Former Playboy King May Take On New Serious Role

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A former playboy king may crown his career by becoming spokesman for southeast Asia's neutral nations.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, handsome prime minister of Cambodia, suggests that the big powers let the small neutral countries try to untangle their problems.

With a candor rarely heard in UN halls, the 35-year-old prince declared the big nations on both sides of the Iron Curtain have become "victims of their own propaganda" and are unable to move from fixed positions.

Sihanouk until a few years ago was known as a jazz-crazy, fun-loving monarch. He turned over the Cambodian throne to his father, Suramarit, in 1955 in order to become prime minister.

In giving up his royal rights, Sihanouk relinquished, among other things, an air-conditioned throne room, a diamond-studded derby and a personal troupe of 30 dancing girls. In their place he took over the premiership he has held four times since 1955 and

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES M. MACFADYEN

James M. MacFadyen passed away suddenly in the Prince Edward Island Hospital on August 15, 1953. Although he had been suffering from a heart ailment for the past eleven years, his death came as a distinct shock to his widow and many friends. During this period he had frequently been hospitalized by an attack, but he always rallied under the skillful care of his physician.

The late Mr. MacFadyen was born at St. Catharines, Prince Edward Island on March 25, 1892, one of the youngest in a family of eleven sons and daughters of Hugh John and Ann MacFadyen. One brother and one sister survive him — Daniel MacFadyen of Huxter's River and Sarah, Mrs. Alex MacLeod of Charlottetown.

As a boy, James M. MacFadyen attended the district school at St. Catharines and helped his father on the farm. In 1910 he went to Providence, Rhode Island and remained until 1917 when he returned to his home district to resume farming. On December 31, 1919 he married, Minnie, daughter of the late Rev. Daniel and Mrs. MacLean. In 1925 he began employment with his brother-in-law, Neil D. MacLean, in the undertaking business. Later he entered into partnership with Aben MacLean in the retail grocery business, under the name of MacLean and MacFadyen, Queen Street, Charlottetown.

In 1934 he was appointed by the North Shore Hotels Company as manager of Stanhope Beach Inn, and at a later date manager of Dalvay House. A few years later he purchased Stanhope Beach Inn, but in 1947 he was forced by ill health to sell the hotel to Mr. Raoul Raymond, and to relinquish his lease of Dalvay House to Major Wendell Worth. In 1948 he acquired the property at Stanhope Beach, now known as Kiloran Lodge.

The late James M. MacFadyen was a devotee of the Church of Scotland, Churchill and for a number of years as a member of the board of trustees of Zion Presbyterian Church, Charlottetown. He also taught a Bible class for adolescents for a period of more than ten years.

His community interests included zealous service on behalf of the local Y.M.C.A. and he was especially concerned with the construction of the new building at the corner of Prince and Euston streets. He was associated with Mr. Justice Arsenault in organizing the P.E.I. Motor League. He was a past-president of the Y's Men's Club, the Prince Edward Island Bible Society, and the Caledonia Club.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, was held from Zion Church on Monday, August 18 with his pastor, the Rev. W. Harold Brown, officiating. In the course of his remarks, based on Romans 8, verse 28, the Rev. Mr. Brown referred to Mr. MacFadyen's greatness of soul and implicit faith in christian principles. The choir under the direction of Mrs. Edwin Johnstone led the congregation in singing two favorite selections of the deceased — "The Lord's My Shepherd" and "O God of Bethel."

Interment was in the People's Cemetery, Charlottetown. The pallbearers were: Walter B. Shaw, George Kiely, Kenneth M. Martin, William E. Agnew, John A. Martin and Malcolm MacKenzie.

Those who knew the late James M. MacFadyen intimately will undoubtedly concur that the following lines aptly express his philosophy:

"How can a man be judged at set of sun?
By his accomplishments, by laurels won?
Must he be measured by this world's success
Or in the simple terms of happiness?
Though man is often judged by his estate
And sometimes for the deeds which made him great
'Tis better still, when life has taken toll,
To be beloved for grandeur of the soul."

friendship to Peiping. Sihanouk also is aware the Communists may overturn the monarchy he symbolizes and has adopted a policy of assailing the Reds at home while befriending them abroad.

The prince gets along well with diplomats of all political hues. Sihanouk has summed up his concept of the neutral's role thusly:

"Just as a man must have a mirror to look at his own back, so the great powers themselves sometimes need neutrals to point out what is amiss."

leadership of Cambodia's powerful popular Socialist Unity party. Sihanouk has tried to steer a neutral course between the power blocs, but is convinced Red China will become the dominant force in Asia in the next 20 years. Friends say that to preserve his country's independence, he has offered Cambodia's hand of
