THERE WAS NO DIFFICULTY.

So Far as Sam Was Concerned the Thing Was Dead Easy.

"Did you witness the controversy that resulted in the death of the deceased?" asked the coroner blandly.

"Which? Who?" responded the witness.

"I asked you if you witnessed the difficulty in which Ike there was laid out?"

"There warn't no difficulty about it, coroner. Yer know I seed it all. Ike thar jest came projectin around careless like, with his tank full and the flaps of his holsters tucked back, a-loomin against the landscape bigger'n Moose Pearson's hog corral. He war that fond of himself that he couldn't enjoy the peace and harmony that war prevailin from the Last Chance saloon to Nell Canty's hurdy gurdy without chippin into the game when he didn't hold good cards.

"He allowed he war goin to have a stag dance and have it then. He allowed that Sonora Sam, who war takin a pasear for a cocktail, war the best dancer in the camp and began to shoot at his toes to encourage Sam to be agile. Sam war the limberest man in the territory, coroner, until Ike's guns were empty, and then—why, coroner, thar warn't no difficulty about it. You see Ike thar. It's a plumb center shot, coroner. But thar warn't no difficulty about it, not that I seed. It war dead easy, coroner, dead easy."—San Francisco Examiner.

A Long Farewell.

A squad of recruits were at drill, and among them was an Irishman named Doherty, 6 feet 1½ inches in height. The sergeant major at that time was what might be called rather a short man, being only 5 feet 4 inches. On this day he was seen approaching the squad, looking sharply about for some fault. All squared up with the exception of Doherty, and the sergeant major made straight for him, when the following dialogue ensued:

Sergeant Major—Heads up, man! (Doherty raised his head slightly.) Up higher, sir! (The head was raised again.)

Then the sergeant major, by standing on his toes, managed to reach Doherty's chin and poked it higher still, with the remark:

"That's better. Don't let me see your head down again, sir."

By this time all were interested at seeing Doherty staring far away above the sergeant major's head, when presently a voice from above said in a rich brogue:

"Sure and am I to be always loike this, sergeant major?"

Sergeant Major—Yes, sir. Doherty—Then I'll say goodby to ye, sergeant major, for begorra I'll never see yez again."—Nuggets.

Showing What He Could Do.

"Clever idea of mine," said young Mr. Fitts, "sending you a typewritten letter, wasn't it, dear?"

"Was she pretty?" Mrs. Fitts demanded.

"Who?"

"The typewriter, girl."

"Er—why—yes."

"I thought so. The love passages in that letter seemed absolutely inspired."

—Indianapolis Journal.

PRETTY NEW MATERIALS.

Among the favorite materials for young women's evening dresses this season are thin broche silks, in delicate colors, light, fancy crepons, china crapes and india satins and silks.

Astrakhan is at present the favorite fur trimming. For ornamenting vests and jackets it is put on in narrow bands like a fold. A wider band is used for trimming the collar. Next to astrakhan is caracul.

Some of the prettiest crepons and crapes are brocaded with tiny buds, dots and specks, and on white and delicately tinted grounds beautiful brocadings are shown in turquoise blue, yellow and light green.

Shot taffeta is the favorite silk for making undershirts. For everyday skirts moreen and shot mohair are suitable, giving excellent wear. Figured silks are much used for shirt waists and dressy bodices to be worn with different skirts.

For late winter and early spring wear it is said that checks and small fancy plaids are to be much used. The checks will be seen in silks, summer poplins, light twilled woolens, zephyr cloths, etamines and ginghams. Clan tartans will also be worn.

Wool and silk mixed goods are much in favor. In both dark and light colors these handsome materials may be seen, and their wearing qualities are superb. They usually come in double widths and have an exclusive appearance that will commend them.

As a lining for chinchilla is supplanting ermine. Nothing more exquisitely soft and luxurious can be imagined than this lining, and the handsomest and most expensive wraps for both street and opera wear now show the inside a dainty mass of pale gray chinchilla.

Brick red is seen in many fashionable gowns and wraps in Paris. Trimmed with black cloth strips or braid it is at once striking and effective and is said to be serviceable to the last. All shades of brown, tan and castor are also popular in Paris.—New York Tribune.

A Ready Helpmeet.

"We've got to economize," said Mr. Gargyle to his wife.

"Very well, dear," replied the good woman cheerfully. "You shave yourself, and I'll cut your hair."—Harlem Life.
