LAST NIGHT the Queen's County exhibit of Live Stock shipped on board the steamer "Princess of Wales." The animals comprised a splendid stock of horses, cattle and sheep. Many competent judges on the wharf said that it excelled the exhibit sent to Halifax two years ago, and if this be so there is little reason to fear but that it will be just as successful at St. John as on the former occasion at Halifax. The Prince County exhibit will be shipped from the Exhibition grounds at Summerside, and is also described as an excellent one. Messrs. Henry Longworth, and other prominent exhibition men, left this morning per western train for St. John.

CONTROLLING HORSES.—Professor Rhuland, the celebrated controller of the horse, is now in this city, at the Rankin House, and will remain here for some time. The Professor intends to give lessons in his wonderful system of controlling horses, by which the most refractory or mettlesome horse can be controlled, and by which the utmost confidence can be infused into the most timorous animals. Professor Rhuland is now engaged in forming a class, and will open Monday night, in the Citizens Skating Rink. He has had large classes in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and from his numerous certificates, it appears to have been eminently successful. At Springfield, King's Co., N. B., he controlled a stallion for a Mr. Robert Duff, that up to nine years of age had successfully resisted all attempts to saddle him. At Sussex, N. B., a fine mare belonging to William Maca, had never been shod on the hind feet until handled by Professor Rhuland. Both these animals are now kind and tractable. The Professor has numerous certificates from well known gentlemen throughout the Lower Provinces, and we trust that he will meet with the same encouragement and success here as he has done elsewhere.

At Dungannon, on the 26th inst., Thomas Power O'Connor, M. P., for Galway, and Mr. Small, member of Parliament for Wexford, visited Unchacloy Market for the purpose of holding a political meeting. They were unable to speak, however, as a body of Orangemen took possession of the place and compelled them to remain within doors. The Orangemen held a meeting in the principal street. Shouts of "No Home Rule" were raised and cheers for the Queen given. The mob announced their intention of keeping possession of the town until Messrs. O'Connor and Small should withdraw, and declared that they would remain up all night to prevent the Parnellites from erecting a platform. Three thousand Orangemen marched on the 27th and afterwards held an anti-Parnellite meeting. Orange bands played throughout the night, and great excitement prevailed. A troop of lancers, 100 infantry and 300 police officers have been drafted to Dungannon.

The Examination of O'Donnell.

TESTIMONY OF YOUNG CAREY—BOUQUETS SENT TO THE PRISONER.

At the recent examination of O'Donnell at Bow street, Mr. Bland, opening for the Crown, recounted the passage on the steamer of the Carey family and O'Donnell and repeated the details of the murder. He said O'Donnell's assertion that he acted in self-defence would be contradicted by Carey's eldest son, who would swear that his father had no pistol. Mr. Sullivan, M. P., counsel for O'Donnell, complained that a solicitor had been refused access to the prisoner. The magistrate then allowed the prisoner to retire and consult with his solicitor. James Parish and Thos. Jones, employes on the steamer "Melrose" and eye-witnesses of the murder, repeated the testimony they gave at Cape Town. A bullet found upon the floor of the cabin and the pistol taken from O'Donnell were identified. Jones swore that O'Donnell said to Mrs. Carey after the shooting: "Shake hands Mrs. Carey; I did not do it." Carey's son testifies that after witnessing O'Donnell shoot his father he ran to the latter's berth to obtain his revolver, but had not time to give it to him before one of the officers took it. He heard O'Donnell tell his mother "he was sent to do it." This statement created a sensation in Court. O'Donnell's revolver bore the name of the manufacturer, New Haven, Conn. The captain of the "Melrose" testifies that he found an electric machine in the prisoner's luggage; it was thrown overboard Mrs. Carey was called, but was unable to testify to day, owing to fatigue. Marven, Inspector of the Port Elizabeth Police, testified that an extract from a paper was found in O'Donnell's box headed "Irish Revolutionists in America," a supplement to the Freeman's Journal containing a portrait of Carey, and a certificate showing that O'Donnell was an American citizen were also found. Mr. Bland agreed that every facility should be given the prisoner's solicitor during the trial. The court adjourned till Friday. Bouquets and other presents have been sent to Millbank prison for O'Donnell. On leaving the court O'Donnell raised his hat to a crowd of sympathizers, who clapped hands and cheered; a still larger crowd groaned and hissed.

Murder of a Canadian.

A YOUNG MAN FOUND WELTERING IN HIS BLOOD AT DETROIT—NO CLUE TO THE MURDERER.

On Saturday night last, a young Canadian named Cornelius Alles, employed in Prittie & Co.'s drug store, Detroit city, was found lying in his blood on the walk on the east side of the store. The circumstance indicated that a foul murder had been committed. At the hour mentioned the residents of the neighborhood were awakened by a pistol shot. Several persons came out to ascertain the cause, but nothing could be seen in the darkness save a man, who was running away at a rapid rate, and a horse and buggy which was near the scene. The young man was found lying on the walk still alive, and was found to have been shot in the head. He was unable to speak, and died in a few minutes afterwards. His face was covered with blood, which was oozing from a wound on the left side of his head. The police theory of the murder is that Alles was called to fill a prescription and was shot before he reached the store. When Alles was found he was attired in his undershirt, and wore his coat and straw hat. He had only one sock on, which strengthens the theory that he came down stairs in response to a call. The murdered man was about twenty years of age, and had been living in Detroit less than a year. He was a son of Rev. Peter Alles, of Waterloo, Ontario. He was of a quiet disposition and good character. There is no clue as yet to the murderer.

The Pittsburg Regatta.

A Holton despatch of the 26th has the following: The weather to-day was pleasant the water smooth as glass, and the attendance very large. Prior to the races on the programme, Plaisted and Laberger rowed a special half mile race, Laberger winning by three fourths of a length. No official time was taken, but the unofficial time is said to be three minutes. At 2.20, Joseph Kaye, James Taylor and Charles Zirhut started in the first heat of the veteran race, John Bigin being scratched. Kaye led at the start, but was soon passed by Zirhut and Taylor. At the half mile Taylor took the lead and maintained it to the finish; Kaye was second. Time, 24m. 20sec.
In the second trial heat the contestants were Coulter, Powell, Denmark and Faulkner. The latter took the lead at the start and maintained it to the finish, although hard pressed by Coulter, who came in a short half length behind. Time, 23m. 48sec.
The third and last trial heat was hotly contested by Siebert, Luther and McCaffrey, with Scott away to the rear. Siebert came in first, with Luther and McCaffrey bow and bow, half a length behind. Time, 25m. 30sec.
The trial heat in the local race was won by Priddy, time 21m. 10sec. The final heat in the veterans' race was postponed until the 27th. The protest entered by professional oarsmen has been withdrawn, and all will start with the exception of Wiesgerber.

The latest statistics show a remarkable diminution in the population of Germany. Between the 1st December, 1880, and the 6th June, 1882, the number fell from 45,284,061 to 45,113,907. Alsace-Lorraine has suffered a heavy loss in proportion to its numbers, there having been in eighteen months a decrease of 27,000 out of its 1,566,670 inhabitants in 1880.
