HORRIBLE SUICIDE.

Our little town was thrown into an unusual state of excitement on Tuesday by an event which is happily of very rare occurrence in this Island, namely—the apprehension and examination of a man accused of an apparently causeless and cold-blooded murder. The man supposed to have been murdered is a sailor by the name of Bradley, on board the schooner Ambrose, Turnbull, master. This vessel was on Monday night lying at anchor off Dunk River Bridge. It appears that the man—Bradley—was left alone in charge of the schooner. On Tuesday morning about seven or eight o'clock, Mr. Philip Baker went on board and was horrified to find the cabin floor covered with blood. He found an axe, an open razor, and a long sharp knife—the two latter covered with blood in the cabin. On the cabin stairs and the bulwarks of the vessel he saw the stains of blood, but no other traces of the man could be found. Previous to coming on board Mr. Baker met a man, evidently a sailor, in the lane that led to the shore. This man asked him if he knew where Captain Turnbull was, and said that he had been waiting for him. When Mr. Baker saw the dreadful state of things on board the schooner he immediately suspected that the man whom he had met had committed the murder. He therefore with as little delay as possible proceeded to Summerside to have him apprehended. The man suspected of murder was found without the least trouble conversing with his mate on the street. His story is as follows:—He says that he was looking for a berth, and hearing that Capt. Turnbull wanted a hand, he went to Bedeque to see him. That he slept in a house there on Monday night intending in the morning to look for the Captain. He did not get up till pretty late on Tuesday morning, and went immediately on board the schooner, which it seems was lying some distance from the shore. Having got aboard or alongside of her, we are not sure which, he saw a man with a razor in his hand. He asked him if Captain Turnbull was on board, to which the other replied that he was not on board, and that if he did not come soon he would not find him there. He then immediately went ashore. He of course denies having committed the horrible crime laid to his charge. His name is Andrew Benson; he is a foreigner—a Swede, we have heard. We were present at his examination before Harry Green, James Campbell, and Wm. Beairsto, Esqrs. He is not a vicious looking man, and told his story without any hesitation or embarrassment. The body was found to-day. (Wednesday). The throat is cut, but we believe that there are no other marks of violence about his person.

Since the above was written, we learn that a Coroner's Inquest was held before John Wright, Esq., on the body of Bradley, on Wednesday. A Doctor was called in to examine the wound, who said he believed the cut on the throat was not sufficient to cause death for some time. It is believed that the unfortunate fellow—who had been drinking hard for some days previous—inflicted the wound himself and afterwards jumped overboard. There were no other marks on his body but the cut on the throat. The Jury returned a verdict of "Suicide."

☞ In another column will be found the Card of Mr. Simon Fraser's Boarding House. We have much pleasure in recommending it to the traveling public.

☞ A large number of heavy horses have already been shipped from here this spring. The raising of this kind of stock should engage the attention of our farmers.

☞ It is with pleasure that we call the attention of the travelling portion of our readers to Messrs. J. Crawford & Son's advertisement in another column. We can speak experimentally of Crawford's Hotel, and in justice to its proprietors we must say that everything in connection with it was carried on to our entire satisfaction. It is conducted on tee-total principles. Therefore our readers, when in that part of the New Dominion, should enquire for Crawford's Hotel.

Messrs. Crawford & Son's moderation, and their obliging qualities, cannot fail to secure for them a good share of public patronage. We wish them success.

Our neighbors who may wish a good advertising medium should send their cards to the Journal Office.—Com.

Gulf Steamers.—"It never rains but it pours," is an old saying—it appears the remark will hold good with respect to "Gulf Steamers" this season. We are to have Her Majesty, running as often as she can accomplish it, between Toronto and Pictou, the Lady Head and Secret, once a fortnight between Quebec and Pictou, and the Emperor twice a week between Shediac and Newcastle. The commercial and travelling public will be amply accommodated.—Miramichi Gleaner.
