Prime Minister

ministerial responsibilities. Mr. Drew said the government should bring forward its legislation and get it before committees. It should not wait until the last minute.

St. Laurent Annoyed
Mr. St. Laurent, obviously riled by some of Mr. Drew's statements, said he was surprised, although "possibly I shouldn't be," by the performance of the Opposition leader.

The Prime Minister said he could recall many of Mr. Drew's outbursts prior to the 1949 general election. The Opposition leader then had lectured members on how the proceedings should be conducted instead of the way they had been carried on successfully when he was not a member of the Commons.

Referring to the charge that the government has not brought forward its business, Mr. St. Laurent thumbed through the order paper and read 10 measures that have been introduced since March 7.

The government had been trying to get the acquiescence of the opposition on the way business should be handled. But it might become necessary for the government to state when a debate would take place.

In doing that the government would have to put up with the charges of Mr. Drew that the government with its large majority was trying to impose a dictatorship and to muzzle parliament.

In his speech, Mr. Drew said the budget should not be continued until Mr. Abbott returns from Washington. His absence was an affront to the Commons and to the Canadian people.

Easter Pageant At Knutsford Baptist

A beautiful Eastern pageant was presented by the Girls' Guild in the Knutsford Baptist Church on Easter Sunday night. The pageant was entitled "The Uplifted Cross" and the Mission Band had several recitations.

A fine feature of the program was the pantomimed hymn "Near the Cross," by four young women; Mrs. Willie Dennis, Mrs. James Harris, Misses Jean and Verna Stetson, with Mrs. George Megison and Mrs. Willard Smallman singing the hymn.

The following is the cast of characters: Spirit of the Cross: Mrs. Foster Smallman; Angel of Darkness: Millie MacDowell; Lucifer: Ralph Adams; Four Bible Women: Mrs. James Harris, Jean Stetson, Shirley MacMillan and Mrs. Wilbert Dennis; Two Angels: Freda and Anita Smallman; Two Sentinels: Amy and Isabel Sweet; Symbolic Figures: Miss Olive Jelly, Verna Stetson, Bonita Adams, Lorraine MacNeill and Mrs. Herman Smallman, as well as several intermediaries and junior boys and girls.

During "The Angels at the Tomb" tableau a fine duet, "Angels in White" was sung by Misses Marie Smallman and Bonita Adams.

The pageant closed with all members of the cast singing the "Alleluia" chorus and benediction was pronounced by Mr. Earl Jilly, B.A., who capably acted as chairman. Mrs. Lester Gage was in charge of the music and the lighting was under the direction of Emerson Smallman.

The church was nicely decorated for the Easter season and a very appropriate background was designed by Mr. George Megison and stitched and painted by Mrs. E. Ellis and her daughter Peggy, a student at Mount Allison University. It was a beautiful presentation of the Easter message.

Interesting Talk On Life In China

The regular weekly meeting of the Summerside Rotary Club was held in Robsons Restaurant yesterday, under the chairmanship of President Ben Taylor. Guests included: Hon. Captain A.G. Kempton, commanding officer, R.C.A.F. Station Summerside, Wing Commander Forbes, officer commanding Central Navigational School, Summerside, Squadron Leader Piroth, chief administration officer, R.C.A.F. station, G.A. Chan, W. Chester S. MacDonald, Greg Mulholland, J. Elmer Murphy, editor of the Journal and Pioneer and Mr. George Wotton of the Guardian staff.

In charge of yesterday's program was Mr. Dan Chan of Summerside who had as his guest Dr. G.A. Chan, senior resident surgeon at the Provincial Sanatorium who gave a most interesting talk on various aspects of life in China.

Mr. Dan Chan, in introducing Dr. Chan, briefly reviewed the doctor's medical career, saying that in 1942 he graduated from the Lingnan University in Canton, China. In 1943 he served one year as director for the International Red Cross Corps on the Kwangtung war front, then went back to Lingnan University where he was an assistant and instructor in medicine for two years. In 1946 he qualified as master of public health for the National Central University in China. After this in the same year, Dr. Chan arrived in the U.S.A.

Since then he has been a resident physician in different sanatoriums both in the U.S.A. and Canada.

During this time he visited many chest clinics in North America and participated in a number of post graduate courses in chest diseases. In November, 1946, he received his qualifications as a Fellow of The American College of Chest Physicians.

At present Dr. Chan is a registered physician of Prince Edward Island.

Dr. Chan, in his address to the Rotary Club, described the way of life in China in such fields as education, industry, agriculture, transportation, politics, language, religion and customs at birth, marriage and death.

He described the difficulties and obstacles of those who seek to raise the Chinese standard of education for the approximately 450 million Chinese people. These difficulties include lack of centralized education, the many different Chinese dialects, the wars within and without that have caused turmoil and unsettled conditions.

He said that teachers and schools available in China are by no means adequate to handle the large numbers who seek education. At one time the government introduced compulsory school attendance but because of the lack of teachers the large number of school children and the vastness of the country the government found it impossible to enforce the law.

He said that the vast majority do not understand the difference between democracy and communism and said that talk about human rights, freedom of speech, etc. are not understood by most of the Chinese particularly in the rural areas.

He said that many of the student graduates are a loss to China for they must go to study in post graduate work and if they return they have not the research and technical facilities that are so readily available in Canada. He said that little or no heavy industry, as we know it, exists in China because they do not have trained technicians to run them and would have to employ technical skill and capital from abroad.

Agriculture, although the number one industry, still employs methods in use thousands of years ago.

Dr. Chan said that railways run chiefly between the key cities and long the coast and because of transportation problems it is difficult to travel between the Chinese provinces, which, by our standards, seem isolated.

In China, he said, there is no birth registration and as a result many people do not know when or where they were born. He described the feasting that occurs at the time of birthdays, marriages and death, and he spoke of the contrast in our entertainment, sport, and way of life as compared with the slower tempo of life in China where the people meet in tea shops and spend hours talking with each other. -S

Squadron Of Sabre Jets Arrives At S'ide Airport

Travelling at a speed in excess of 600 miles per hour, a squadron of 12 R. C. A. F. F-86 Sabre jet aircraft arrived over Summerside at 4 p. m. yesterday, having flown from their base at Bagotville, P.Q. more than 300 air miles from Summerside in only 33 minutes flying time.

These 12 aircraft, described as the world's fastest jet planes, and said to have a flying speed of 670 miles per hour, landed at the Summerside R. C. A. F. station shortly after 4 p. m., beginning a four-week tour of Eastern Canada, which will include fly pasts over most of the major cities and towns, and static displays which, for the first time, will be open to the public at Summerside, P. E. I.; Moncton, N. B.; and Halifax, N. S.

These exhibits will show the fighter pilots and their equipment and will allow the citizens to observe the trim aircraft first and Weather permitting, these jets will make flights on Wednesday morning over Charlottetown at 9:25 a. m., and over Summerside at 9:55 a. m., at a height of about 400 feet.

Public Inspection
The squadron will later land again at R. C. A. F. Station Summerside and will be available for inspection by the public from 2:30 to 5:00 p. m., standard time.

This exhibit will have the 12 jets lined up on the runway, and will show the fighter pilots and their equipment. This will allow the public to observe first hand Canada's first line jet fighter. "Cat-walks" will be used to permit the public a "walk-over" view, and pilots and ground crew will be on hand to answer questions and to assist the citizens in observing the trim aircraft.

During the afternoon inspection by the public, three of the aircraft will do a flying display above the station and it is hoped to have the pilots radio contact with the station carried over a public address system so that the visiting public will know what the pilot is doing while he is in the air.

About ten minutes after the jets had landed at Summerside, Squadron Leader Lindsay, 28, officer commanding 413 Fighter Squadron, who is in command of the visiting jet squadron, held a press conference. He said the Sabres are the same type of aircraft being used in Korea, and with the R. C. A. F.'s No. 1 Fighter Wing in England.

He said these single seater, eight-ton fighters are armed with six 50-caliber machine guns, which are loaded at all times. Every plane in the squadron is ready for immediate action at a moment's notice if ever our country were threatened by any invader.

Are Canadian-Built
He said that the Sabres all are Canadian-built, and are powered by a U. S. built jet engine with a rated thrust of 5000 lbs., and have a ceiling of over 40,000 feet.

He said that this Summerside visit will mark the first time the Sabres have ever been displayed in public.

A North Star R. C. A. F. transport plane has arrived on the station with a maintenance party of nine officers and 25 other ranks, to handle the servicing and to bring here the necessary ground handling equipment.

Engineers, which are required to start these aircraft, were also brought in yesterday.

Included in the 12 planes is one T-32 jet training plane which will also be on display.

S/L Lindsay, an instructor on the Summerside station in 1941, said the first Sabre jet was received by the R. C. A. F. less than a year ago.

If weather conditions are so unfavorable on Wednesday, as to necessitate the cancellation of the flights over Charlottetown and Summerside, the ground display will still be held at the Summerside station.

He said the jets would not be landing at Charlottetown because he understood the runways were not suitable.

The Sabres landed in Summerside a day previous to their expected arrival, due to very unfavorable flying weather being indicated for today.

ETERNAL FLOW
The water pouring over Niagara Falls comes from a drainage basin covering a quarter of a million square miles.
