U.S. Air Lines Blames Agency For N.Y. Crash

WASHINGTON (AP)—United Air Lines has charged that the Federal Aviation Agency was partly to blame for history's worst air disaster—a two-plane collision over New York City Dec. 16, 1960. United asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to make new findings.

In a petition asking the CAB to amend its report of June 18, United said the CAB failed to assess acts and omissions of the FAA which contributed to the accident. A total of 134 lives were lost.

United also said the CAB failed to make recommendations that would prevent similar accidents from happening in the future.

The CAB found that a United Air Lines jet overshot its clearance area by several miles and held its crew largely responsible for colliding with a Trans World Airlines super constellation.

The TWA plane crashed in flames on Staten Island, killing its 39 passengers and five crew members. The United jet plunged into a congested Brooklyn street, killing six on the ground and its 77 passengers and seven crew members.

United's petition Monday said the board's report teaches no lessons and proposed no action to avoid "a repetition of this disaster."

"The report literally walks on eggs in appraising the role of the FAA . . ." the petition said.

It claimed FAA personnel controlling approaching aircraft were obligated to track them and give them traffic advisories. But on the day of the collision, United said, the flight controller did not follow the United jet at all times.

"If he had complied with this mandatory requirement . . . he would have known that the flight had progressed beyond its clearance fix . . . and could have warned it of the error, the petition said, and added:

"The board's report ignores a record . . . replete with a variety of instances of failure of the FAA personnel . . . and of negligent handling by the New York air traffic control of the flights involved.

"The most glaring examples are: Improper routing given by the New York air traffic control to the approach control facility . . . a short cut routing . . . (and) failure to advise TWA . . ."

United claimed there could be similar crashes again because the FAA was permitting individual controllers "to utilize their own discretion to grant or deny radar services" for flights below certain levels.

QUIZ

You are the dealer, neither side vulnerable, and have opened One Diamond. Partner responds Three Diamonds. What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ3 ♥KQ5 ♦AJ864 ♣KQ
2. ♠92 ♥K6 ♦KQJ82 ♣AQ94
3. ♠J5 ♥K98 ♦AJ64 ♣KQ85
4. ♠AK5 ♥94 ♦KQ863 ♣J75

1. Four notrump. It is obvious the hand will produce a small slam, and all that remains is the question of whether or not a grand slam can be made. The jump to three diamonds shows 13 to 16 points (some of which may be in distributional form). These facts, added to our 19 high-card points, bring us to at least the small slam zone.

The four notrump bid requests partner to reveal the number of aces he has. If he responds five hearts, showing two aces, we stop at six diamonds. If his response is five spades, showing three aces, we bid five notrump, asking for kings. If he responds six clubs, showing no kings, we stop at six diamonds, since we don't want to bid a grand slam missing the king of diamonds. If partner responds six diamonds, showing one king, we undertake the grand slam.

2. Four clubs. The jump to three diamonds is forcing to game. With an absolute minimum opening bid we would either rebid four diamonds or three notrump, depending on the hand, to show the minimum values. This hand is not altogether in the minimum class. The extra values are shown by the four club bid, thus indicating at least mild interest in a slam. The rest is left to partner. He may go to a slam or stop at game, as he sees fit.

3. Three notrump. This may not be entirely pleasant to bid, considering the weakness in spades, but no better call is available. An 11-trick game in diamonds with this distribution seems far more remote than a 9-trick game in notrump.

Partner cannot expect us to have all three side suits stopped, even though we bid three notrump, and he is therefore not apt to pass that bid unless his hand is also suitable for notrump purposes.

4. Three spades. Here, also, the prospect of game lies in notrump, but we can hardly undertake notrump with two suits unguarded. We therefore bid three spades in the hope that partner, with strength in hearts and clubs, will be able to say three notrump.

The three spade bid does not, in and of itself, profess interest in a slam. It can be interpreted as a probing bid for game as intended in this case, or it can be read as the first step towards a slam. Since the bid is ambiguous, partner is expected to tread gingerly until its purpose is clarified.
