Horsemen at Foxboro must be ndering what miracle has anged this horse since he came Prince Edward Island. No ubt it is a fact that, in the st starts he made, he wasn't against the 2.10 or better trotrs that he would meet at Foxro. Anyhow, with Clarkie Smith , in 38 starts in 1958, he was times first, 5 times second, d 5 times third, with winnings $2,250.

WIFU Game At Vancover Involves Double Feature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A double feature is involved in the Western Interprovincial Football Union game at Vancouver tonight when Calgary Stampeders battle British Columbia Lions.

The teams will be fighting for the third, and last, playoff spot in the league. And the game will see a quarterback duel between B.C.'s Randy Duncan and Calgary's Joe Kapp, a repetition of the 1959 Rose Bowl when the two led squads in the biggest United States college game of the year.

Lions have to win to clinch the third-place spot but a tie is as good as a win for Calgary which has the best for - and - against average. Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers already have clinched the top two spots.

Eskimos play their last game against Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina this afternoon. Winnipeg, last year's Canadian champs, fill out the regular schedule against Riders in Winnipeg — the only game Monday night.

Stampeders go into the game at Vancouver as eight-point favorities.

West coast weathermen have forecast rain and possible fog for the game. Football commissioner G. Sydney Halter said Friday he would postpone the game in case of heavy fog. Thursday night Lions called off a practice because of fog.

Lions coach Wayne Robinson has the pre-game blues. To dress 28 men in spite of injuries he'll have to use Chuck Bubuque and Mel Gillett. Bubuque hasn't played a game since the opener when he banged a knee and Gillett hasn't played since last season.

A newcomer to the Lion backfield, Don Gassos, up from the University of British Columbi Thunderbirds, will be at defensive back and fullback Bill Britton will be at safety.

toric futurity is the most prized of all victories by harness horsemen. It has been won by such great horses as: Peter The Great, Peter Volo, Mr. McElwyn, Spencer, Protector, Spencer Scott, Bill Gallon, Victory Scott, Hoot Mon and Star's Pride. Star's Pride is the sire of Diller Hanover. In addition, there have been many famous mares that have won the above stake.

The man that drove Diller Hanover to victory was Ralph Baldwin, a 43-year-old native of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, who, because of the retirement of Two Gaits Farm Stable from competition, is being retained by Castleton Farm to train and race their horses. He, together with Joe O'Brien and Clint Hodgins, are among the very tops of harness racing drivers.

Don't forget Frank Acorn's good race card for this afternoon at the Charlottetown track. Last Saturday's was "a corker," and we believe this one will be just as good.

Gene Conley Is Named NL ComebackPlayer Of Year

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP)—"It makes me feel good all over," tall, beaming Gene Conley said today when he learned he had been voted the National League comeback player of the year.

The 6-foot-8 righthanded pitcher fo Philadelphia Phillies who is a basketball major leaguer as well received 58 of the 168 votes cast in the Baseball Writers Association of America poll.

"When your down and almost counted out with a championship team, how low can you get?" Conley remarked about his 1958 season when he wound up with a 0-6 record with the National League champion Milwaukee Braves. "I knew my arm was still good and I could pitch but I still had to prove it—I guess I have."

Conley won 12 and lost seven while beating every other club in the league from the last place Phils. A broken finger in mid-August prevented him from boosting his mark. He had a 3.00 earned run average.

TRADED IN SPRING

Gene was traded to Philadelphia last spring after he helped Boston Celtics win the National Basketball Association crown.

Conley's nearest rivals in the balloting were two members of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers. Outfielder Wally Moon and Duke Snider received 45 and 22 votes, respectively.

Other players who drew support were Don Newcombe, Gus Bell and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati; Gil Hodges of Los Angeles; Harvey Haddix of Pittsburgh; Gino Cimoli of St. Louis; Ed Mathews and Johnny Logan of Milwaukee and San Francisco's Sam Jones.

Chuck Dressen May Manage -- Braves In '60

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Charles (Chuck) Dressen, who piloted the Brooklyn Dodgers to National League pennants in 1952 and '53, was reported Friday in line to become the new manager of the Milwaukee Braves.

An authoritative source told The Associated Press that Dressen, now a coach with the Dodgers in Los Angeles, will be named today to succeed Fred Haney, who resigned three weeks ago. Executive vice - president Birdie Tebbetts said earlier in the week that a new manager would be selected "by Saturday."

The Braves' official family remained silent Friday, but a news conference was in the works for late this afternoon.

Dressen could not be reached for comment. His wife said on the west coast that he was "out fishing."

Dressen was the choice of Milwaukee owner Lou Perini after Tebbetts himself stood fast in his desire to remain in the front office.

Both Dressen and Tebbetts are of the same baseball breed—fiery and daring. Both are in far contrast to Haney, who played the game cautiously and conservatively.

Dressen, who is 61, is a former National League infielder with an extensive backgound as a manage.

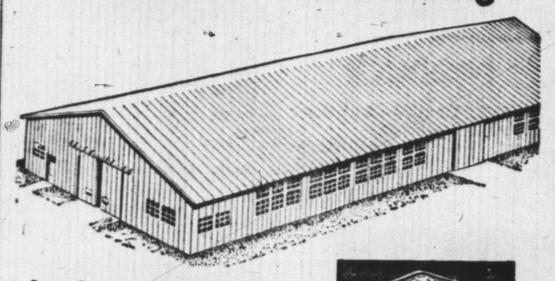
LOOK AT THE CONSTRUCTION and you'll choose a Butler metal building



look at the ridge panel, for example

Butler metal buildings have a one-piece roof ridge that's precision-formed at Butler factories to nest perfectly with Butler roof panels. Result: a streamlined ridge that wind can't damage, water can't penetrate. Stays weather-tight for the life of the building, eliminates unsightly ridge rolls and high maintenance flashing.

The roof ridge is just one example of how Butler dieforms cover panels to exactly fit their function—and give you a metal building that costs less to maintain, lasts longer and actually costs less to own. For facts and figures, call us today.
