Business Recession In Japan Has Large Concerns Worried

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO (AP)—Shortly after 2 p.m. Aug. 3, 1945, a silver C-54 aircraft with "Bataan" emblazoned across its nose soared over the giant Buddha at Kamakura, swung inland toward towering Mount Fuji, then drifted in for a landing at Atsugi.

Gen. Douglas MaacArthur, corn - cob pipe cocked at a jaunty angle, stepped from the plane to begin his triumphal entry to Japan.

A collection of ancient automobiles, including a wheezing fire engine, were on hand to provide transportation for MacArthur and his staff. The welcome was cold, silent and unemotional.

"Yokohama seemed a phantom city," one of his aides wrote later. "Shop windows were boarded up, blinds were drawn and many of the sidewalks were deserted."

Moving on to his headquarters in Tokyo, MacArthur found the whole industrial area between Yokohama and the Japanese capital bombed to dust.

DIFFERENT NOW

Today's visitor, arriving in Yokohama by ship or at Tokyo International Airport by jet, has the choice of riding to town in an air-conditioned bus, modern cab or monorail. If he is the representative of a firm doing business in Japan, chances are the traveller will be met by the company Casdillac and whisked into town over the new superhighway which skirts the edge of Tokyo Bay and swoops down into the centre of the city. Once off the highway, he will note that traffic is congested and lethal. In Japan today there are more than 7,000,000 automobiles and trucks.

But the most noticeable status symbol for the new affluent society is the television aerial. Forests of them sprout from rooftops. Japan has 17,000,000 television sets, second only to the United States, and more than half the country's housewives have managed to squeeze washing machines and refrigerators into small living quarters.

Tokyo Bay seems overstocked with freighters. It is. Half the world's merchant fleet comes from Japan's shipyards.

In the production of steel and chemicals, Japan stands third in the world. She is second only to the U.S. in electronics production, second in textiles and first in the world in manufacturing cameras.

A recession has slowed down production lines, but even so there is a labor shortage in the industrial areas. Part of this is attributed to the fantastically-effective birth control program, which has held the population increase to a mere 1.12 per cent since the Second World War.

RENTS ARE HIGH

Not that the recession has cut prices. Rents, especially for foreigners, are unrealistic for value received. It is not uncommon to pay $1,000 a month for a two-bedroom apartment.

U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer and other American diplomats have been trying to get Japan to take over economic leadership of Asia. Twenty years after her dreams to rule Asia were shattered, Japan once again stands No. 1 among the industrial countries of the Far East.

But the mantle of leadership in Asia is being refused. The Japanese are not interested in the rebirth of the once-dreamed of "co-prosperity sphere," because they are not ready for the responsibility.

This is what Premier Sato and the heads of several of the country's major companies told a representative of the U.S. government recently.

The recession in Japan has the powerful business houses worried.

Financial statements of 11 major trading firms show that all but one registered increases ranging up to 8.3 per cent in gross sales in the second half of 1964. However, only three firms reported increases in net profits.

Tailoring Journal Declares De Gaulle Pyjamas English

LONDON (Reuters) — The revelation that French President de Gaulle wears British pyjamas may bring down his government, an authoritative tailoring journal declares.

Tongue in cheek, the Tailor and Cutter magazine suggests de Gaulle, who wears British pyjamas in regimental striped cloth, really sees the salvation of France in British-style discipline.

"Some years ago it was reported that only one Frenchman in 10 every wears any pyjamas at all (sexy devils), but the statistics on this side of the Channel support a pyjama discipleship of 50 per cent," Tailor and Cutter says.

"It may be that for all this pretended scorn of the British, it is in their basic discipline (with all the restrictions such an unindulgent life engenders) that he (de Gaulle) sees the possible salvation of La Belle France.

"Who knows but that, if only Frenchmen wore pyjamas, the good general might have an easier task in persuading them into an interest in the hard realities of daytime and the leadership of Europe which he sees as his nation's right."

"There cannot breathe a man with soul so dead that he will not experience a surge of pride that the most exigent ascetic in international public life finds British pyjamas most satisfying to his exacting standards.

"We (British) may not be world leaders nowadays, but we're paramount at bedtime nowanights.

"Face it, frankly, this could bring de Gaulle down."

SLIP-UP LEAVES TREES MISSING

MILWAUKEE (AP) — While promotor of a suburban shopping centre were preparing advertisements telling about their project "nestling among the ancient trees of historic Mequon Park," someone cut down the trees.

"There was a slip - up somewhere," said architect Bruce Koerner.

He said he had marked about 30 maples and oaks, some up to 100 years old, plus a number of smaller trees on the four-acre plot as one to be saved.

But the next time he saw the spot, Koerner said, the trees were all down.

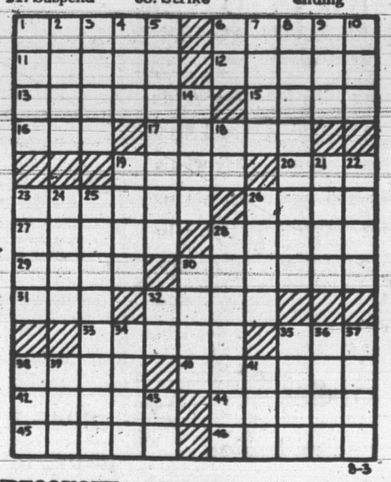
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—eight of hearts.

Declarer is frequently faced with a problem of maintaining two - way communication between his own hand and dummy. This problem of entries is decisive in some deals, because declarer cannot profit from having a number of tricks in one hand or the other if there is no way of reaching the hand with the tricks.

The defenders are also sometimes faced with the problem of communication between their hands. One or the other of them may have tricks which cannot be utilized because there is no entry card to the hand with the tricks.

The problem can sometimes be overcome by the defenders by exercising a reasonable degree of care. Here is such a case.

West leads a heart after East has overcalled—in that suit. Dummy plays the queen, East the king, and South makes the right playof allowing East to win the trick.

As a result of this communication - breaking play, South makes the contract. If East continues with the suit, South finesses the ten and leads a club, eventually establishing three club tricks to make the contract.

Note that if declarer wins the first hart trick he goes down. When he leads a club, West takes it with the king, returns a heart to the jack, and East then continues with a heart and establishes his suit. East still has the ace of clubs as an entry card and South goes down two.

However, East can defeat the contract regardless of what declarer does if he plays the seven of hearts on the opening lead. East, by permitting declarer to win the first trick, maintains a heart contact with West which prevents South from ever making more than seven tricks.

Thus, if declarer plays a club at trick two, West takes it with the king and returns aheart to East's K-J. The race for the establishment of suits is won by the defense and South winds up with second money.
