

COOL, REFRESHING EVENINGS MAKE CAMPING OUT A PLEASURE

PEACEFUL SCENE AS CATTLE WADE IN WILMOT RIVER

Tree spirits take beating

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters) - Baldozers and a flood of concrete are driving the tree spirits of Bangkok into the countryside.

Old trees which, according to superstitious Thais, harbor good and bad spirits are being cut down to make way for new roads and office blocks.

Even the ghosts are leaving because the rambling old mansions which they haunt are being torn down.

Belief in ghosts and spirits is still strong in Thailand, a Buddhist Kingdom which until a few decades ago was little touched by Western civilization. The spirits are known as Phi. In quiet corners of Bangkok and in the backwaters of Louis-sprinkled canals, tree spirits are still revered.

Certain trees are girded with red and gold bunting behind white-washed fences. On small shrines, candles burn beside offerings of food and flowers.

QUELTON BEACH IS ONLY A SHORT DISTANCE FROM USIDE

Parks, beaches in easy reach of Island's western capital

Summerside is a town of several moods, whether it be excitement or gaiety, relaxation and easy living or just plain loafing. It's a pretty town that lies along the shore of Bedeque Bay and is known by many as "the town of trees." It's beautiful parks and playgrounds and the scenic beauty of the surrounding area cannot but impress the visitor.

Summerside's motel, cabin and tourist home accommodations are modern and plentiful and are within a short distance of beaches, playgrounds, a golf course and other forms of entertainment for all ages. Located about three miles from town is a nine hole golf course, soon to be enlarged to 18 holes, as well there are two miniature golf courses and a driving range, all within a short radius of the centre of this fast growing community of 9,000.

The highlight of gaiety and revelry in Summerside comes each year in mid-July when the annual lobster carnival is in full swing. The week is crammed with parades, horse racing, vaudeville, midway excitement and combined with feasting on succulent lobster, a gala carnival spirit prevails. Tourist mingle and enjoy the many attractions.

Within a few minutes drive of the western capital, as Summerside is known, are several lovely parks where campers revel throughout the summer months. These parks are provided with the necessary facilities such as electricity and water, to ensure carefree outdoor living near sandy, warm water beaches that provide delightful days of relaxation and enjoyment for all.

Again not far away are located the famed "Woodleigh Revivicals," the work of master craftsman Colonel E. W. Johnson of Burlington. On the beautiful grounds of Woodleigh the miniature recreations of famous castles, churches and estates have been faithfully reproduced to scale and have attracted thousands of visitors each year who marvel at the excellence of the work done by Col. Johnson.

The surrounding rural area has infinite charm and the hospitality of the people is known far and wide for their prime concern is to make visitors feel welcome and to extend an invitation to come back again.

Visitors will find their "night life" is comprised of an outdoor movie at a drive-in theatre, attending a horse race or a beach party at one of the many lovely beaches. Nights are cool and tourists will find no problem with the heat, as light, refreshing breezes waft inland from Bedeque Bay.
