

Teacher Training In B.C. Is Sink Or Swim-Program

By MARILYN ARGUE
 OTTAWA (CP)—An unprecedented sink-or-swim program for teacher education in British Columbia was described to the Canadian Teachers Federation.

Addressing a federation seminar, the dean of education at Simon Fraser University said "the student teacher builds the structure" in the course.

Early classroom tests of the student show whether he can make the grade—and whether he really wants to, said Dr. A. R. Mackinnon.

Simon Fraser, B.C.'s one-year-old "instant university," sits on Burnaby Mountain in a Vancouver suburb.

Dr. Mackinnon said each student registers first in regular arts or science courses.

The "professional development" section of the course follows in semesters dividing the year into three four-month periods.

TEACH IMMEDIATELY

In the first semester, students go immediately into classrooms and teach. "We get a quick reading on his potential as a future teacher. And if he doesn't find the resources in himself, this is the time to get out, before emotional and financial involvement prevent withdrawal."

After eight weeks in a school, students spend the remaining eight weeks of the first stage reading at the university.

There are no specific courses—it's self-study and seminars.

In the second stage, students spend a semester as a teacher's assistant, on a plan resembling internship for a medical doctor.

"In this period they can test their ideas under supervision and develop special plans unique to their own personality."

In the last semester, students return to the university, studying any courses they choose, to update their understanding of content, or provide the groundwork for post-graduate work.

Horse Is Due To Vanish In Mounted Police Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—The horse will vanish within six months as a standard part of the training of Royal Canadian Mounted Police recruits, RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan announced.

Equestrian training will be replaced by extra academic instruction and such physical training as isometrics.

The RCMP's famed Musical Ride, which dates back more than 80 years, will not fall victim of the motor-age innovations, the RCMP must reluctantly make, the commissioner said in a statement.

The new policy is "forced by rapidly changing times and conditions" that include a requirement for more academic training in police schools.

"We're still retaining the ride as there will be no change in name of the force," said a spokesman at RCMP headquarters. "No immediate change anyway."

The force also will continue to train ceremonial mounted escorts for such occasions as the governor-general's trips to open Parliament.

The force will retain 500 of its 1,000 horses and maintain a winter course in Ottawa, training 48 men a year in three groups to keep the ride going.

The spokesman said the training change will cut the basic program for recruits at Regina and Ottawa to six months from eight.

The processing rate now is 1,000 recruits a year and the saving in salaries alone from the shorter course would be $700,000.

While equestrian training was invaluable for developing personal courage and self-control, "chances are a man won't even see a horse after his graduation these days," the spokesman said.

Quits U.S. Navy After Four Wars

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—After four wars, Evison Davis, chief boatswain's mate, is getting out of the U.S. Navy at the age of 68.

"It's about time," he said.

When he retires to his home in Muncie, Ind., next November, his plans are simple: "I don't intend to do anything."

Davis, a short 150-pounder with a grey mustache, was born Jan. 26, 1898, in Selma, Ind. At 20, he joined the U.S. Army and served with the 41st Division in France in the First World War as a machine-gunner.

After that war, he was a machine-shop operator and plasterer. He joined the navy in 1943 for the Second World War and served in both the Atlantic and Pacific as a gunner on fleet cargo and supply vessels.

"I was 45 years old when I joined the navy," he recalled during a brief break from his duties here as co-ordinator of service craft on the Da Nang River and bay. "And I went through boot (basic training) camp."

In 1945, he returned to his civilian work again. But along came the Korean War, and he joined the navy again in 1950. He was 52 at the time.

"Then I decided I'd say in."

Inco Boosts Copper Prices

TORONTO (CP)—International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. says it has raised its price of copper sold in European markets to $20 a long ton from $19.36.

The new price, equivalent to 65 cents U.S. a pound compared with the old price of 42 cents, will not apply to bookings made to Inco's regular customers during May, the company said.

Inco's domestic price still sells most of its copper production in Canada, remains at 45 cents a pound.

Noranda Mines and Union Miniere du Haut-Katanga both said Friday prices would be increased to 65 cents U.S. a pound to European customers.

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. said that effective immediately copper sold in European markets would be sold at the London Metal Exchange three-month price.

The company said "the chaotic condition of the copper market with its multiplicity of prices" was the determining factor in the company's decision.

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., said Wednesday, its price would be increased to $448 a long ton. It has not indicated whether a further increase will be instituted.

1. Three notrump. Maybe you wouldn't be willing to bet your life on making three notrump, but if you come home lame, you can always sue partner for non-support.

Presumably North has a decent hand for his overcall, and with his values and those held by the opening bidder, it's hard to imagine East's getting into the act to do any damage. In fact, if East has as much as a jack on this bidding, it is more than his expectancy. In one way or another, you are a tremendous favorite to make nine tricks.

2. Three diamonds. It would be wrong to bid two hearts at this point. What you really have are the values for a raise in diamonds and the way to
