Parliamentary Notes.

(Special correspondence of The Examiner.)

In committee of supply on the item of $6 500 for Cape Tormentine harbor, Mr. Ouimet explained that the $13,000 asked for a few days previously, was to complete the payments to the contractors on the work. The present vote was required to complete the wharf and make certain repairs of timber that had been worm-eaten, and to protect the wharf by placing stone on either side. Messrs. Welsh, Davies, Perry and Yeo then occupied some considerable time in ventilating the ferry question between the Capes, and in protesting against the prolonged delays in completing the work on the Island side. A good deal of sparring took place between them and Mr. Josiah Wood, the M. P. for Westmoreland Co., who was accused of getting everything he asked from the Government, while the Island got little or nothing.

Mr. Perry made a long, rambling speech, in which he mixed up binder twine, the West Point, the ship railway, Island potatoes, coal oil, the Tories, Mr. Cockburn, Cascumpec harbor, oats, and Cape Traverse in a most delectable hodge-podge.

Mr. Welsh warned the Government that Cape Tormentine pier is built in a very dangerous place, and was altogether useless for winter navigation, and reminded the House that he had pointed this out years ago.

Mr. Davies said that whoever had recommended the location or construction of the Cape Traverse pier should take little credit to himself. One had only to look at the location to see that a blunder had been made, and while the pier was supposed to have been filled with stone, frozen earth had been dumped in. He considered he would not be far astray in saying that the construction, location and all connected with the Cape Traverse pier were disgraceful. But he would accept the assurance of the Minister of Public Works, that if after a survey and report, it was found practicable to build the necessary addition to the Cape Traverse wharf, the Minister would recommend the necessary expenditure.

On Monday Mr. Charlton introduced his resolution requiring the closing of the Canadian department of the World's Fair on Sunday. Mr. Foster pointed out that the Canadian exhibits are scattered all through the exhibition according to the sections where they belong, and if the United States government decreed Sunday closing they would be closed with all the rest—if on the contrary the United States government permitted opening on Sunday, how was Canada going to screen her exhibits from public view. The Canadian buildings proper were simply offices, which certainly will be closed. Mr. Foster suggested that the matter should be left with the Government who were as solicitous for the proper observance of Sunday as Mr. Charlton, and who would give due weight to the Christian sentiment of the country. Mr. Charlton, however, would have no promises; he wanted a vote of the House, but it was when Mr. Daly moved the adjournment of the debate, he excelled himself. He called Mr. Daly a coward, and said the Government were sneaks, and all the demons in and out of Tartaries were in favor of opening the Fair on Sunday. Mr. Daly's motion carried by 76 to 34, Col. O'Brien voting with Charlton, and three Opposition members voting with Mr. Daly.

Dr. Reid brought forward a motion that cheese produced and manufactured in any foreign country should not be permitted to be exported through Canada unless the name of the country was marked on both the cheese and the box. Dwelling upon the importance of the cheese industry, Dr. Reid said that in Ontario alone it was estimated that there were 800,000 cows, valued at $24,000,000. The pasturage lands were worth $90,000,000. Including the value of the factories and implements, they had $175 000,000 invested in this industry alone, perhaps the largest amount of capital invested in any industry in Canada. He then shewed its enormous growth in the past 20 years. With this immense Canadian export of cheese, the U. S. had in addition, last year, shipped 10,000,000 pounds through Canada to Europe. Canadian cheese averaged 9¾ cents a pound, while American cheese brought only 9 cents. He argued that this American cheese shipped from Canada injured the standing of the Canadian product. It was often labelled Canadian cheese, so as to bring the advanced price. American cheese was inferior and should not be mixed up with Canadian cheese.

Mr. Foster acknowledged the importance of the motion, but there was a difficulty, in that it was proposed to interfere with goods in transit from a foreign country. The Government, however, would give the matter their best consideration.

An Order in Council has been passed prohibiting employes of the Post Office Department holding municipal offices, such as Town Councillors, Public School Trustees, &c. But no order has been made regarding the employes of any other Department of Public Service.

March, 1893.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—The steamer American, which arrived at Halifax on the 14th from New York to load for the West Indies, narrowly escaped going ashore off Roseway, near Barrington, in the dense fog the previous morning. Capt. Hoosley heard a rumbling noise as though from breakers. The vessel was brought to a stop and the lead hove, when it was ascertained that they were in fourteen fathoms of water. The breakers were soon clearly discerned as the fog slowly lifted, and the vessel's course was changed to bring her off the land. At this time the steamer's position was thought to be 100 miles south west of Samboro. Capt. Hoosley says there was a strong current running, which took the vessel out of her course and brought her close to the shore, and the fog was exceedingly dense.

POISONED!

MANY OF THE VICTIMS IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

Some Are Calling Loudly for Help!

A multitude of men and women in the country are now suffering from the effects of poison. Thousands are now in a critical condition, and must go over to the silent majority, unless effective measures are adopted at once to rescue and save them.

Badly ventilated houses, workshops, factories and offices are responsible for almost every case of poisoning. Close confinement in such places during the winter months has produced a harvest of sickness for spring time. Poisoned nerves and poisoned blood are doing a deadly work amongst our people; all ages and classes are suffering. The human system poisoned in this way is in a terrible condition, and demands instant attention.

At this particular season such poisoned systems require a renewer, renovator and poison expeller. Such an agent is found in Paine's Celery Compound, the great lifegiver. This wonderful medicine purifies the blood, tones and strengthens the nerves, and cleanses the whole system. No other remedy known to mankind has accomplished such grand results in the spring season.

Paine's Celery Compound, as a spring medicine, is far elevated above all others now before the public, and is freely prescribed by some of our best physicians.

Cultivation of Small Fruits.

THE STRAWBERRY.

In our last we promised to say something about cultivation and varieties.

We will begin with cultivation. The first condition of success in cultivating the strawberry is to select a well drained plot of land. The soil is the better of being a sandy loam rather than a stiff clay. The strawberry plant will not thrive where its feet are wet continually, and it's sure to winter kill where water gathers and forms ice. After having selected your plot for the strawberry bed, the next thing is to fence it. The enclosure is better to contain just double the amount of land that you intend to plant the first year, and should for convenience in cultivating be long and not too wide.

The fence should be a permanent one along the sides of the lot, and the ends which will be short may be enclosed with hurdle gates substantially put up, but so arranged that they can be easily removed when you want to cultivate with a horse. A rickety fence that will blow down with every puff of wind and let the cattle in to destroy the vines is fatal to the business. I have even seen a flock of sheep destroy effectually quite a large patch of strawberry vines in a few minutes.

The next thing is to cultivate the plot thoroughly, working in enough well rotted manure to make it as rich as land you sow turnips in. Thoroughly cleaning the land at first will make the after cultivation an easy matter. Next mark it off in rows three feet apart, and set your plants about fifteen inches apart in the rows. But in setting the plants it is better to set them in only half the plot at first, and you will not be to so much expense for plants. Then after the vines run out and form new plants, you can set out the other half of the plot the next spring. You can plant potatoes in half the plot the first season. Then when the first half of the plot has borne two crops, the last part set out will be in good bearing condition. You can then plough up the first plot, giving the land a thorough cleaning and manuring, and set it out again with new plants. By this course you will always have one part of the plot in its prime while the other part is being renewed. Never let vines bear the year they are set out; always pick the blossoms off. The plant requires all its strength to establish itself the first year. The spring is the best time to set strawberry plants, say about the first of June. Plants set out in July or August will not be nearly as vigorous or hardy to stand the winter as those set out the latter part of May or the first of August.

The cultivator must be used frequently during the early part of the season. It is best to destroy the first runners that form, so that the plant will become thoroughly rooted—it will then send out stronger runners that will form much more vigorous plants with which to set out your second patch next spring. To save your plants from winter killing cover them with straw or coarse manure after the ground has become frozen hard in the fall. This will prevent them from thawing out and heaving out of the ground.

In procuring your plants you can select earlier and later varieties, and thereby lengthen your strawberry season considerably. Among the older varieties the following are named as the most reliable by Mr. Hilborn, horticulturist at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, named in order of ripening:—Crescent, Nilson, Capt. Jack, Daniel Boone, Sharpless, Manchester, New Dominion. Of the newer varieties, Michel's Early Osceola, Haverland, Miami, Bubach and some others are mentioned by the same authority as worthy of a trial.

I am of the opinion that strawberries might be made a paying crop in this country. After our home market was supplied we could find a good market in the cities of the Eastern States. But even if we do not feel like growing them to sell, every farmer, every citizen, who owns an acre of land, should devote enough of it to growing strawberries to ensure an abundant supply for the wants of his family during the whole year. There is no nicer or more wholesome fruit, either in its fresh state or preserved, than the strawberry. Now is the time to lay your plans for a good, large strawberry patch, and also a good time to order your plants from the nursery, if you cannot get them from some neighbor who is already in the enjoyment of the pleasure and profit to be derived from a well-cultivated strawberry patch.
