

St. Laurent Reports To Commons On Trip To U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday he told President Eisenhower last month about concern in Canada that the influx of United States capital might prejudice Canadian control of this country's economic development.

He informed the Commons that he emphasized to the U.S. leader the importance of a better balance of trade between Canada and the United States.

Mr. St. Laurent was reporting on his trip two weeks ago to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., as the House convened after the Easter recess.

"I referred to the existing unfavorable balance in our visible trade," he said.

"I mentioned that the compensation or correction of this imbalance by capital movements occasionally was the cause of some concern in this country, lest the control of our economic development, which should remain in Canadian hands, might be prejudiced thereby."

Mr. St. Laurent, who met with Mr. Eisenhower and President Ruiz Cortines of Mexico March 26-27, reported that no decisions were reached. He indicated the talks covered a wide range of subjects.

Other points mentioned by the prime minister:

1. There was no "disagreement" over the Canadian and U.S. attitudes toward diplomatic recognition of Red China. Nothing was said to suggest any change in the Canadian position of non-recognition.

The meeting took note, however, that recognition of the Peiping regime by many other countries had created a problem as to Chinese representation at the United Nations.

That problem might grow more acute.

2. "Considerable discussion" about the Middle East brought agreement that all possible steps to reduce tension should be taken but that peace in the area could only be secured by an agreed political settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

3. No firm conclusions could be drawn now about the long-range importance of recent developments within Russia's Communist party. But they would warrant any relaxation by the West in its defenses.

4. Mr. St. Laurent suggested a Canada-U.S. conference on the best use of hydro power in rivers crossing the international boundary.

This was left to further discussion between Canada's external affairs department and the U.S. state department.

5. Mr. St. Laurent explained the federal budget provision for a 20-per-cent tax on advertising in special Canadian editions of U.S. magazines. He hopes this would lessen U.S. concern over it.

6. Mr. St. Laurent expressed the view that the United Nations should be brought into the picture more in the handling of economic assistance to underdeveloped countries, to help remove any suspicion of ulterior motives from the assisting countries.

TRANSMISSION

The disease is transmitted by means of feed, water, litter and soil that have become contaminated with the droppings of infected birds. The organisms can be carried considerable distances in running water, or on dust, shoes, utensils, sacks, or other articles. Infection may also be brought in by new birds, rats, mice, wild birds, flies or other insects. An immune adult bird, harbouring the parasite in its intestinal tract, can readily infect susceptible chickens if allowed to run with them. It has never been demonstrated that the parasite may be included in the egg at the time it is formed, and although the egg shell could become contaminated on its way out of the vent, conclusive evidence that this is a means of spreading the disease is lacking. In an outbreak of coccidiosis the parasites (oocysts) are most numerous under perches, brooding canopies, and in and around drinking fountains and feed hoppers.

When passed in the droppings the oocysts are not infective, and require about 48 hours under favourable conditions of moisture and warmth to develop into the infective stage. If these infective oocysts are swallowed by a susceptible bird they pass through various other stages in the invaded tissues, during which time the damage is done. Reproduction of the parasite takes place, and new oocysts are passed in the droppings sometimes as early as the seventh day after the first ones have been picked up. The ability to reproduce is enormous, since each oocyst is considered capable of producing 900,000 descendants.

REGINA (CP)—The children who piddle in drains during the spring thaw are saving the taxpayer "thousands of dollars," says City Engineer W. D. Hurst. He said children aid his department by clearing drains, making the water clear faster.

Total farm production in Australia has increased by 20 per cent in the last three years.

harbour the parasite, but this does not mean that they are all diseased birds. Coccidia and chickens have lived together in more or less harmonious relationship for countless generations. Unfortunately, the necessary development of highly efficient mass production of chicks has upset the natural balance between the chick and the parasite, and all too frequently the result is disease and death of the chick. If a chick acquires coccidia at intervals and in small numbers while it is very young it reaches the natural balance safely. If it is kept completely away from coccidia until three and one-half or more weeks of age it is highly susceptible. In the former case, it passes through what might be called a "parasitic phase" which is desirable because it produces immunity. In the latter case, it is more likely to pass through a "clinical phase" of coccidiosis which is serious. The problem is to encourage the parasitic phase and prevent the clinical phase.

ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION

At the present time, six men are undergoing training as inseminators at the Central Unit, Fredericton, N.B. Russell Dymont of Tyne Valley and District Club, Albert Mills of the Eastern Kings Club, and Lloyd MacKinnon of the Montague and District Club commenced training last Monday.

It is hoped that all six newly organized Clubs will commence operation in the early part of May. The services of the expected Clubs will be available to any cattle breeder of the Eastern Kings Club, and Lloyd MacKinnon of the Montague and District Club commenced training last Monday.

The approved Flock Meeting that was originally scheduled to be held today in Summerside has been postponed due to road conditions. The date set has been Wednesday, April 25 in Summerside. It is hoped that all interested poultry owners will make an effort to attend this important meeting.

CEMENT FOR COOKING

A famous chef once said, "the egg is the cement which holds together the castles of cookery." It isn't often that people get poetic about the virtues of the humble egg—perhaps it is taken too much for granted. Surveys show that a large portion of Canadians do not consume the minimum of 3-4 eggs per person per week as prescribed in the Canada Food Rules.

An egg is probably the most adaptable food on the market—just as a single solitary egg you can have it soft or hard cooked, fried, poached or scrambled. You can dress it up with cheese, onion, herbs or catchup. You can have it in a soufflé—beef, salmon, cheese or lemon. It is an essential part of French toast, omelets, egg noggs croquettes, scollops and French fried onions.

The delicious world of desserts could not exist without eggs—meringue and custard pies, popovers, dumplings and cakes of all shapes, flavors and sizes.

There really isn't a better buy on the market than eggs—it is an extremely compact source of nutrients. If, when thinking of eggs, you let your imagination run the chef did when he spoke of "Castles of cookery", you'll discover many a health-giving tasty treat.
