Burt Lancaster, fresh from his acting triumph in "From Here to Eternity" and master of all cinematic dramatics, is said to top his cinematic career in the title portrayal. Pretty Joan Rice from England and lissome Tessa Prendergast Jamaica-born dancer, are the two lovelies who compete for the favors of the "king".

Filmed in Technicolor entirely on location in the Fiji Islands the story tells of David O'Keefe, a scraggy soldier-of-fortune, who finds himself in the South Seas on a mission of adventure. How he finds it apparently makes for an engrossing action and romantic yarn which is taken directly from the pages of the best-selling novel by Lawrence Sanders and Gerald Green.

When Captain O'Keefe is shipwrecked and cast upon a Pacific island, there starts a series of adventurous incidents that include a search for sacred stones, marriage to a beautiful half-caste maiden, fights with looting mutineers off another ship, native uprisings and romantic ceremonies. How the indomitable captain, as played by Lancaster, cuts a wide swath through all of this, ultimately being crowned king by a grateful natives, makes for one of the most unusual romantic yarns ever put on film.

English Runner Collapses 12 Times In BEG Marathon - some fainted as Peters stumbled in futility, weaving and falling across three lanes. One of his falls was almost directly in front of the Duke of Edinburgh, sitting in the stands nearby.

John Savidge, towering English hammer-thrower and other mates, encouraged Peters from the edge of the track. Savidge would cry: "Get up, Jimmy." And Jimmy, this urgent message barely getting through to his sub-conscious in a daze, would struggle up painfully only to fall again.

Some agreed with Lush who said: "Peters over-paced himself. Under those conditions, he should have run to win and forget about any record."

Many newspaper men called it the most gruesome sport spectacle they ever witnessed. They never wanted to see one like it again.

STAGGERED AND FELL - The games never saw such paths and drama. Peters staggered through the gate of Empire Stadium within sight of the finish line he never reached, the big crowd and thousands more watching on television saw the classic mile duel between Roger Bannister of England and John Landy of Australia.

They were plunged into the depths of despair as Peters reeled, fell, staggered up again in semi-conscious determination.

The 36-year-old captain of the English team, who ran the first five miles of the race in 23 1/2 minutes, covered only 220 of the last 385 yards on the stadium track. It took him 15 minutes. It seemed like eternity.

Taken to hospital along with Peters was 30-year-old Stan Cox of England, who was running second to his fellow-countryman when he, too, collapsed, at the 23-mile mark.

Six doctors worked feverishly over Peters in hospital. In critical condition, he needed oxygen treatment. A cramp in one leg took an hour to straighten.

Peters was reported in improved condition Sunday, out of danger. Cox was sitting up.

TWO CANADIANS FINISH - Two unheralded Canadians were among the six of the starting 16 who finished the race. One of them, Nick Mayes, white-coated stepperson for the English team, stepped on the track and clutched Peters after he passed over the wrong line, holding him upright until a stretcher was rushed forward.

CROWD'S DECISION - The public address system blared the sad news that Peters had been disqualified. The crowd, which had suffered with the wily little English runner through his every agonizing step, greeted this with angry booing.

Mayes reported to have acted on the instructions of Leslie Truelove, England's general team manager, who said in an interview: "I guess I should have stopped him sooner. But I thought the finish line was there at the west side and that Jimmy just might be able to make it."

"He'd never have forgiven me if I'd stopped him when he thought he could finish."

"I asked two games officials where the finish line was and they told me it was there on the west side."

"We'd have stopped him there anyway."

But McGhee and Lush said they knew exactly where to find the finish line.

Maritime Church Convention Held At Summerside During The Week-end

Mr. Harry Linkletter, Summerside, F.E.I. was named president of the Maritime Christian Missionary Society, successor to Mr. D. R. MacDonald, Halifax, N. S., layman.

Guest speakers for the convention were Rev. D. Ervin Sheets, Indianapolis, and Miss Underhill, Toronto, missionary under appointment in India. Substantial gains in various fields of endeavor were reported by the Maritime secretary evangelist, Rev. R. M. Johnston, South Hants.

An increasing willingness to assume responsibilities related to the outreach work of evangelism, Christian education and missions was shown in the reports of congregations.

15 Persons Have Enjoyable Trip In Callow Wheelchair Coach At Alberton - Fifteen elderly and shut-in folk of the Alberton district had a very happy outing Friday afternoon when a Walter Callow wheelchair coach made its first trip to this part of the province. Under auspices of the Regalette Rebekah Lodge a Walter Callow tag day had been held in Alberton for several successive years and a very generous response had been received from the public. This year, when Mr. Callow received the receipts from the tag day he felt a coach should visit this area. By long distance telephone he made contact with Mrs. Clayton Travers, treasurer of the lodge, who had forwarded the money. Members of the lodge went into action immediately and learned that the number of shut-in who were enough to go for a drive would justify the coming of a coach. A busy day in Summerside the coach arrived in Alberton Thursday and, during its stay here, aroused much interest.

This large vehicle, the first wheelchair coach in the world, went on the road in May 1947. It is equipped with ten wheelchairs and seating for eight other persons besides the driver.

The back of the coach forms a hydraulic ramp over which the wheelchairs pass easily. It locks in position so there is no danger of accidents. East wheelchair is adjustable so that its occupant may sit upright or lie down. Each chair has flat steel springs in the back, is cushioned with foam rubber and has a small cushion which may be placed at the occupant's back for additional comfort.

The coach was donated by the Oddfellows and Rebekahs, the cost of each chair being $200.00. The coach is equipped with toilet facilities, a heating system, ventilators, radio, small tables to rest on chair arms, blankets, etc.

Since 1947, three more coaches have been built and the newer ones have additional facilities such as air conditioning, large scenic windows, air brakes, balloon tires and storage compartments. In less than half an hour these coaches can be converted into huge ambulances which will accommodate twenty stretcher cases. As such they would be of inestimable value in case of disaster. Should any national emergency occur they would be at the disposal of the government for whatever length of time they would be needed.

At the present Halifax is the home base for all four coaches but from here they go out to a large number of other centres. Other cities are now making plans whereby they may have a coach available for their invalid citizens. In Halifax those unable to travel otherwise are taken by wheelchair coach to ball games, races, picnics, drives in theatres and church. Through Walter Callow's work there has been built in Victoria, a mobile pavilion in which wheelchair patients may sit in comfort while they enjoy hockey games. Cerebral palsy children and a few polio cases were taken to their schools each day.

The hostess on the coach which visited Alberton is Miss Annabelle McEachern of Halifax who is beginning her fifth year in this work. It is of interest to West Prince people to know that Miss McEachern's grandparents lived at West Point. When interviewing Miss McEachern it was evident that she is a person well qualified for her task of giving happiness to others. She has a friendly manner which indicates a deep understanding and she does derive great pleasure from her work. Mr. Ozro Jonah, driver of the coach is also of the friendly type and he, too, is well qualified for the responsibility that is his.

Guests on the coach Friday afternoon were Miss Kate Woodman and Miss Catherine Woodman of Alberton, Mr. Gabriel Gavin of Alberton South, Mr. Alexander Cameron of Elmisdale, who is past his 101st birthday, Mr. H. R. Lockery of Fortune Cove, Mrs. Dawie Penkes of Kildare Cape, Mrs. Alvie Mountain, Mrs. Leander Donald, Mrs. Benjamin Dunbar, Mrs. Joseph Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Eved Smith, all of Alma, Mrs. Lester Wallace and Mrs. Nettie LePage of Gaspeque.

They were accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd Wilkie and Mrs. Clayton D. Deighan, who were aboard the coach they were taken to Mr. Elmer Wallace's shore where Mrs. C. R. Profit, Miss Babel Fielding and Mrs. Wesley Hardy were waiting to serve them ice cream and cake provided by lodge members. Miss Fielding joined those on the coach for the return trip on which fifteen very happy men and women were taken to their homes.

The most wonderful part of this story is that behind it all is a veteran of the First World War who lies in Camp Hill Hospital unable to help himself in any way. He
