Weather Proves Ideal For Wood Sawing Task

We spread the supper-cloth on the table and came to a window when we noticed the sunbeams that had brightened this afternoon, the kitchen, had now been withdrawn. . . Came, as it happened, to watch the sunset. More southward than actually west the flames burn at this season-high and wide then and in the brilliant shades we love. . .

MARY HAWORTH

Diligent Wife Worries About Wastrel Husband

Dear Mary Haworth: My husband loves horses, cards, alcohol, being out with the boys all night and, in general, just plain living-it-up, to use his phrase. He hates responsibility of any kind: 9-to-5 jobs, bills, grass cutting, whatever interferes with his wish to do exactly as he pleases.

Swing And Sway Is Jewel Trend For Season

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — French costume jewelry this winter echoes the fluidity of the season's flared skirts which ripple and dance as the wearer moves.

As fashion has banished stiff linings and inner construction, costume jewelry has abandoned rigid settings.

New necklaces are worked in cascades of supple fringe which sway like a hula dancer's skirt. Chandelier earrings swing like the pendulum of a clock.

Even belts have come to life; and are trimmed with chateau chains which jingle and jangle, audibly announcing that women have waistlines again.

Christian Dior calls these new baubles by such names as "cascade necklaces." They fall in vertical rows of pearl or jeweled fringe worked in graded lengths, or constructed in collarlike and bib effects, which serve as a showcase for long, dangling motifs.

"Swinging clips" suspend streams of shimmering stones mounted on flexible chains, while other pins and brooches are fashioned like giant upholstery tassels which would appear perfectly at home on any Victorian sofa pillow.

GLITTER ABOUNDS

Lanvin - Castillo, Nina Ricci and other leading houses interpret bib collars or triangular, scarf-like necklaces in supple, lightweight settings studded with glittering stones.

Lapel pins with either figurative or abstract designs show a similar trend toward mobility. Clips shaped like flowers have stems made of coiled wire which quiver in motion.

The Countess Zoltowska, one of the leading jewel designers, uses many bevelled stones set at graded levels in dramatic "spotlight" clips. Her enormous earrings cover the entire lobe of the ear, or perhaps brush forward on to the cheek.

The color gamut of stones in midnight and winter hues stresses the dynamic trend of this jewelry "on the move."

All the harsh contrasts of primary colors are gone, in favor of smoky grey, jet, brown, amber, and topaz stones, or milky pearls.

nificance of your defeated attachment to him, you probably will discover that you were wrong in getting involved with him to start, and right in deciding, finally, that married teamwork with him is not in the cards.

Dear Mary Haworth: We are so pleased when you listed the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., in answer to a recent query about adopting needy children.

Nutritional Value Of Eggs Make Them An Essential

FIVE EGGS a week per person is the recommended allowance for good health according to standards set by the U.S. Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

To buy that number of eggs makes a dent in the food allowance. Are they essential? Judge for yourself.

EQUAL MEAT SERVICE Two average-sized eggs approximate an average serving of meat. The white is high in protein; the yolk in fat; there is an impressive group of necessary minerals and a high content of essential vitamins A and D, with smaller amounts of those in the B complex group.

Suppose your family numbers 6 persons and you buy the minimum allowance, 24 dozen eggs a week. Check the market and select grades of eggs, according to usage.

Three grades are usually on sale, A, B and C. Grade A eggs are large and fresh.

Grade B are usually smaller and when broken on a plate the white tends to spread. Use this grade for boiling, poaching, frying, scrambling, omelets or souffles.

USES FOR GRADE C Grade C have been kept longer in cold storage. Use for scrambling, omelets or in cooking when the egg whites are not to be separated.

Eggs can furnish the main protein in any meal.

"Nutritionally right, Madame, but psychologically wrong as far as men are concerned," objected the Chef, "unless the eggs can literally be seen and are combined with bulky substantial foods into 'filling' dishes."

"You have a point there, Chef," I conceded. "I'll cook a substantial entree for you featuring eggs that can be seen, and based on 1 egg per person. I think you'll enjoy it and find it satisfying!"

Here's the menu and entree, man-approved by the Chef. TOMORROW'S DINNER FEATURING EGGS
