

A NOVA SCOTIA CASE.

Significant Praise of Dodd's Kidney Pills by a Meteghan Citizen.

METEGHAN, N.S., Aug. 22.—No man is better known to the travelling and commercial classes in this province than is Mr. William Geruau, proprietor of the Bay View Hotel here.

An interesting statement is made by Mr. German, and reads thus: "I take pleasure in testifying to the merits of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two years ago, I was suffering from severe pains in my back caused by Kidney Trouble.

"I got two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and used them, and my complaint was completely cured. I have not had the slightest pain since."

To all victims of Kidney Complaint there is one way of escape from their suffering. That is only by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure.

Toes, Claws, Fingers.

The elephant, a slow moving animal in the ordinary course, has five toes. The rhinoceros, a much faster beast, as hunters have often learned to their confusion, has but three. Now, in the sheep we find two digits only, while in the horse, peerless in the matter of pace, the number falls to a single digit. The nail of the higher mammal may have given place to a horny hoof. No matter; the finger remains, for purposes, at any rate, of comparison, a finger all the same. Be it added that many extinct hoofed creatures are endowed with the full five digits, and not a few existing deer show distinct traces of two obsolete shorter "fingers." From this I gather—though the theory may, not quite unreasonably, be dismissed as far-fetched—that these weaker grass eaters have gradually dropped their digits as the struggle grew in severity and the necessity for swiftness of limb increased.

Now, I am free to confess, did the apparent truth of this appeal to me in force until I came to compare the foot of the swift ostrich with that of the stately stork. It was as I expected, the fleet bird of the desert had dropped two of the four fingers permitted to most birds, having but two. The almost equally swift emu and cassowary had dropped one, being possessed of three apiece. This, then, seems to me a fair rule—the fewer the digits the swifter the beast. And the rule bears the stamp of the exception necessary to prove it, inasmuch as the sluggish hippopotamus has one less than the hare. Perhaps, then, this notion of mine will apply only to the hoofed beasts. Whether the elephant might in time have dropped one or two of his digits and at the same time dieted himself to acquire greater pace is an open question, and one which since the arrival on the scene of man and his rifle is likely to go unanswered.—Good Words.

General Grant's Characteristics.

He was possessed of a moral and physical courage which was equal to every emergency in which he was placed. He was calm amid excitement, patient under trials, sure in judgment, clear in foresight, never depressed by reverses or unduly elated by success. He was fruitful in expedients and had a facility of resource and a faculty of adapting the means at hand to the accomplishment of an end which never failed him. He possessed an intuitive knowledge of topography, which prevented him from ever becoming confused as to locality or direction in conducting even the most complicated movements in the field. His singular self reliance enabled him at critical junctures to decide instantly questions of vital moment without dangerous delay in seeking advice from others and to assume the gravest responsibilities without asking any one to share them.

His habits of life were simple, and he enjoyed a physical constitution which enabled him to endure every form of fatigue and privation incident to military service in the field. His soldiers always knew that he was ready to rough it with them and share their hardships on the march. He wore no better clothes than they, and often ate no better food. There was nothing in his manner to suggest that there was any gulf between him and the men who were winning his victories. He never tired of giving unstinted praise to his subordinates. He was at all times loyal to them. His fidelity produced a reciprocal effect and is one of the chief reasons why they became so loyally attached to him. He was never betrayed by success into boasting of his triumphs. He never underrated himself in a battle; he never overrated himself in a report.—General Horace Porter in Century.

Pain in the Back

Being troubled off and on with pains in my back, caused by constipation, I tried several kinds of pills I had seen advertised, and to put the truth in a nut shell, Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills are the only pills that have proved effectual in my case. I can heartily recommend them.

A Curious Fact

It is really remarkable the number of cheap plated watch cases that are made and sold these days—cases that will wear anywhere from six weeks to three years, and most of them containing a guarantee warranting them to wear for 20 years. A good filled case, one that will wear for 20 years, costs within a dollar of what it did seven years ago. That dollar represents the reduced cost of making—the gold costs just the same.

I sell gold filled cases, cases that have stood the test of years, and personally guarantee every case that I sell in addition to the manufacturer's warrant.

I have some of the latest and most desirable patterns in stock, also silver. Any make of movement you want.
