Red Glove Revue Will Feature Local Theme

Mrs. B. Earle MacDonald, provincial president of the IOOE, was named co-convent of the "Red Glove Revue" which is being sponsored by the IOOE in Charlottetown and Summerside on October 8, 9, and 10. The co-convent is Mrs. E.M. Phillips.

At a meeting held Wednesday evening, committees were appointed and final plans made for the show, the first of its type ever to be presented in the province.

The "Red Glove Revue" is a variety show in every sense of the word and will include musical, dance and comedy acts; but there is one major difference, the show, while it is being sponsored here by the IOOE will feature only local talent, is being produced and directed by Cargili Productions Ltd.

Miss Heather Clark of Summerside was maid of honor for her sister, Miss Rosalind Leavitt of Saint John, N.B., sister of the groom, and Mrs. David Silliphant of Moncton, N.B., were bridesmaids. There were six young girls of true blue neck and neck; and neckties and long sleeves were features of the tightly fitted bodices. The slim street length skirts had bell-shaped overlengths of matching fabric. Their headpieces of floral clusters and short tulle veils repeated the color of the dresses. They were semi-casual, bougainvillea, white and shrimp shibusa mums, with blending ribbons.

Donald Hopkins of Bridgewater, N.S., was best man. The ushers were William Stein of Halifax, N.S., and Gordon Campbell of Charlottetown, N.B.

An Canadian Legion Home lounge, the bride's mother received wearing a dress of champagne brocade satin. The bride wore a white tulle jacket with elbow length sleeves. She wore matching accessories, dave a pink feather hat, and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Schurman, dressed in a black velvet pillow hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink better times sweetheart roses.

The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Schurman, wore a dress of blue lace over taffeta, matching hat, white accessories and a corsage to white carnations.

Robert Schurman proposed the toast to the bride and was responded to by the groom. A toast to the bride's attendants, proposed by the groom, was responded to by Donald Hopkins.

Red Glove Revue Will Feature Local Theme

of New York City. The show will be based on a local theme and most of the material used will be written especially for the production.

The show will play two nights, October 8 and 9th in Charlottetown and on October 10th will move to Summerside for its final performance. In Summerside, Miss Wanda Wyatt is the co-convent and will, along with members of her committee, be preparing for the production there.

The Cargili company has been producing these shows for various institutions for some years now and in recent years has produced a number of Canadian productions in many parts of Ontario and Quebec. Last year a similar show was produced in Sydney and enjoyed tremendous success.

Various committees were named at Wednesday night's meeting and work arrangements for the show are now in full swing.

The committee conveners are: program, Mrs. Wilfred Farrell and Mrs. Earl Baker; patron, Mrs. C. St. Clair Trainor; tickets, Mrs. H.A. Love; publicity, Mrs. J.A. Bond; talent, Mrs. Arthur Roper; costumes, Mrs. Ronald C. Clark; make-up, Mrs. J.O.C. Campbell; "sultan" concert, Mrs. Donald G. MacMillan.

MARY HAWORTH

Parent's Divorce Retards Emotional Growth Of Son

Dear Mary Haworth: My husband and I, married five years, have three children. The eldest is my husband's by a previous marriage. This boy will be 14 soon and will start his first year in high school.

Ray is a good child: obedient, respectful, courteous; but he shows no interest in anything. He has no friends and is content to sit in the living room. There is an 8-year-old boy next door who follows him around. He argues with this child around his half-brother constantly.

We have tried to spark his interest in church groups, school activities, sports, etc., to no avail. He consented to join a Boy Scout troop two years ago and is still a member. If there Grand for a mascot fan.

ELEN'S DIARY

Black Fleeces Exchanged For Skins Of Grey Yarn

What had taken us to town in the busines of yesterday morning? On a farm like this it is though the country stores, bless them, supply us with many of our needs. There are three occasions when for some of our requirements, more or less urgently needed, we must make the trip to town. Needs that are not met in the store, the personal list, you commenced a few days back, growned out of doors and in, accumulate. The evening fires crackle in the hearth, returning the closed doors and in, accumulate. The evening fires crackle in the hearth, returning the closed doors and in, accumulate. "Please Don't Hurt My Kids!"

Dear Driver:

TODAY MY SON, who is six years old, started to school for the first time. His sister was with him, but she didn't like school and she was crying. I was so nervous that I didn't know what to do. I was so nervous that I didn't know what to do.

LAST NIGHT WE TALKED ABOUT SCHOOL... my son and I. He wondered what the teacher would be like. He was so nervous that I didn't know what to do. I was so nervous that I didn't know what to do.

HE LOOKED SO HELPLESS... around school, with "Jasper" (that's his teddy bear) tucked in his right arm. You see, I'm his daddy. When I saw him, he was so nervous that I didn't know what to do. I was so nervous that I didn't know what to do.

THEY'RE NICE KIDS, both of them. They like to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with them all the time. I have to go to work. Please help me to make their school days so much easier. Please help me to make their school days so much easier.

A PROUD DADDY.
