

Talent Introduced at the Back Door

One of the brightest spots and the most attractive products of last week's Oktoberfest was the 'Back Door Coffee House'. Friday afternoon a large audience packed into the Panther Lounge relaxed, enjoyed and were astounded by the local talent they witnessed.

Starting the coffee house off in a great mood were Julie and Dave Karahalis, she on the piano, accompanied by her brother on the bass guitar. Julie played mostly Joni Mitchell numbers with a bit of original ad-libbing.

Next was Jim MacMillan centering his part around some great original songs with the acoustic guitar. Finally, rounding off the coffee and donuts, was Paul Broadbent also with guitar, and joined by Dave again, on bass, Andy Deacon with his mouth harp and John Barrett on piano. The coffeehouse had proven to be a great mixture of quiet folksy music and tap-your-feet-and wiggle-a-bit rhythmic thrills.

The Back Door was organized mostly, as far as we could find out, by Paul Broadbent and it is hopefully starting on a weekly
