Queen Gets Varied Reception In Northern Ireland Visit

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH BELFAST (AP)—The Queen was greeted in Northern Ireland with a thunder of cheers, an anti-royalist bomb blast and a mystery power failure that paralyzed Belfast Thursday just as she arrived in the city.

The bomb ripped up 250 yards of the main Dublin-Belfast rail line just north of the Irish Republic's border. The Queen was 50 miles away at the time, but the line was scheduled to carry 60 trains Thursday, many of them bringing excursionists to her Coronation visit.

Blame Nationalists Police said propaganda-seeking nationalists, who are bitter at Northern Ireland's move to royalty and want the northern counties united with the Irish Republic, were up to their old tricks.

Belfast's giant harbor power house fizzled out of action at 10:15 a.m. just as the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, entered the city limits from nearby Government House, where they are staying during their three-day visit.

Strengthen Security Net Police immediately strengthened the already strong security net around the royal party. Guards were doubled among the 90-mile rail line the Queen is due to travel today from Belfast to Londonderry.
