

British Railroad Workers Win New Wage Agreement

By IAN MCEWAN
 LONDON (Reuters) British railroad workers won a new wage deal Friday less than 12 hours after they called off an impending national strike.

Union leaders said the first part of the wage settlement reached in talks with the British transport commission, managers of the state-owned system, would benefit 60,000 of the lowest paid workers. More than 400,000 workers are involved in the demands.

The strike was due to start Sunday midnight. But after hours of talks, the National Union of Railwaymen suspended the strike threat late Thursday night. The new increases will cost the commission £1,000,000 a year.

Under part of the plan announced Friday, porters and other starting grades get six shillings a week more. It brings their basic pay in the first year up to £8, 3s a week, and to £8, 6s a week in the second year.

Track sections will get £8, 18s a week—five shillings more—in the first year.

EFFECTIVE MONDAY
 Sir Brian Robertson, commission chairman, told reporters the new rates will be effective from next Monday and any further increases will be retroactive to the same day.

The present basic minimum of £6, 3s a week is four shillings less than the figure asked by the union. Union negotiators said, Robertson proposed that the new rates should be accepted Friday in order to fix a base rate on which a wage structure could be built. Machinery should be set up to deal with other grades and rates immediately, they said.

The negotiations do not concern locomotive engineers, firemen and staff clerks, who are covered by separate agreements.

The NUR called off the strike after assurances that the transport commission would do business "urgently and without haggling."

Meanwhile, Transport Union leaders Friday accepted increased wage rates costing employers about £2,700,000 a year for 100,000 provincial busmen employed by private concerns.

The new minimum rates are £7, 7s for drivers, £7, 3s for conductors and £6, 1s for semi-skilled workers.

U.S. Navy Icebreaker Sails On Voyage To Antarctica

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (Reuters)
 The Atka, a United States navy icebreaker, shaped like a watermelon, bravely set sail due south Friday for a scientific voyage to Antarctica.

The 14 scientists and 250 officers and men aboard have four objectives:

1. They will test new equipment which can be used by scientists during a major international geophysical research program in 1957-1958.
2. They will investigate the site where Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd set up Little America. No one knows whether the carefully planned camp last visited by Byrd in 1947 still exists, or whether the grinding pressure of masses of ice has pushed it into the sea.
3. They will do some exploring. They hope to locate mountains, which have been distantly sighted in the past, believed to be higher than the highest in the European Alps.
4. They will study cosmic rays, take electronic evaluations and study ocean life and whether conditions.

The expedition will leave the Antarctic in March, calling at Buenos Aires on its way back to Boston, which it left Dec. 1.

The tubby little Atka has three helicopters aboard to help spot a path for the ship through ice masses and scout out possible sites for weather stations during the two months the expedition will be on the ice-covered continent.

The 1957-1958 program will be aided by the first regular airlift to Antarctica. Four-engine cargo and passenger planes will fly regularly from New Zealand to an airstrip slated to be built on the ice.

Income Tax T-1 Forms Revised

OTTAWA (CP) — Income tax forms this year embody a new way of showing deductions for dependent children.

The E-1 forms now available at post offices across the country set aside space for taxpayers to list each child and the deducting tax credit. The deductions for children then are totalled.

On the old form the total deductions were listed first and the number of children listed elsewhere.

Income tax officials said the new way will be simpler and more easily understood by taxpayers.

The forms also outline whether a taxpayer may claim $400 or $150 for children. The lower figure is for those receiving family allowances which aren't available to some new arrivals to Canada.

Officials said this probably will not affect more than one per cent of all taxpayers.

Miss Audrey Gunn, nurse's Aid at the Charlottetown Hospital, spent New Year's as guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gunn, Savage Harbour.

The many young friends of Brenton Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Murphy, Savage Harbour, will be sorry to learn of his present illness. All join in the hope that this popular young chap will make a speedy recovery and be able to resume his studies.

Miss Mullins, daughter of Mr. Mrs. Daniel Mullins, Mt. Stewart, has returned to her studies at Notre Dame Academy, Charlottetown.

Rev. Father George MacDonald of the staff of St. Dunstan's University has taken over the duties of parish priest at St. Andrew's, during the illness of the regular pastor, Rev. Father George MacCormack.

Mr. A. B. McConnell has resumed his duties as teacher at Savage Harbour after spending the holidays at his home in Georgetown.

The many friends of George Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Savage Harbour, are sorry to learn that he is ill. All hope that George will make a speedy recovery so that he can be with them again at school.

The first grades of Savage Harbour School made their second visit to Dr. Reddin's Dental Parlors at Mt. Stewart on Tuesday, January 4th. As they returned to their classes the first grade of pupils suffering from how terrible an instrument that old drill is. Rather they were proudly displaying the pictures they had colored. Mrs. Reddin having supplied the outlined.

In the not too distant future the parish of St. Andrew's will have a choir that will be the envy of many parishes, that is if regular attendance at practise and competent training can produce such. The Rev. Father Gallant, now of Charlottetown, but formerly parish priest at Vernon River, journeys every Sunday to St. Andrew's to lead his gifts and talents to train the talented young people of the parish to be a worthwhile choir. Already the results of his efforts are noteworthy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred MacDonald and family of St. Andrew's have moved to Mt. Stewart, where in future they will reside. Some months ago Mr. MacDonald bought the residence of the late John A. MacAulay and since then has come a vast amount of improvement to it. Mr. MacDonald is a section man with the C.N.R., at Mt. Stewart, and is an outstanding citizen. The MacDonald family would be a valuable asset to any community.

Too often in the joy of the festive season, we are totally unmindful of rather unappreciative of the efforts of many people whose work added so greatly to that joy. With this thought we are reminded of the Post Office staff at Mt. Stewart, who did such a magnificent job and never lost their smiles. The thanks of the communities surrounding Mt. Stewart are extended to the general manager, Mrs. Bertram MacDonald and her able assistant, Mrs. Cyrene MacIntyre. The ever pleasant, Ernie Affleck, our local mail driver was always on the job with his smile that in itself seemed to inspire the right spirit.

Workmen from the Department of Highways have been employed for the past few days in attempt to make the impossible possible by having the Savage Harbour Road passable. A composition of brick-clay gravel and sand is being hauled from the big hill and spread over the road. The following were doing the work: Joseph MacDonald in charge of the loader; Bill Kaiser the maintainer, Ernie White; Milton Dollar and Arthur MacLeod, dump trucks. Mr. Smith of Mt. Stewart handled the bull dozer while Mr. William Gunn of Savage Harbour supervised the work.

To Bless Bread In Old Ceremony

QUEBEC (CP) — About 250,000 tiny cylinders of bread will be blessed Sunday in a centuries-old ceremony at Notre Dame des Victoires (Our Lady of Victories) church on the Quebec waterfront. No one will ever eat them.

Sunday is the Roman Catholic feast of St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris. Baking and blessing of the little loaves recalls the legend that through the miraculous intercession of St. Genevieve, the people of Paris were fed in 431 A. D. when the city was besieged by the Franks under Clovis.

The ceremony at Notre Dame des Victoires has been re-enacted annually since 1638, the year the church was built.

OBJECTS OF PIETY
 Over the years the bread loaves — no bigger than the tip of a man's finger — have taken on more meaning than they once had. They are no longer eaten, but carried around as objects of piety.

Tradition has it that anyone carrying the bread will never go broke. Bachelors and spinsters carrying it are assured of marriage in a short time. Married women will be blessed with children.

Each year thousands of Quebecers file down the black iron stairs that lead from uptown to the church below the cliffs. Some come with bread they have made themselves and get it blessed. Others just to take home some blessed bread.

LOSE TOUCH WITH FIELDS IN HUNGARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department said Friday it has lost touch with Noel and Herta Field in Budapest and got only a "rumor" in trying to reach them again.

The Budapest press and radio last Christmas Eve reported they had been granted asylum at their request. Official U. S. efforts to check on these reports have been unavailing.

Begin Installing Ice Plant In Montague Curling Rink

"The installation of the new artificial ice plant at the Montague Curling Rink is proceeding rapidly. The contract was given to the Canadian Ice Machine Co. Ltd., Halifax, and the present job is under the direction of Mr. Lou La Rose and Mr. Bruce Woodcock.

During the past week the crew has completed installing the 25 H. P. diesel engine, compressor and condenser. The brine tank will be installed shortly and 1400 feet of 3-4 inch pipe will be welded together by Mr. James MacBeth and Mr. George Gosbee.

The operation of the system is similar to that of other freezing plants. It is expected that it will be another two weeks before the work is completed, and another week for ice making before curling will get underway.

At the same time the clubroom is undergoing changes with the installation of observation seats for those who wish to watch the curling. New furniture and lavatories are also being provided.

A new pump has been installed to supply water for the rink. All in all it promises to be an active year for the Montague Curling Club upon the completion of the preliminary work.
