Claim Evidence Baldwin Not First To Fly

OTTAWA (CP)—New evidence has come to light to show that F. W. (Casey) Baldwin of Canada was not the firsts British subject to fly a powered heavier-than-air machine.

J. H. Parkin, director of the national aeronautical establishment, says the honor "beyond doubt" belongs to Henry Farman, a British-born subject who has lived all his life in France.

Writing in the May issue of the Canadian Aeronautical Journal, Mr. Parkin says Farman was born in Paris May 26, 1874, the son of a British newspaper man.

Farman, still living in France as he approaches his 84th birthday, employs the French form 'Henri" for his first name and speaks French in preference to English. He was issued a British passport in 1920 and is reported to have become a naturalized Frenchman in 1937.

Mr. Parkin says the impression prevailed at the time of his first flight, and since, that Farman was born a Frenchman and was a Frenchman when he first flew.

FIRST FLIGHT

Farman's first officially recognized flight wa made Jan. 13, 1908, when he flew a closed circuit of one kilometre.

Baldwin's firsts flight occurred March 2,1 1908, at Hammondsport, N.Y. He was the first Canadian to fly a heavier-than-air machine.

J. A. D. McCurdy made the first flight of a British subject in the British Commonwealth in a powered plane at Baddeck, N.S., Feb. 23, 1909.

Mr. Parkin says the achievements of Baldwin and McCurdy should be suitable recognized by a joint monument erected by Canadian technical societies at Baddeck.

Baldwin, a native of Toronto, died in 1948 at the age of 66. McCurdy, 71, is still living and is a former lieutenant - governor of Nova Scotia.

USE MORE COTTON

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian cotton textile mills opened 27,353 bales of raw cotton (500 pounds each) in April compared with 26,227 bales the previous month, the Cotton Institute of Canada reported Friday. It said demand for cotton goods was steady on the Canadian market but producers were losing ground in competition with heavy volume of imports.
