NO THROAT CUTTING SAYS JUDY'S SPOUSE

While her studio was saying that Judy Garland had cut her throat in a fit of anguish, her husband was saying there was nothing at all to the report.

Of one thing she was certain, namely, that she loved flowers with a love that almost amounted to a passion.

Each year a bit more land was cultivated, and each year more flowers sprang up to keep their fellows company.

At the end of twelve years she had progressed beyond her fondest dreams. The once humble plot now boasted over an acre of bewitching beauty.

A hedge of native white spruce, neatly trimmed, and about four feet in height has been planted to form a border round this bewitching paradise.

Through the years Mabel MacMillan has known the 'flower touch', and these lovely children of Nature know the Flower Lady quite as well as they do their own sisters and brothers.

Today Mrs. MacMillan is recognized as an authority on the species of flowers she grows, and exhibits from her gardens have won many prizes in various parts of the Dominion.

Looking back over the years Mabel can view the wonders wrought by her own hands and sing:

NEW DRUGS FOR RHEUMATISM

While patients suffering with rheumatism patiently wait for the arrival of cortisone and ACTH in sufficient quantities to supply their needs, it is interesting to read of a new drug which relieves pain of rheumatism by loosening up the spasm which so often tightens muscles and causes pain.

In "The Journal of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics," Drs. Elwood Henneman, Arnold Kaplan, and Klaus Unna, University of Illinois College of Medicine, state that it is now possible to estimate or measure spasm or spasticity. They have been able to show that Myanesin can hurry the action of the nerves supplying muscles, causing spasm, and can also slow up the action of these nerves, relieving spasm.

In "Medical Clinics of North America," Dr. Richard T. Smith, Rheumatologist, Jefferson Medical College Hospital, Philadelphia, states that in the majority of rheumatic disorders spasm of muscles is responsible for a considerable degree of disability, discomfort and loss of use. Spasm may be produced by exposure to excessive heat or cold, overextension of the muscle, sprains of strains, direct injury, overuse of certain muscles not generally used for the work or exercises being taken, and loss of muscle tissue.

Among the methods used to relieve spasm are prostigmine, curare, procaine, passive and active exercises and various types of electrical current. However, new drugs such as Myanesin and Tolserol promise more far-reaching benefit either alone or in conjunction with other methods of treatment.

The great value of Tolserol in the treatment of rheumatic pain caused by spasm is that it relaxes spasm of muscle without causing paralysis. Furthermore, it can easily be seen that a relaxed muscle can be exercised or massaged to a greater extent, thus increasing circulation in the muscle and removing wastes which cause pain and stiffness.

Until cortisone and ACTH are available in good supply, the use of Tolserol or Myanesin is worth a trial.

Formal Luncheon Setting

Nothing is quite so elegant as lace for a table setting. The attractive luncheon mats and runner shown here, are comparatively small items to crochet and make pleasant summer 'pick-up' work. Despite their delicate appearance you'll find that they launder beautifully. Write to the Needlework Dept. of this paper if you would like to have directions for making this LUNCHEON SETTING. Send along stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for Leaflet No. CN-4.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS-

Itinerant Wife

Woman Makes A Career Of Marrying For Meal Ticket

DEAR MISS DIX: Almost a year ago I left my first husband after having been married to him for three years. I came to a little Western town to visit my sister. Here I met a man who fell for me at once and I married him, because I didn't want to live with relatives and I was too lazy to get out and get a job and make my own living.

What shall I do? Shall I strike out for myself, for I tell myself that since this man fell so easily there must be plenty of others who would do the same, or shall I rot in this place, pretending to be in love with my husband?

ELEANOR

ANSWER: I really think that the kindest thing you could do to your husband would be to leave him at once, for you will do it sooner or later, anyway, as soon as some man comes along who can jingle a little more money before you or take you to some gayer place to live.

HUSBAND TO BE FITTED

It seems a pity for a fine, honest man like your husband to have to spend his life toiling for a wife who merely regards him as a meal ticket and who does not repay his labor and his sacrifices by even so much as a thought of gratitude or appreciation.

But let me tell you, Eleanor, that you will never find any happiness in marriage as long as you make it a racket, and regard a husband as merely a slave to work and support you in order that you may be fed and clothed and have nothing to do but amuse yourself. You get out of marriage just exactly what you put into it.

For marriage is a sacrament. It isn't a graft.

DOROTHY

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a girl of 15 with a sister age 3. My mother is a widow and has supported us for eight years. She is in her early thirties, and now she has fallen in love with a man and wants to marry him. He is a fine man with a good job, very even-tempered and pleasant, but they will not marry unless I will co-operate to make our home a happy one and will promise to treat him as if he was a real father.

DOROTHY

ANSWER: Well, if you follow my advice, Dorothy, you will withdraw your objections to your mother's marrying this kind, good man and you will conquer your jealousy and treat him with the respect that you would show your own father.

Consider in the first place that you have no real cause for jealousy, because the love that your mother will give to her husband is entirely different from that which she gives to her children. The two emotions do not conflict in any way and nothing is sillier than to compare them.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We have two friends who were married several years ago. The wife cares nothing for her husband. She chatters herself in flirtations and is unfaithful to him. The husband worships his wife and does not suspect her. He is the type of man who might really become desperate. What can be done about this mess? Shall we tell the husband?

TWO ONLOOKERS

ANSWER: Never interfere between a man and his wife unless you want to get into trouble yourself. Telling the husband that his wife doesn't love him and has affairs with other men won't make her fond of him or true to him. It will serve no good purpose.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

The Stars Say

By Genevieve Kemble

For Tuesday, June 27

UNDER a slowing down state of affairs it may be difficult to make any progress in the attainment of cherished hopes and wishes, particularly in the realm of the domestic, cultural, social and romantic. An especially crystallized and thwarting condition prevails in the home and love affairs, and but little of gain or progress may be expected in such business ventures as pertain to these. Investments and assets find scant action or profit. Take no chances with funds.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may not be surprised should there be congestions, delays, postponements and disappointments in affairs generally. The accent in this crystallized condition may be found heaviest in all pertaining to the domestic scene, with but little activity or profit in any form of business relation to the home, its romantic or social aspirations. Expected benefits may not materialize. Safeguard all assets and interests. Postpone investments. A child born on this day while loving, aspirational and fond of home and social contacts, yet may have a serious, studious and profound character.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Does a man precede a woman when going down the aisle of a theatre?

A. This depends upon whether the usher takes the checks at the head of the aisle. If this is the case, the woman goes first. If the couple starts down the aisle to meet the usher, the man goes first and hands the checks to the usher. He then stands aside while the woman takes her place, and then he takes his.

Q. Is it considered all right to eat the lettuce upon which a salad is served?

A. This is quite all right. If a person likes lettuce, he is privileged to eat it if he wishes.

Q. Is it proper to address the envelope to a woman as "Mary A. Jones?"

A. No. The prefix "Mrs." or "Miss" should always be used.

Q. How can I make putty?

A. Putty can be made by mixing linseed oil with sifted whiting, to the proper consistency.
