SAD NEWS FROM HALIFAX.

Many Persons Drowned

WHILE WELCOMING A STEAMER.

Searching for the Bodies.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 11.
The town of Dartmouth, opposite Halifax, purchased the ferry steamer Annex 2, in Brooklyn, New York. She arrived at nine o'clock last night. The weather was gloriously fine, and thousands of people crowded the wharf to see her. There is a float eighteen feet long and ten feet wide which drops down on to the end of the ferry boat. This is regulated by a chain. The Annex did not come within three feet of the end of this float. The little passage way was packed with people, and the officers of the boat and chief of police warned the people to "keep off the float," as it would never stand the strain. The people who were excited laughed at the officers and many attempted to jump from the float on to the deck of the boat. A moment later the chain snapped, the float fell twelve feet and from forty to sixty people, packed like sardines, were precipitated into the water. Those at the edge of the flats fell head first and those behind them slid down on top of the more unfortunate ones. The water was twenty-five feet deep at this point and there was less than five feet of space between the piers of the wharf and the side of the wharf the people simply fell into a hole of deep water, and it was certain death for the undermost. The most indescribable confusion prevailed. After recovering from the momentary shock of consternation, the work of rescue commenced. Life preservers were thrown from the Annex. Pieces of wood lying on the wharf were pushed off to the drowning ones, and fully a dozen people, including Alex. Lloyd, James Collins, J. Burbridge, D. Tait, Bill Fawson, and Wm Broadhurst, jumped into the water or climbed down the chains and commenced to bring out those in the water about nearby. Two or three boats were also quickly brought into requisition, while others ran for torches. Twenty-three people were got out all right. It is impossible to correctly estimate the number drowned, as the divers did not get to work till midnight, and the strong current running doubtless carried many bodies under the boat and out into the harbor. Four bodies were recovered almost immediately, as follows: Peter Boyle, aged 60, who worked in the rope works, and leaves a large family; Ella Sinnott, aged 17, daughter of Michael Sinnott; John Bowdrie, aged 8, (colored); Bessie Foster, aged 22, sister of Judge of Probate Foster. Grappling for the bodies will continue all night. The tragedy has caused great excitement on both sides of the harbor.

Ottawa Notes.

OTTAWA, July 11.
Middleton's valedictory was issued to-day. He says his sole object has been the welfare and well-doing of the militia forces.
Three members of the Ottawa field Battery appeared in the police court to-day for disobeying orders.
The system of running farmers' excursions to the Central Experimental Farm was inaugurated to-day. Fifty farmers arrived to-day.
Congratulatory messages passed between the mayors of Ottawa and Hamilton, Bermuda, to-day, on the completion of the cable.
A deputation of soap manufacturers waited on the Minister of Customs and asked that soap grease be placed on the free list, but without restrictions. They say the qualifying word "rough" makes the concession of no use to them.

Personal.

Mr. H. W. Anderson, of Charlottetown, has our thanks for the copy of the supplement to the Belfast (Ireland) Weekly News, containing the sermon preached before King Wm. in 1690, which we publish in this issue.—New Glasgow Indicator.
WOMAN'S FICKLENESS.—Mrs. Emery, who was connected with the Davis tragedy, was married to a farmer named Gray, living near Roxborough, on Saturday last, just eight days after Peter Davis' execution at Bellefleur, says a recent despatch from the latter place. When Davis was arrested for the murder of her husband, Mrs. Emery declared that she could not live without him, and followed the prisoner to Bellefleur. While he was in jail, however, she met and fell in love with the Roxborough man and allowed Davis to die without a sigh.
