

RCMP Claim Escapée Is Terribly Dangerous

MONTEAL, CP—Quebec Provincial Police have set up roadblocks on highways in the eastern part of the province in hopes of capturing André Daoust, 24, who has broken out of custody twice in the last two months and is described by police as "terribly dangerous."

Daoust, who escaped from guards here in June broke out of Gloucester County Jail in Bathurst, N.B. Saturday after loosening a water pipe from his cell and slugging his jailer with it. He is believed armed.

He had been arrested by RCMP in a hotel in Bathurst on a charge of possessing a loaded revolver.

PRINTS CHECKED

An RCMP spokesman said Daoust was using the name Roger Miron when arrested. He escaped before his identity became known through an Ottawa fingerprint check.

Charles L'Esperance, the Bathurst jailer who was attacked by Daoust, said the escaped man told him he would never be taken alive again, police said.

Fellow prisoners prevented Daoust from striking the jailer again. He then bolted to the jail door where he smashed the lock with the pipe and fled.

Daoust first escaped June 18 from St. Luke's Hospital in Montreal where he had been taken for treatment.

FACES FOUR CHARGES

Daoust, faces four charges here in connection with a bank robbery last year during which two people were wounded by gunfire.

Following his escape from Bathurst, Daoust stole a car and drove to Belledune about 50 miles south of Bathurst.

At Belledune he stole another auto in which he was seen Sunday driving in the direction of Montreal.

Monday he was spotted at Amqui, Que., 40 miles from the Quebec-New Brunswick border when he stopped for gas and drove away without paying.

A provincial police spokesman said Wednesday that all police stations in the province have been alerted.

Gives Up Golf To Join Service

MONTEAL, CP—Retired engineer Donald McN. Lowe just 78 years young, is giving up a life of golf and other niceties to join the Canadian University Service Overseas volunteers in Uganda.

The Scottish-born Canadian is currently putting in an 11-hour day at Loyola College here learning the Luganda language before going out on a two-year road and bridge building assignment.

Bachelor Lowe, who served in both world wars, was born in Rothsay, N.B., schooled in Edinburgh, then studied surveying in Vancouver. He has handled projects costing up to $18,000,000—among them the Fraser River gorge route, the building of Camp Gagetown, N.B., a Fredericton bridge and the St. John's harbor—and retired in 1962 to a 36-hole day in Vancouver.

"I would not have come out of retirement to take an assignment in Canada because there are younger qualified men who can do the job," he said.

"But this assignment overseas is another matter. In addition to a sense of adventure, I feel I can work with the people of Uganda in helping set up a modern road transportation system which they need."

Next time, he says, he will let retirement "sneak up" on him. He leaves for Uganda Aug. 26.

Changes Mind, Presses Charges

LONDON (AP)—Ghana's new government changed its mind Wednesday and pressed new charges against former trade minister Kwesi Amah, a close friend of deposed president Kwame Nkrumah.

Amah, 37, was accused in a warrant of stealing £30,000 ($90,000) in cash while he was Ghana's high commissioner in London in 1964.

Amah denied the charge in court and was released on bail of £500 until another hearing Aug. 4.

The revolutionary regime in Ghana had sought Amah's extradition last May to face bribery charges in Accra. The House of Lords appellate committee freed him Tuesday, but he was arrested again Tuesday night on the charge of misappropriating funds.
