is considered a real delicacy. But even as a luxury item, he felt there would be establishments happy to advertise "Fresh Prince Edward Island lobsters, taken from the sea yesterday."

He and H. F. Codling, British Trade Commissioner for the Atlantic Provinces, who is accompanying him on his visit here, remarked, with interest, information that Maritime Central Airways now has airline connections with Europe, and felt this could easily open up a market for lobsters landed live in Britain.

REQUIRE EFFORT

Asked regarding other possibilities for introducing Island products to the British market he said "all these things require active promotional effort on the part of the Prince Edward Islander, himself."

He agreed with Mr. Codling that Islanders interested in selling in that market should actively associate themselves with the overseas sales program of the federal department of trade, where Hon. George Hees is making great efforts to promote overseas trade.

Mr. McGregor felt there are possibilities of Island grown frozen foods being sold in Britain, despite the prevalence of local products. However, sales success

Vernon River Fracas Results In Three Youths Being Fined

Three youths appeared in Queen's County magistrate's court yesterday charged with intending to carry out the common purpose of assaulting Ralph Kenneth Lea and assembling themselves in such a manner as to cause persons in the neighborhood at Vernon River to fear they would disturb the peace tumultuously.

The three, Donald Kinley Smith, Flat River; William John Larkin, Newton Cross and James Clayton Singleton, Eldon, each pleaded guilty to the separate charges and were each fined $20 and costs or 10 days.

Leo Adrian Smith, Bedford, pleaded guilty to assaulting James Charles Gurney of Peakes and was fined $50 and costs or 15 days. He was also ordered to post a $500 bond of two sureties of $250 each and to enter into a recognizance to keep the peace and be of good behavior for a period of one year and during that time keep away from the property of Mr. Gurney.

Following the hearing of one witness, Cnst. Lindsay S. Roberts, RCMP Montague, the case for the Crown was completed in the case of Raymond Bowen MacCallum, Marshfield, charged with driving a motor vehicle while his ability was impaired. The case was adjourned until August 20.

SHORT LOBSTERS

Harry Flemming Somers, New London was fined $25 and costs or 10 days for having the illegal possession of 34 undersized lobsters.

Appearing on a similar charge, Melvin James Roberts, Covehead, was fined $5 and costs or five days. He was said to have had possession of 13 undersized lobsters.

John William Kelly, Charlottetown was fined $10 and costs or five days for failing to transfer ownership of an automobile, and Leonard Francis Bagiole, Charlottetown was also fined $10 and costs for driving with an expired licence. Another accused, Ivan Elmer Mosher, Mt. Vernon was fined $10 and costs or five days on two counts, driving without a licence and driving an unregistered vehicle.

James Samuel Goode, Winsloe and Leo Elton Doucette, Charlottetown, were each fined $10 and costs or five days for speeding. Louis M. MacInnis, Parkdale was also fined $10 and costs or five days for driving without a licence and George Benedict MacDougall, Dundee was fined $10 and costs or five days for failing to report an accident.

for teachers will be a dark day" Father Roche maintained on the other hand. A uniform system of government supported schools would impose a unity indistinguishable from totalitarianism, he said.

Some programs of teacher training do give better results, however, he said. "The preferable road is that of a Bachelor's degree plus a year of professional training. . .We cannot settle for less than the excellent."

Alberta follows the integrated teacher training program, Mr. MacDonald stated, with the University of Alberta vested with the responsibility for teacher education, with the final authority, however, resting with the minister of education.

As a result of this program, he stated it has been found that the general education of teachers has improved, the status of teaching has been raised, status differences have been reduced, and scholarships and research have been stimulated.

Father Roche stood for diversity in teaching administration, curricula and teacher training, but pinpointed a broad education as the first requirement of the teacher, and advocating the liberal education of a Bachelor's degree to attain this.

Vote Clause Is Defended By Chairman

Provincial Labor Relations Board chairman C. R. McQuaid yesterday defended the clause in the Industrial Relations Act which states that a union may be certified if 60 per cent of a company's employees vote in favor.

While presenting a brief Thursday to the government's Executive Council, the provincial branch of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association asked that a majority vote of all employees be required before certification is granted and not that a 60 per cent majority of those who vote be required.

"As the clause is now," said Mr. McQuaid, "it is based on democratic principles. Just as in a political election, a decision is based on the number of people who vote — not the number eligible to vote. All employees have an opportunity to vote and if some do not wish to vote then that should not be allowed to influence the outcome."

Island Native Joins Staff

Jack A. Cutcliffe has been appointed to the research staff of the Canada Department of Agriculture, Experimental Farm, Charlottetown, where he will investigate soil problems related to the production of horticultural crops.

He replaces Gordon C. Warren, who recently retired, and is widely known as the "Maritime Gardener."

Mr. Cutcliffe is a native of Fredericton, P.E.I., where he received his elementary education. He attended Prince of Wales College and received his BSc and MSc degrees from Macdonald College, P.Q.

Following graduation, Mr. Cutcliffe was employed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture as a fruit and vegetable extension specialist. In this capacity, he served four years at Picton, Ontario, and four years at Harrow, Ontario.

Mr. Cutcliffe is married and has three sons.
