

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE WHITLOCK

Whitlock-Nicholson Vows Exchanged At Parkdale

St. Pius X Church was the scene of a fall wedding when Lorna Alice Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus A. Nicholson, Mr. Buchanan, became the bride of George William Whitlock son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker R. Whitlock, Parkdale. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Andrew Mac Donald. The church was decorated with gladioli and carnations, and guest pews were marked with white satin bows and heather. The organist was Mrs. Richard Duffy, who accompanied Frank MacIntyre as the sang appropriate hymns.

Given in marriage by her brother Angus Nicholson, the bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza over taffeta, with bodice of lace, and wore a pearl drop necklace with matching earrings, gift of the groom. Her headpiece was a cluster of organza rosebuds, holding a bouffant illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses.

The maid of honor Elizabeth Nicholson, sister of the bride, wore a pale blue floor length dress of lace over taffeta and carried a bouquet of light pink carnations. Her headpiece was a light blue satin rose with veil attached.

The brides mother chose a cherry red two piece wool suit, with black and white accessories, and corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a cranberry red three piece wool suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the wedding a reception was held at Towers Restaurant. The bride's going away costume was a two piece pink wool suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The couple left on a honeymoon trip through the Maritimes.

ELLEN'S DIARY

A Good Farming Week Has Aided Harvesting

"This evening is all golden, you remember, how surely these years, and humbly growing, add cheer and brightness to days when other flowerings are no more. Pigeons too, our continuing guests, enlivened the surroundings with their short flight. And today, the summer's heron dropped down in the sunshine to fish once more in the stream. A train writes of its passing in dark symbols on the blue far to the north. And hearing the sound clearly you wonder if perhaps, in all its loveliness, this might not be a "pet day."

This was a harvesting week for farmers Island over. The fields called ours to come to the baling of straw, and great loads of bales were brought in to tax facilities for storing. The crop too of mangels was harvested in part, and stored in the cellar. And recently the potatoes, grown on a farm of the name, were also gathered in to a basement there.

This then has been a good week for the farming. And in the shortening autumn days, a busy one. But not so much so that we have neglected to lift eyes to the glory on the hills, or to observe the Thanksgiving Day in act and in heart. Or that we have not had time to pause and welcome gladly a friend. Because as we journey along life's road, with its dips and rises, its twists and turns, we remember that "When good friends walk beside us, On the trails that we must keep, Our burdens seem less heavy, And the hills are not so steep, The weary miles pass swiftly Taken in a joyous stride, And all the world seems brighter When friends walk by our side." Until Monday --- Diary --- Good-night ...

MARY HAWORTH

Husband's Faultfinding Killing Woman's Love

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was in love with my husband when we married eight years ago. Then he started finding fault with me. Soon I was miserable all the time.

After two children and much suffering, I learned to accept the situation. His scathing remarks don't bother me any more, and I live peacefully when he is out of sight.

He enjoys male companionship and has one close friend, whom he sees every day. At parties he likes to compliment the ladies, although never me, of course.

He is a negligent father, never disciplines the children. As for our sex life, he is interested only occasionally, yet he expects me to be instantly responsive; otherwise I'm rejected. Is this the customary character of marriage? Or am I justified in feeling disgusted with my wretched choice of a husband?

O. R. DEAR O. R.: The pattern of ostensible togetherness you describe is not marriage, customary style. Rather it appears to be an arrangement wherein a neurotic immature obscurely homosexually biased male maintains a social pretense of sex normalcy: a situation in which his wife, so-called, is a kind of built-in housekeeper and substitute mother-nurse, in the man's confused striving for ego-security.

As to whether you are justified in deploring your choice of husband, I would say you are so justified, yes. But if you have come to terms with his peculiarly defensive, basically woman-hating domestic performance, sufficiently contentment when he's not around, perhaps the venture isn't a total disaster.

Why don't you translate your brooding self-questioning into positive thinking, aimed at clarifying your opinion of him, and of yourself in relation to him? This you may do by enlisting family relations counselling help, in doing a "depth study", as it were, of your impelling reasons for marrying him and subsequent reasons for abiding by the mesalliance. M. H. DEAR Mary Haworth: I always thought that I lived a pretty secure home though my parents had frequent quarrels.

Now it's got to the point where they are threatening violence; my dad even mentions murder. They have discussed divorce but don't want to break up until I am 18, because due to the economics of divorce they couldn't put me through college. I am 16 now.

They're not religious, so pastoral counsel wouldn't help. And my father wouldn't see a psychiatrist. Mother reads your column. Maybe you can reach her. Please advise. L. S. DEAR L. S.: If your father won't get specialist help, your mother should, even assuming she is blameless and he the troublemaker.

As your father hints of murder, your mother stands urgently in need of professional guidance in dealing foresightedly with the emotional content of the threat. If she values her life, she may have to discard such excess baggage as flaring pride, obstinacy, temper and the like, to survive the worsening storm.

A college education for you is desirable, but not at the risk of murder in the family; and I think you should proclaim that fact to both your parents. M. H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of the Guardian.

Wedding Is Solemnized At Valleyfield

The wedding was solemnized recently at Valleyfield United Church when Catherine Christine, daughter of Mrs. Melville MacLeod and the late Mr. MacLeod, became the bride of Robert Cecil Nicholson, son of Mrs. Vernie Nicholson of Whim Road.

The church was decorated with mixed summer flowers for the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. Russell Burns. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Preston T. Pearson.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, James MacSwain wore a ballerina length gown of satin featuring a fitted bodice, lily point sleeves, and an A-line skirt. Her shoulder-length veil of three tier nylon net flowed from a nylon rose headpiece. Bouquet of red roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Linda MacLeod, who wore a street length dress of yellow nylon, with matching net headpiece, and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations.

Vernon Nicholson was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Lyman Nicholson and Wilfred Nicholson.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. MacLeod chose a two-piece costume of blue linen with matching accessories, and a corsage of white mums.

The groom's mother wore a two-tone blue jersey gown with matching accessories and a white chrysanthemum corsage.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the toast to the bride was proposed by the minister.

On a honeymoon trip through the Maritime provinces, the bride wore a two-piece dress of figured silk crepe with blending accessories.

The young couple are now residing in Whim Road. Out-of-province guests at the wedding included: James MacSwain and sons Carl and Ted, Amherst, N. S.; Lyman Nicholson, Holden, Mass.; and Vernon Nicholson, Barrie, Mass.

The ladies of the Alberton Parish Council of the CWL met at the cottage of Mrs. James Broderick for their August meeting recently. The president, Mrs. Louis Dunn, read the opening prayer. Twenty members responded to roll call. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Howard Foley.

Correspondence included a note of appreciation from Mrs. Mabel O'Brien. All conveners gave satisfactory reports. The CWL lottery of an all wool blanket was being placed in Foley's store where tickets can be purchased.

A number of cook books and date books were distributed among the members and a raffle of $1.00 each. Mrs. Louis Dunn welcomed the ladies to her home for the September meeting.

Refreshments were served by the ladies in charge.

UCW Dinner Pantry Sale At St. Peter's

Mrs. K. E. MacCallum was hostess to the St. Peter's United Church Women last week when 15 members attended. The worship service on the theme "Thanksgiving" was conducted by Mrs. MacCallum, and hymns 589 and 15 were sung.

The president, Mrs. Collin Jackson, conducted the business period. The Ways and Means committee advised the group of the pantry sale and dinner to be held in November.

The Music committee reported that the Thanksgiving service would be held on Sunday, the 9th with special music from the Murray River trio. Plans were made to decorate the church. A letter was read by the president asking for used clothing for the Brunswick St. Mission and it was decided to pack a box. Mr. K. E. MacCallum and Mrs. George Whiteaway will look after the packing of same. It was also decided to send four articles for Christmas gifts as requested by the Port Workers. Mrs. Albert Quigley reported the number of visitations, treats, etc.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Preston MacEwen, when roll call will be an article for the bazaar. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by the catering committee.
