HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace MacNutt of Edmonton, Alberta, and formerly of Darley, arrived on the Island this week, and are being cordially entertained and welcomed back after an absence of 13 years. They are the guests of Mrs. Frank Bearsto and Miss Mary MacNutt, Charlottetown, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. MacNutt of Malpeque.

Mrs. Robert Mayhew entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Velma Munn whose marriage to Mr. Ernest Wood is taking place today. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts. Mrs. Roy Boswall read the accompanying verses. The room was attractively arranged for the occasion with bouquets of mixed flowers and gladioli. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Roy Creed and Mrs. Roy Boswall.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Henderson, Reading, Mass., are spending a short holiday the guests of Mrs. Henderson's brother and sister-in-law, Lieutenant Col. F. B. Conrad and Mrs. Conrad.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Carl Thomson of Natick, Mass., arrived last Friday to spend the weekend with Mrs. Muriel Babb of Bothay Harbor, Maine. During the weekend, Mr. Thomson was taken suddenly ill and is now a patient at St. Andrew's Hospital, Bothay Harbor. Mrs. Thomson will remain with Mrs. Babb while her husband is recovering in hospital.

ELLEN'S DIARY

James Renders Assistance To Ladies In Distress

Strange we reflect, are the workings of Fate. By a hair's breadth it sometimes seems, we may miss or meet with disaster. By choosing at a whim a certain turn at a crossroad we may miss or meet a high adventure, which will change the course of our lives. Only a gesture, a rambling thought, a word, and how momentous these may be. And what inconsequential items may contribute to destiny's plans. If our spice cupboard had not been bare of the celery seed, needed for pickles already soaking in an icy brine, James surely would not have been privileged to render aid today to a pair of ladies in distress.

"Celery seed, Ellen?" he had repeated our wish to get some, a little absent-mindedly at dinner, because good farmer that he is and well experienced in its ways, he is more or less at sea when it comes to the work indoors.

"Couldn't you put in something else?"

But "great grass this summer" he offered presently the little truck as responsive to his touch as was the old mare of once, when he eased her across the loose-way bridge and entered the road to the store. "So much damp you know... I never saw... cattle do better."

It was over the hilltop and beyond by the grove, just on this side of what we elder folk of the road call "Kristy's Pond" we sighted the motionless car. Our machine came to a neighborly halt near by.

"Having some engine trouble?" James queried with a friendly smile.

The two women who had been peering intently beneath the hood of their machine looked up.

"Yes," one replied with an anxious expression. "We came up the hill fine and along the level back there. And then suddenly she stopped—just like that!"

"Got plenty of gas?" James inquired alighting.

"Oh yes, there's plenty gas," one replied.

"Well, I'm not much of a mechanic, but I can have a look," James stid modestly. The three proceeded to look into its innards, he testing here and there... and eternally feminine as we are, one was dressed in a fetching autumn suit—brown with a blouse more golden than tan, and the matchy smart hat had a pheasant's tip of feather through the brim. The other's suit was a darkish tartan, her white blouse frilly and a black velvet cap was set on the crown of her dark head.

"There!" James nodded, "it's this wire that's giving you the trouble. See—it's barely caught. She's not getting her spark. Ellen get me that. Oh never mind I'll come and get something myself to right it."

"Isn't it fortunate for you happened by?" one smiled happily to him when soon the engine beat out its familiar tune.

"I'm sure we're extremely grateful," the other agreed. "You see we're on our way to catch the boat for home—and not too much time to spare after."

"Then good-luck, and safe homing!" James said. "You never know what's ahead, when you

Eleanor Ruby MacArthur Is Bride Of Alvin C. MacNeill

At one of the prettiest of the summer weddings, Eleanor Ruby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacArthur, Kensington, and Alvin Chester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne MacNeill, Cavendish, were united in holy wedlock, on August 22th, 1959, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Baskets of gladioli and mixed flowers decorated the Kensington Presbyterian Church where the sacred vows were spoken before the Rev. E. H. Bean, B.A., B.H., B.D., in a double ring ceremony. The guest pews were marked with sweet peas and fern tied with white ribbon.

The organist, Mrs. E. I. Jay, played the nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Elizabeth Brooks. Miss Brooks sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor length gown of white crystalite over satin, trimmed with iridescent sequins and featured a long fitted bodice, long sleeves with points over the hands. The tulle yoke was bordered with crystalite applique and a stand-up collar of crystalite. The long waist line was accented with two large bows over the hips. Her headpiece of iridescent sequins was held in place by a chapel length veil of tulle illusion with scalloped edge. Her bouquet was a full crescent of red roses.

Mr. Eric MacNeill, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Gerald Millar and Mr. Errol Buntain. The bride's mother chose a dress and duster of aqua flowered silk shantung with white accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations. The groom's matron of honor for her sister, wearing a street-length gown of coral colored crystal charm with very full skirt, and wide pleated sash. A matching miniature picture hat and mitts, and a nosegay of white 'mums with silver and white streamers completed her charming ensemble.

The bridesmaids, Miss Shirley Jardine and Miss Marjorie MacArthur sister of the bride, wore costumes similar to that of the matron of honor in soft yellow and misty green. They carried nosegays of bronze 'mums and yellow 'mums.

Thirteen members responded to roll call by telling "My favourite childhood book." After the reading of the minutes the treasurer's report was heard and a substantial balance remains in the funds. Following discussion, it was decided to dispense with the school committee.

The convener of the hall committee, reported the hall rented several times during the month. No bookings were taken during July and August for catering and we begin the season's work by having a number of wedding receptions in the near future; also a turkey dinner and bazaar in October.

Mrs. Ruby Hudson gave an interesting report of Flower Sunday at the Sanatorium when bouquets were presented to each adult patient, balloons to the children, and a special gift to a patient from Parkdale.

Refreshment committee for October will be: Jennie Douglas; Flo Clay, Louise Frizell, Iva Found. Meeting closed with the National Anthem.

CANCER RESEARCH
More than $76,000,000 was spent during 1958 in the U.S. to support the research of 5,500 scientists on cancer.

CORNWALL W.I.

Mrs. Harold Donahue, entertained for the August meeting of the Cornwall W.I. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Waldon Lowther presided.

The meeting opened with the Ode, followed by the Creed. Roll call was answered by thirteen members, naming a place, you would like to go. There were three visitors present. The reports were heard from the different committees, and three thank you cards were received.

Mrs. Hazen Howard gave a very interesting report on the Institute Convention. Roll call for next month to be answered with your favorite soup recipe.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Frizell. Lunch committee members are Mrs. Earl Lowther, Mrs. Danie Gass, Mrs. Gordon MacMillan, and Mrs. Harold Donahue.

Mrs. Hazen Howard and Mrs. Danie Gass are in charge of the entertainment. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and committee, and the meeting closed with the Queen.

IRISHTOWN W.I.

Mrs. Thomas Campbell was hostess to the September W.I. The usual opening exercises were used, followed by the thought for the month, read by Mrs. Harold MacLeod. Nineteen members and one visitor were present. Roll call was responded to by each member displaying a keepsake.

The minutes of the August meeting were approved as read. The library committee reported reviewing the books on hand, listing new ones and sending away for the prices of those chosen.

A gift of $10.00 from Archie Johnstone for additional books for the school library was gratefully accepted.

The quilt which was ordered earlier in the summer was delivered last week. The usual school needs had been purchased.

A letter from the Secretary-treasurer was read acknowledging with the thanks a donation given to the school last month from the W.I. A note of thanks was sent by a member for a treat received during her illness. The new school committee will be Jean Stavert and Thelma Campbell. Sick visitors, Mrs. Hickox, Ruby MacLeod and Gladys Stavert.

A get-well card was signed by all the members who were present to be sent to Mrs. Eva B. Pickering, a former member now in the hospital. The secretary read a letter from Mrs. Findlay advising us of her willingness to make a memorial scroll for our W.I. to be placed in the hall in honor of our deceased members; she also enclosed a sketch of the scroll for our approval which the members agreed was very nice and authorized the secretary to order one made as soon as convenient. Cod liver oil capsules were ordered.

The red cross convener was asked to send for a box of sewing and knitting. The annual letter from the Cultural activities secretary was read. On motion all bills were paid. Collection was $1.40.

The meeting decided we have filled our quota for this year and no canvass will be made for the Cancer society. Mrs. MacLeod was asked to contact the painter about coming to paint the hall as soon as he can.

Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. K. MacLeod. The meeting adjourned with the National Anthem.

For programme, Mrs. Leigh Paynter gave an interesting talk and demonstration on the origin and making of pottery which was much appreciated by all present.
