Uruguay Market

For Seed Potatoes

Uruguay will be in the market this year for about 120,000 crates of the Kaladin and 40,000 crates of the Pontiac variety, or approximately the same amount of certified seed potatoes that was shipped last year, according to W. B. McCulloch, Commercial Secretary for Canada (Agriculture) in Buenos Aires.

Purchases will be made again this year by the Official Seed Distribution Service of the Ministry of Agriculture, Uruguay, and will be awarded on a public tender basis. According to Uruguayan law, each tender must be accompanied by a deposit representing 5 per cent of the value of the tender.

Certified seed potato officials point out that Uruguay prefers the small size seed grade and preference may be given to the tender having the largest percentage of this grade, even though it may not be the lowest quotation.

Potato Blackening Causing Concern

Why potatoes turn dark when cooked is a question that is being asked by consumers in many parts of Canada. For years scientists in different parts of the world have been asking the same question, but so far without much success.

Some of the contributing factors causing potatoes to discolor on cooking are considered, to be temperature, fertilizers, soil, variety and certain complex chemical factors that to date are proving elusive to investigators. They do know, however, that temperature plays some part in increasing or accelerating the production of the factor that eventually causes the blackening in the potato.

Realizing the importance of the problem to the potato growing industry, M. Parks, Associate Horticulturist and Potato Specialist, Central Experimental Farm Ottawa, has set up an extensive series of experiments to study the problem. In addition to these investigations being conducted by the Experimental Farm Service, the problem is also receiving attention by the Fertilizer Advisory Board for Ontario and by other provincial agencies.

DISEASE HITS CLOVES
For the past 150 years the clove industry has been the mainstay of Zanzibar, but of late years it has been threatened by the Sudden Death disease, 500 trees have been killed in the past 12 years. So serious has it become, that reports indicate that the future of the Protectorate seems to be largely dependent on its control.

Grain

WINNIPEG, July 16—(CP)—

Coarse grain prices made recoveries Saturday after showing a weaker tone in early trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The July contracts of both oats and barley still remained lower, but the deferred months posted gains. Early selling was prompted by reports of good rains across the prairies and by declines in United States markets.

Developments in the Korean war influenced buying in late stages and brought about recoveries from the low levels. Rye followed the same pattern as coarse grains, moving lower in early trade then moving up near the close. All contracts here closed higher. Flax was inactive.

No export business was reported today. Class two wheat prices were unchanged from yesterday. Closing quotations: Oats: July 95B; Oct. 85B; Dec. 81.2-A.

Barley: July 1.47 7-8; Oct. 1.21B; Dec. 1.16 7-8.

HAY MOW WARNING

As baled hay weighs four to five times as much as loose hay per cubic foot, care should be taken not to overload the hay mow floor, say officials in the Division of Field Husbandry, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

SPRAYER'S FIELD DAY

Co-operating with the Ontario Department of Agriculture's Crops, Seeds and Weed Branch, a Field Day for custom sprayer operators was recently held at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Weed specialists in the Division of Field Husbandry led discussions on weed control practices and gave demonstrations on different types of spraying equipment.

During the day considerable interest was shown in the new Boom Jet nozzle, capable of distributing a coarse jet over a width of approximately 20 feet and especially suitable for spraying roadsides.

CANADIAN POULTRY ABROAD

Canadian ROP poultry stock is building up quite a reputation abroad, one shipment of Rhode Island Reds from Chilliwack, B. C., having obtained the highest record ever achieved in the 30th Southern Rhodesia Egg Laying Contest.

Foreign buyers now regard Canadian bred poultry with favour because the certified records of performance are kept with great care in this country by the poultry breeders themselves and they are given every encouragement to further improve their flocks by government officials.

SHEARING SCHOOL

A shearing school was held at Oakwood, Ont., for a Boys' Sheep Club and each member sheared a sheep, rolled, tied and packed the fleeces.

Tiny Thief Is Troublesome

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 14—(AP)—The tiny thief of Southampton has done it again. Early this week he squeezed through anti-burglar bars 6 1/4 inches apart to enter a pub.

Last night he broke into a dairy through a skylight. When confronted with bars only 5 3/4 inches apart, police said he used his belt and a grinding machine handle to widen the bars about an inch. He squeezed through.

OXFORD DON GOES BY AIR-TAXI

The modern world impinged dramatically on the ancient University of Oxford recently, when a helicopter landed in Christ Church Meadow to take the Vice-Chancellor to a Torquay banquet. Invited by the Federation of Master Printers, the Vice-Chancellor, Canadian-born Dr. John Lowe, found he had no time to make the 200-mile journey except by air.

Coming just after the helicopter service between London and Birmingham for the British Industries Fair, and just before the inauguration of the world's first regular helicopter service between Liverpool and Cardiff, the Vice-Chancellor's flight pointed the value of the helicopter in a country like the British Isles. He saved some six hours on the double journey as compared with the time he would have taken by rail.

Due to receive an honorary degree in Newcastle 300 miles away in the north of England on the day after the banquet, Dr. Lowe found his air journey so comfortable that he made the trip north by helicopter instead of by rail. He is now in a fair way to becoming known as the "flying Vice-Chancellor", a distinction so far unique in British academic circles.
