THE DAILY EXAMINER.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1889.

Notes and Clippings.

—The Ottawa Team are to be congratulated on their success in Rifle Association Matches. Not only will they bring a fair proportion of the prizes home to Prince Edward Island, but two of them have won the right to go to Wimbeldon. Considering the large number of competitors, and the sharp competition to which they were subjected, our boys did well at Ottawa. We have no doubt that their fellow militiamen and townsmen will be glad to extend to them a hearty welcome home.

—The idea of presenting to Mr. Arthur Newbery a token of appreciation in respect to the services he has rendered on Queen Square, is not new. But the appropriate time to carry it out has been wanting. The opportunity—long in coming—has at last presented itself. No more fitting occasion than the arrival at home of Mr. Newbery and his bride could be desired. Mr. Newbery is just entering upon a new era in his personal history. It is fitting that he should have something tangible to remind him that his artistic efforts in the days that are past have been valued and bourne in mind by those for whom they were put forth. It is not possible to estimate the worth of Mr. Newbery's labors in behalf of Charlottetown. We trust, therefore, that the meeting to be held on Monday afternoon, will be well attended, and the object of its promoters fully attained.

—Judge Alley has made several changes in the polling district of Queen's County. He has made four divisions of Ward Five in this city, viz: Ward Five East—all that part of Ward Five east of Hillsborough Street and School Street; Ward Five East Central—all that part of the ward west of Hillsborough and School Streets and east of Great George Street; Ward Five West Central—all that part of the ward west of Great George Street and east of Queen Street; Ward Five West—all that part of the ward west of Queen Street. What was formerly known as "Mount Stewart District" has been divided into two, as follows: (1) St. Andrew's—all that part of Lot 37 north of Hillsborough River; (2) Pisquid—all that part of the Township south of Hillsborough River to the southern boundary of the late district. These changes have been necessitated by the increase of population. By the way, is it not time—if the Ward system is to continue—that Ward Five was divided into two for the purposes of civic elections?

Educational Notes.

Authority should be felt, not seen.—Landon.

Do not expect your pupils to know more of a subject than you would know without the use of a text-book.—Fowle.

Moral education is found in every school where habits of obedience and punctuality, honesty, industry, self-control and truthfulness are insisted upon; and, even enforced as God's laws, there need be no sectarianism in such teaching.—Mrs. Emily A. Fifield.

The events which go to form the character accummulate constantly to the end of life, determined by the choice that is made at first, like the accumulating waters of the river as it rolls on, augmenting its volume and its velocity until life is lost in the broad ocean of eternity.—Albert Barnes.

The men to whom in boyhood information came in dreary tasks along with threats of punishment, and who were never led into habits of independent inquiry, are not likely to be students in after years; while those to whom it came in the natural forms, at the proper times, and who remember its facts as not only interesting to themselves, but as the occasions of a long series of gratifying successes, are likely to continue through life that self-instruction commenced in youth.

The power to think for one's self has too little standing in the school, and we do not insist enough upon the appreciation of the worth of school work. Too often we try to wheedle our children into knowledge. We disguise the name of work, mask thought, and invent schemes for making education easy and pleasant. We give fanciful names to branches of study, make play with object lessons and illustrate all things. To make education amusing, an easy road without toil, is to train up a race of men and women who will shun what is displeasing to them. But there is no substitute for hard work in school if we are to have a properly trained people; we must teach the value of work and overcome the indifference of ignorance.—Century.

Personal.

A Kingston, Ont. despatch says that Mrs. Scott Siddons is ill at her home among the Thousand Isles.

The Moncton papers report that Hon. W. W. Sullivan has been invited to assist at the closing exercises of the Maritime Exhibition.

Although President Harrison has not yet been six months in office, the question of his re-nomination for a second term is being discussed in the party papers.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mr. Henry Rackham, the contractor for the erection of Mr. John McPhail's new house on Prince Street. We trust that he will soon be able to be about again.

The Moncton Transcript says: Messrs. Clifford and Frank Robinson returned yesterday from an extended trip through Prince [illegible]ward Island. They did not follow the [illegible] [illegible]yle of seeing the country from the [illegible] but drove all over the Island. [illegible] back with them a fine P. E. Varia.

The German Emperor has received a return visit from his Austrian brother, who met with a hearty welcome from the Prussians, and has been to Strasburg to open a new palace in the conquered city. The Empress went with him and charmed the hearts of the people. Strange to say, no political misunderstandings have arisen in France in consequence of this visit. Of other foreign events none seem to call for comment except the threatened return of Queen Natalie to Servia. The ex-King, finding that the regents would not oppose her coming to Belgrade to see her son, on the ground that if they did so popular risings would ensue, has dictated the terms on which she may come. The Queen has, however, declined to be bound by his conditions, and, Russian-like, is biding her time.

The following account of the Bagpipes will not, I fear, commend itself to many of the members of the Caledonian Club, but it is too good to be suppressed. I quote from an American writer: "In its native land, where the bagpipe can echo its music among the crags and peaks, the effect may be enchanting. The struggle between a musician and his bagpipe is to us a thrilling sight. The Scot puts his left arm about the waist of the instrument, endeavoring to catch an under 'holt.' The fellow, when he is coupled to the machine, fairly bristles with tubes, nozzles, and pipes, which point over his shoulders, from under his arms, and from all available points. When everything is ready he looks up and seems to take a parting glance at the sun, the leaves, the birds, and the beautiful things of nature. Then he shuts his eyes and the struggle begins. He pumps with his arms, works his knees, heaves his chest, and humps his back. After he has been at this awhile, a doleful sound begins to issue from one of the tubes. A pipe catches the disorder. Then a nozzle breaks out, and all nature becomes startled and pained. He puts on more steam, throws the wind into another flue, and there is a fresh outbreak of noise. He works the keys, and squeezes the animal in another locality. It has only been ten minutes since he began work, still in this short space of time he has succeeded in turning loose eleven different noises. Some people claim that actual tunes can be played on a bagpipe. We never heard one play anything we could recognize as having heard before—unless it was a piece similar to one that had been played on some other bagpipe. When a bagpipe is all in motion, from the tube that makes the busy-bee buzzing noise, to the flue that keeps running the scale from both ends at the same time, then the musician's work is only half done. He has got to get all the wind out of the machine and stop it in some way. We have never known less than half an hour's work to silence a full-grown, healthy bagpipe after it had once got to hooting its best, and even then it was liable to break out in some spot that hadn't been plugged up, and compel the poor, tired player to tackle it again."

It is always pleasing to be able to record the advancement in life of natives of our province, and it is with sincere pleasure that I am able to announce that the Bishop of Chester has conferred the valuable living of New Brighton upon the Rev. Charles Hylton Stewart, son of the late William Stewart, of Glen Stewart, and nephew of Theophilus Stewart, of this city. A London newspaper, in referring to the appointment, says that "Mr. Stewart has been the able and well-known precentor of the Cathedral, for more than a decade, working in hearty co-operation with Dr. Bridge, the organist, and has done much to make the Cathedral service at Chester as near perfection as possible. Mr. Stewart was organist of Holy Trinity, Vauxhall Bridge, at sixteen, and a year later deputy organist of Chichester Cathedral. He went to Cambridge, where he held a musical scholarship, and graduated from St. Catherine's College, in 1873. He founded the Cambridge Musical Society, and, for two years after he took his degree, was organist of Chicester Cathedral. In 1875, he was admitted to the diaconate by Bishop Piers C. Claughton, acting for the Bishop of Rochester, and licensed to the curacy of Pebmarsh, where he had such influence with the rector, the Hon. and Rev. E. Grimston, that he got him to restore the church. At Pebmarsh. Mr. Stewart attracted the attention of the late Canon Tarver, who was a neighboring rector, and, through his influence he was appointed precentor of Chester, where, as I have said, he has immensely improved the services, thoroughly established the triennial festival, and been very popular. He had the entire confidence of Dean Howson, but since his death and that of Canon Tarver, it is said that the Chapter, though most of them of his theological opinions, have not quite so thoroughly appreciated the precentor's practical supremacy of the cathedral. His organizing powers were wonderfully brought out at the enthronization of the Bishop. It must be a great wrench to him to leave the cathedral—he refused to leave it when the late Duchess of Westminster urged him to go to Eton—but I shall be surprised if he does not make his mark at New Brighton. It goes without saying that he will have good services, but he will prove himself an excellent parish priest, and he is far from an ordinary preacher."

A late insertion in THE EXAMINER of a notice of marriage has raised the question of the proper manner of making these announcements. I confess I had doubts when I read this announcement, and I am now convinced that it is correct. I cannot do better than quote from Robert Grant White, the celebrated American writer and critic, who puts the matter with his accustomed clearness:

"There has been not [illegible] little discussion as [illegible] the use of this word, chie[illegible] in regard to [illegible] announcements of marri[illegible] is public [illegible] of making the announceme[illegible] usual mode [illegible] Smith to Mary Jones. Some —Married, John [illegible] dissatisfied with the people, having been [illegible] years in certain form, we have seen in late [illegible] with Mary quarters—Married, John Smi[illegible] and Mary Jones; and in others—John Smith [illegible] that all Jones. I have no hesitation in saying [illegible] these forms are incorrect. We know, indeed, what is meant by any one of them; but the same is true of hundreds and thousands of erroneous uses of language. Properly speaking, a man is not married to a woman, or married with her; nor are a man and a woman married [illegible] The woman is married to [illegible] family, not he of hers; it is her life that is merged, or supposed to be merged in his, not his in hers; she follows his fortunes and takes his station, not he hers. And thus, manifestly, she has been attached to him by a legal bond, not he to her, except indeed as all attachment is necessary mutual. But nevertheless we do not speak of tying a ship to a boat, but a boat to a ship. And so long, at least, as a man is the larger, the stronger, the more individually important, as long as woman generally lives in her husband's house and bears his name—still more should she not bear his name—it is the woman who is maried to the man. In speaking of the ceremony it is proper to say that he married (duxit in matrimonio), and not that she married him, but that she was married to him; and the proper form of announcement is—Married, Mary Jones to John Smith. The etymology of the word agrees entirely with the conditions of the act which it expresses. To marry is to give, or be given, to a husband, mari"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Spoiling for a Fight.

SIR,—The political crank who runs the Grit news mill at Souris has been spoiling for a fight for some time back. It will be strange if some one does not tread upon his coat tail before long—just to oblige him. His latest attack is upon what he calls a "polemic." When he evidently does not know the meaning of the word "polemic" it is not hard to imagine the kind of idiotic rubbish in which he indulges in discussing his subject. There is one lie, however, which he has the cheek to repeat, to which, perhaps, it would be as well to refer. Is it not a fact, he asks, that there was collusion among the Conservatives in keeping back the bounty to the fishermen. He and other falsifiers may as well be told, once for all, that there was no such collusion on the part of the Conservatives. Can the Grits of the place truthfully say as much? Probably some of them know.

Let the Souris Annanias of the Patrio keep cool, else he may be as suddenly snuffed out as he was when he tackled Mr. Foley on a former occasion.

Yours, &c.,

McD.

Souris, Sept. 7, 1889.

Souris Notes.

The weather has been intensely warm lately. The thermometer registered on Wednesday 92° in the shade.

Shore fishing is somewhat gloomy, although mackerel can be raised to the surface, but seemingly shy.

Necessary repairs to the breakwater have commenced, and will be rapidly completed under the supervision of Mr. Cantwell.

The proposed extended sidewalds leading to Knight's wharf is not laid yet. Most of the material is planted along. A fine substantial sail is placed on the dangerous pass that causes much ill-feeling and confusion and marred the harmony of our quiet seaport town.

McEachern & Co. are enlarging and remodeling their store, and when completed it will compare with others lately finished.

A number of American fishermen have arrived and report that fish is scarce at home. They are all fitted with hook and line, depending upon sweeping around their vessel. They consider that seining cannot be depended upon as a mode of capture.

Bruin lately paid a cursory visit to the primeval forest range in the near vicinity of Chepstow, doing serious damage to the sheepfold and innocent lamb, enjoying mutton chop. The temporary raiding visit was brought to a close on the serene night of Thursday, 5th inst., by the unerring aim of Mr. William Pope, who came to close quarters with our native lion. Mr. Pope deserves credit for his pluck, and shows that Chepstow boys dread not danger. The cubs escaped and a posse are in pursuit.
