IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Wife and Mother, Mrs. Harry MacNeill, Beach Point, who departed this life June 17th, 1952.

Sweet are the memories that never fade, Of one we loved but could not save. Always so true, unselfish and kind, Few in this world her equal you'll find. Beautiful life that came to an end, She died as she lived, everyone's friend.

Sadly Missed and Fondly Remembered by Husband, Sons and Daughters.

tion of carpenter is not one that has been singularly blessed? "But the nails!" Just how many have you in that pocket?" we overheard James, who lost many a pound in the same way during his years of younger parenthood without much complaint, ask this evening. A sturdy brown fellow replied with a confident smile: "It doesn't make any difference how many I have; I'm allowed to take as many as I need. Because how," with a puzzled expression, "can anyone expect a fellow to build something without them?" Kit-cats have their eyes open, chicks are thriving, narcissi bloom, and a last lamb arrived; and keeping up "dat ole cycle," a litter of piglets... and best of all at the moment, a chipping sparrow, "a tiny wee thing" has set up housekeeping in a little spruce-embowered nest in a lawn-tree and is hatching three small robin-like eggs. Great days these, on Island farms! Until tomorrow... Diary... Good-night....

portation would be cheerfully provided. However, if she remains hard-hearted and demanding, you and her other friends should simply refuse to be available.

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you have a prescription for falling out of love or winning an old love back? About three months ago I broke off with the boy I loved dearly. I've tried everything to get him back, but he doesn't seem to care for me any more. I'm 17 and he's 18.

ANSWER: The best way to get over a broken romance is substitution. Fill your time, thoughts, and emotions with something else. New friends make the perfect prescription for your trouble. The time you have spent chasing the boy has been completely wasted, and should have been put to better advantage. Nothing is quite as dead as a dead love, and nothing is more exhilarating than a new one.

DEAR MISS DIX: A boy I used to like has fallen in love with a 28-year-old married woman. He says he intends to wait until she is divorced, then marry her, though he is only 17. Everyone has talked to him, but in vain.

ANSWER: Your friends' problem will solve itself, leaving him slightly battered, it's true, but wiser. The lady involved will never divorce her husband to marry the boy, and will, in fact, lose interest in him when someone of greater charm appears upon the scene.

DEAR MISS DIX: One of my closest friends has been receiving anonymous letters containing false statements. These letters are causing a great deal of trouble between him and his family. What can be done to trace them, and what can be done to the person who wrote them?

ANSWER: Your friend can take the letters to the District Attorney's Office, or to a Postal Inspector. It's very difficult to trace anonymous letters, but not impossible.

Contract Bridge

A HOPELESS FINESSE

Theoretically, finesses offer 50-50 opportunities, but there are often the strongest indications that a finesse will fall, and when that is the case the declarer should look to almost any other possibility. Consider this typical illustration:

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

♠	KQ87	♠	K
♥	AQ94	♥	AK876
♦	86	♦	3
♣	783	♣	Q1052
	N		A92
♠	52	♠	4
♥	97	♥	3
♦	43	♦	Q1052
♣	KJ104	♣	A92
	AJ10953
	102
	AJ
	Q86

The bidding:
South West North East
1♠ Pass 3♠ Pass
4♠ Pass Pass Pass

The opening lead of either a diamond or a club would have put declarer in a hopeless position, but West, apparently feeling that the situation was desperate, selected the heart jack in the hope of developing an immediate ruff for himself.

West was not the only pessimist at the table! When South saw the dummy he too felt desperate—so much so, indeed, that the only chance he could see was a successful heart finesse. Accordingly, he played dummy's queen at the first trick. East won and laid down the club ace, watching for his partner's signal, and when West followed suit with the jack, a club continuation beat the contract on the spot.

South's pessimism regarding the heart finesse was well advised, and he should not have taken a chance that had such a remote chance. (West scarcely would have made the jack-lead from K-J-X!) The only hope worth considering was that East could be fooled in the play, and the only way he might be fooled was by South putting up the heart ace, cashing two trumps, then leading the heart four from dummy.

Observe East's dilemma if that is the offense. For all he knows, his partner has the heart ten, and South might well have held a singleton in the suit. If East now goes up with the king, South may ruff and, returning to dummy, collect two heart tricks by dropping West's ten with the queen.

It is true that East may sense the true situation and put in his king, but the chance is at least as good that he will duck dummy's four-spot. Then South is in clover. His own ten winning, he leads a trump to dummy and plays the heart and queen (or nine) through East, establishing dummy's fourth heart and fulfilling the contract.

COBURG, Ont. (CP)—Probably the largest rainbow trout ever caught in Shelter Valley creek was caught by Bill Perry. The fish weighed 6 1-2 pounds, and was 28 inches long. Bill caught it with a lowly worm.

Story Of 105th

the men had been got ready, an order was received from Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, who was then in London, cancelling the draft, as it was Canadian highlanders to send the Battalion to France as a unit.

"The Battalion was then ordered to Witley Camp, Surrey, and left Shorncliffe station in two trains at 1.00 and 1.50 a.m. on 7th November and arrived at Witley Camp shortly after daylight, and was quartered in huts instead of tents.

By Battalion Order No. 308 of 28th November a draft of 60 men to the 25th Nova Scotia Battalion, and a draft of 139 men to the 13th Montreal Highlanders were struck off strength of the Battalion for service in France. By Battalion Order No. 313 of 5th December, a further draft of 120 men was struck off strength for service in France with the 14th Montreal Battalion. "This was more than the beginning of the end, and it was realized that there was no hope of getting to France as a Unit.

Amalgamation Order

"In Battalion Order No. 24 of the 24th January, 1917, the following appeared:-

"The 104th and the 105th, Battalions Canadian Infantry will be amalgamated into one Infantry Battalion with effect 22nd January 1917, and will be designated as the 104th Battalion Canadian Infantry. Commanding Officers concerned will take necessary steps to carry out the amalgamation forthwith. Lt. Col. A.E. Ings, 105th Battalion assumed command of the 104th Battalion, 22nd Jan. 1917." Authority—Routine Order No. 285, dated 23 Jan. 1917.

"Thus the Island Battalion which had both at Valcartier and in England won unstinted praise from inspecting officers, passed out of existence. The remaining personnel being distributed between the 104th Battalion and the 13th New Brunswick Reserve Battalion.

"Although thus separated by the fortunes of war the men of this Island Battalion played their parts to the credit not only of themselves, but to the Province which bred them on the far flung battle line.

"Tonight we have honoured the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice, and of those who have since departed this life.

"Previous to our last re-union on the 21st January 1920, a real effort was made to secure information as to the services of all those who had enlisted in the Battalion. A letter was then addressed to the next of kin of every man who went Overseas, but only 828 of these were returned, which showed that 176 of these had fallen, making the percentage of fatalities over 21%. I fear therefore that more than 200 fell in action or died of wounds.

"The total of killed and wounded was also shown in these incomplete returns as 496—or two out of every three of the men who served in France.

"In remembering those who gave their lives, I will in closing, quote a portion of the inscription on the

Special Notice to Seamen, Shipowners and Operators

By amendments to The Merchant Seamen Compensation Act, 1946, effective June 1, 1953, benefits are increased for seamen injured and dependents of seamen who lose their lives, by reason of an accident arising out of, or in the course of, their employment, on a vessel registered in Canada or chartered by demise by a company operating in Canada. A seaman under the Act is a person employed on a ship engaged in trading on a foreign voyage or on a home trade voyage.

An Injured seaman who is incapacitated for a period of longer than four days is to receive compensation at the rate of 66 2/3% of average earnings previous to the date of accident based on maximum yearly earnings of up to $3,600. Previously an accident was not compensable unless the period of incapacity was at least seven days, and the compensation was based on maximum yearly earnings up to $2,500.

Medical expenses for approved claims and pensions for serious permanent disablement are to be paid as formerly.

Dependents Benefits

In the event of the death of a seaman, a dependent widow shall be paid a monthly pension of $50, plus $15, per month for each dependent child. These rates were formerly $45, and $10. Where the dependents are children only, a monthly pension of $25, per child shall be paid instead of $20, per month as formerly. The allowance for the burial expenses of a deceased seaman has been increased from $125, to $200.

Employer Responsibility

There has been no change in the responsibility of the employer to carry out provisions of the Act and specifically—

- To report to the Merchant Seamen Compensation Board at Ottawa the occurrence of an accident involving compensation within 60 days of its happening;
- To pay compensation in the manner and to the extent provided by the Act except where the accident is attributable solely to the serious and wilful misconduct of the employee and unless the injury results in death or serious disablement;
- To provide to the employee entitled to compensation such medical, surgical and dental aid, and hospital and skilled nursing services; also such artificial member or members and apparatus and dental appliances as may be necessary as a result of the injury;
- To cover by insurance or other means satisfactory to the Merchant Seamen Compensation Board, the risks of compensation arising under the Act.

Seamen whose employers have been protected under one of the provincial Workmen's Compensation Acts are not eligible for the benefits of The Merchant Seamen Compensation Act. It is important, however, for each seaman when injured immediately to notify the Officer-in-Charge whose duty it will be to secure medical attention and fill out the required reporting forms either for the Merchant Seamen Compensation Board or a provincial Board.
