EXCITEMENT IN APPLES.

Very Fancy Prices Paid in the West for Everything in Sight.

Toronto advices report that apples are growing scarcer than ever in that part of the country. It is predicted that it will be difficult to buy a bag of apples in the market before long for the reason that the shippers are buying or have already bought up the supply in the orchards for export. Good now apples were sold on the 21st, in a $3 per bbl, and $2.75 was asked for barrel of a little poorer quality, while for a barrel of windfalls $1.75 was asked. The Canadian winter apples, ex steamship Labrador, were offered for sale in Liverpool, and as it was expected by some of the most sanguine ones that prices would boom as soon as this class of fruit was offered and they did according to Mr. Frank Hamilton's cable received lately which reported sales of late falls at 16s to 21; Greenings, 16s to 18s 6d; Spies, 20s 6d; Kings, 23s to 29s; New York Greening, 16s 9d; Imperials, 22s 6d; Spies, 19s 6d; and Baldwins, 18s.

NEWS NOTES.

A serious riot occurred at Florence, Italy, last week on the occasion of the funeral of a leading Socialist of the name of Vanucci. One gendarme was killed and a number of the rioters were wounded, some of them seriously.

Paul Lozon, a Dover Ont., Township farmer, committed suicide by taking Paris green. Lozon was the defendant in a suit for alimony brought against him by his wife. The case was set for hearing at the Assizes, now in progress at Chatham, and the suicide of Lozon brings it to an abrupt conclusion.

The Madrid Impartial announces the discovery of an extensive system of smuggling arms into Spain for the use of the Carlists. Large quantities of rifles have been secretly imported into Spain, from France through the province of Huesca, in the north of Spain, from which point the arms are consigned to Carlists in the Navarre and Vascongadas provinces. An agent of the Carlists purchased in the month of September 11,000 rifles of the latest pattern from a Belgian manufacturer.

About forty thousand pilgrims a year visit the (supposed) tomb of Eve in a cemetery just outside the walls of Jeddah. Mark Twain's emotion at finding the grave of his relative Adam in a strange land would doubtless have been even greater had he come upon that of Eve. Her tomb by the way, is about seventy-five feet long, so the Arab tradition that Eve was a very tall woman seems to have ground of belief.

The Countess of Annesley is one of the new English society women who have taken a thorough course as a trained nurse. She spent some time in the city of Dublin hospital, and at one time thought seriously of taking up the work professionally.

Miss Mary Ann Crothers, of Philadelphia, who recently celebrated her 104th birthday, claims to be the oldest old maid in the world. Notwithstanding her great age, she is active and vigorous, doing much of the light work in the house every day. She goes upstairs without help, and up to nine years ago walked regularly every Sunday to church a distance of one mile.

In a discussion on salaries in the ministry the New York Observer gives statistics showing that in the Southern Methodist Church the average salary is $473.35 a year. In the Presbyterian denomination the average is $800. In analyzing the cause of this comparatively low average there is no escape from the conclusion that the profession is over crowded. The same crowding that marks every useful occupation is exerting the inevitable effort in the ministry.

POLLY'S DANDER UP.

Inflamed at Sight of an Offensive Bird a Visitor Wore on Her Hat.

A bridal couple who put in several days recently taking in the sights of the capital enjoyed themselves immensely until the day preceding their departure. It then occurred to the bride that she had not called upon "dear Fanny," who had been her chum during her days at the seminary. Now, Fanny was still enjoying single blessedness, and this may have had something to do with the anxiety of the bride to call upon her maiden chum. George demurred feebly, but at last consented to pay a formal call. The bride dressed herself in a fetching gown and placed upon her saucy head a Parisian dream in the way of a hat. The hat was one of those indescribable creations of the milliner's art, a mass of flowers with a bird or two partially concealed in the foliage, so to speak.

The pair went gayly forth and in a hotel coupe were soon at the door of Fanny's residence. Their cards were taken and they were ushered into the drawing room. While awaiting the coming of her friend the bride's attention was attracted to a large cage containing a splendid parrot. She chirruped cooingly to the imprisoned bird and wished she might take him out of his cage and caress him. George remarked that he looked tame enough and suggested the opening of the door of the cage. Suiting action to the word, he opened the door and the released bird calmly walked forth and strutted about, blinking his beady eyes knowingly. The bride, with usual calls of "Polly, pretty Polly!" coaxed the bird toward her, and Polly proceeded to climb up the rounds of the chair upon which the lady was sitting and perched herself upon the arm of the chair. The parrot uttered guttural cries of "Polly, Polly," this word seemingly comprising her entire vocabulary.

The bird accepted the caresses, and apparently all was serene, but without an instant's warning she uttered a scream of rage and flew at the lady's headgear, alighting fairly thereon, and then for a few minutes the air was filled with flying feathers and bits of bowers, while the atmosphere was fractured by screams from the bride and discordant cries from the parrot. George attempted to come to the rescue and had his face badly scratched for his pains. The lady finally shook the bird loose from the flower garden she was wearing upon her hat and made one wild dash for the front door, followed closely by the bridegroom. Once on the pavement, they became somewhat composed and determined to return to their hotel to repair damages. They did not tarry long enough to see "dear Fanny."

The sudden wrath of the bird was evidently caused, George thought upon reflection during calmer moments, by the fact that amid the flowers in his wife's hat there nestled a stuffed Caroline parakeet, which the parrot took to be a real live rival and proceeded forthwith to demolish. The bride is now a thorough convert to the teachings of the Audubon society.—Washington Post.

Heirs Afraid of a Bomb.

By way of illustrating the nervousness which the recent explosions have revived here, a queer adventure which has just befallen the heirs of a house owner may be mentioned. They had met at the dwelling of their departed uncle for the purpose of drawing up an inventory of his effects in company with a lawyer and had nearly completed their task when one of them pulled out of a cupboard a metal box, which was laid on the table and which the man of business was about to open, when one of his nieces cried out in horror: "Don't touch it! Look, that is a fuse." Sure enough, there was a little something popping out of the cover. "It is a bomb!" exclaimed the panic stricken heirs in chorus, and then they proceeded to remark that their deceased relative had been a moody, silent and reserved sort of individual, and thence they inferred that he might possibly have been an anarchist. Two of the nephews had had put on their hats and were on the point of rushing off to the office of the nearest police commissary, when the lawyer, who had been quietly inspecting the box, calmly suggested that it might simply contain some preserved fruit. This theory somewhat reassured the men, but the ladies would have their way. The commissary was sent for, and the mysterious box was soon on its way to the municipal laboratory. It was found to contain a pineapple, the stalk of which had been mis taken for a fuse. So the good old uncle, who had been so gratefully maligned, had not been an anarchist after all.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Early American Bishops.

Before the war for American independence the American Episcopalians, who were connected with the English church, were never suffered to have a bishop among them, but remained under the jurisdiction of the bishop of London. The rite of confirmation was unknown, and every candidate for ordination was obliged to travel to England. Out of 52 candidates who came from America for ordination in 1767 10 died on the voyage. At length, after the United States had been declared independent, Dr. Seabury was ordained bishop of Connecticut by the primus and bishops of Scotland, the prelates of the English church having refused to consecrate him.—London News.

CONSUMPTIVES' HEADS.

A Medical Man Says That as a Rule They Are Flat Sided.

Consumptives have flat sided heads. This interesting discovery has been made by Dr. Mark L. Knapp of New York. His paper on the subject, read before the New York County Medical association, is printed in The Medical Record.

One of the conclusions of Dr. Knapp is that tuberculosis can neither be infectious nor communicable. This is the opinion held by Dr. Shady, editor of The Medical Record, and is the opinion not held by Dr. Wilson and his associates of the New York city board of health.

However this deduction is regarded by medical men generally, Dr. Knapp does not intend to be understood as saying that the fact that a man has a flat sided head (called medically a plano-parietal head) either already has or that he of necessity is doomed to have tuberculosis. That this assumption would be absurd Dr. Knapp shows by saying that centenarians and athletes are recruited from the ranks of the plano-parietals. Nor does he wish to be understood as meaning that tuberculosis modifies the contour of a head which previously had been of a different shape. Dr. Knapp says his statements are substantiated by a few hundred cases, of which 477 were collected from four New York hospitals. In all these cases only four exceptions to the rule were found.

The most important conclusion reached by Dr. Knapp is that the foundation of tuberculosis is laid in early life, and therefore the way to save the adult is to guard the child.

Intelligent people in this day and age almost without exception, protect themselves against small-pox, by vaccination. Consumption kills in a year more people than small-pox, cholera, yellow fever and all known plagues kill in fifty. Tens of thousands of intelligent people recognize that they are threatened by this deadly disease, but take no precautions against it. Consumption approaches its victim step by step. First there is a little "out of sorts" feeling, the digestion isn't just right, the appetite falls off, the liver is inactive, the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food is imperfect, the blood gets impure and the body is improperly nourished. These conditions get worse and worse. The heart through the arterial system is pumping thin, poisonous blood into every organ of the body. The organs that are inherently weakest break down first. Ordinarily the lungs. As the last straw that breaks the camel's back comes a cold, however slight. This, with the accompanying cough, completes the work and an invasion of the germs of consumption follows. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It corrects the conditions that lead up to it. It is the greatest blood-maker and flesh-builder known.

K. C. McLin, Esq., of Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Va., writes: "When I commenced taking your 'Discovery' I was very low with a cough, and at times spit up much blood. I was not able to do the least work, but most of the time was in bed. I was all run-down, very weak, my head was dizzy, and I was extremely despondent. The first bottle I took did not seem to do me much good, but I had faith in it and continued using it until I had taken fifteen bottles, and now I do not look nor feel like the same man I was one year ago. People are astonished, and say, 'well, last year this time I would not have thought that you would be living now.' I can thankfully say I am entirely cured of a disease which, but for your wonderful 'Discovery,' would have resulted in my death."

The Woman's Relief corps, in national convention at Buffalo, has accomplished a noble work. According to the report made by the national president, Mrs. Agnes Hitt of Indianapolis, "it has endeavored and supports a national relief corps home for the wives and mothers of soldiers and dependent army nurses; it has led in the founding of homes in Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, California, Illinois, Indiana and Missouri; it founded and supports the memorial home in Pennsylvania; it secured legislation for the founding of a home in New York; it secured the legislation that provides government aid to the destitute army nurses; it established industrial training for girls at the Ohio Orphan's home; it has built memorial halls and monuments, and it secured a united movement for patriotic teaching and a flag on every schoolhouse."

An Eccentric Author. Those familiar with Paul de Kocs could guess the nature of the novelist's work by a glance at his dress. When writing a comparatively serious chapter, he always wore a frock coat of military cut and ornamented with frogs. If engaged on lighter work, his costume consisted of a blue flannel dressing gown and an elaborately embroidered smoking cap.
