THE DAILY EXAMINER

NOVEMBER 15, 1897.
BISMARCK THIRTY YEARS AGO.

His Coolness When in the Street in Berlin
—His Defence of the Royal Family.

Rudolph Lindu, in the Deutsche Reque, tells some stories about Prince Bismarck that have not been told in detail before. In May, 1866, Bismarck, then only Count Bismarck, was passing through Unter den Linden when he heard behind him the report of a revolver. He turned quickly around and saw a young man—Ferdinand Blind B.—aiming at him with the still smoking pistol. Bismarck ran toward the man and seized the hand in which he held the revolver, and with his other hand grasped the assassin's throat. The latter, however, had time to slip his pistol into the other hand, and shot three times in quick succession. Bismarck felt himself wounded in the shoulder and injured in one of his ribs, but he held his assailant fast, until several soldiers ran up and secured him. Then Bismarck walked quickly to his house, which he reached long before any report of the affair got there.

The Countess, it appeared, had several callers when her husband came in. He greeted them all pleasantly, and asked to be excused for a few minutes on account of a pressing engagement. There upon he retired to the next room and rapidly wrote out an account of the attempt on his life, which he sent to the king. Then, returning to the drawing room, he joked in his usual way about his unpunctuality at luncheon, and ate with a good appetite. When the meal was finished he went to the Countess, kissed her, washed her "mahlzeit" in the old German way, and added: "You see that I am quite well, don't you?" She stared at him, whereupon he added:

"Yes, you mustn't be anxious, my child. Somebody has shot at me; but it is nothing as you see."

In the year 1851, when political discussion was exceedingly acrimonious, Bismarck one day entered a restaurant in Berlin for a glass of beer. A man who sat near him, surrounded by several friends began to abuse a member of the Royal family. Bismarck looked at him and said quietly:

"If you don't leave this room before I have drunk this glass of beer I will break the glass over your head."

Then he quietly finished his beer, and as the man had not heeded his warning he carried out his threat. He went up to the fellow and struck him on the head with the beer glass till he fell howling on the floor.

"What does the glass cost?" he asked the waiter; and having paid for it he walked calmly out no one daring to make the least resistance.

ONE CONCEPTION OF CHARITY.

While attending a special meeting in a church of one of our leading American cities a few weeks ago I observed an incident which presented itself to my mind as a feelingly droll, but I fear my power of expression will be unable to present it as it appeared.

Imagine yourself seated amongst an immensely interested and excited throng of people listening to a returned Chinese Missionary dilating on the cruelties existing under heathen rule, and sending forth earnest pleas for aid in the great work of civilization.

When the speaker had retired from the platform the contribution boxes were handed around by the ushers, and in due time reached the pew occupied—besides two friends and myself—by a gentleman of very pompous and self-important bearing. After considerable sprawling over the back of the pew, he succeeded in getting his hand into the pocket of his immaculately creased pantaloons and drew forth a handful of gold and silver coins and pennies, surveyed the same thoughtfully and at last his face grew bright with the unmistakable glow of generosity as he picked out two bright new pennies and dropped them into the box held by the patient ushers, and as our generous man replaced the coins in his pocket he was heard to whisper to himself "And now abideth Faith, Hope and Charity—these three; but the greatest of all these is Charity."

Purgatorial Pills.

The druggist would hardly smile if you asked for "purgatorial pills." There are many of them. But he would probably recommend a pill that did not gripe; a sugar-coated pill, gentle in action, and sure in effect. What are they called?

..Ayer's Cathartic Pills..

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE AND MAIL

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 10.—Three thousand sheep and 20 head of cattle have been burned to death in Crosby county by a prairie fire.

LONDON, November 10.—The Financial Post professes to know that the Marquis of Salisbury, premier and secretary of state for foreign affairs, is about to resign the foreign secretaryship, in favor of the Marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, retaining, however, the premier-ship.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 11.—The authorities are now convinced that the attack upon President Moraes and the killing of General Bittencourt, the late minister of war, last Friday afternoon, was the result of a widespread conspiracy. The government's proclamation declared the federal district of Niteroy in a state of siege, and the proclamation has been ratified by congress, which has passed a bill confirming it. A serious revolt has broken out in the city prison.

SPRINGHILL, Nov. 11.—The railway employees at the junction are being rapidly displaced and their positions given almost exclusively to Springhill men. The latest victim is Mr. Foulie, the car inspector, a quiet, inoffensive man, who has been in the employ of the government for twenty years. His important and responsible position is given to a former Springhill merchant, who lately was engaged in the Amherst boot and shoe factory. The Springhill Observer editorially says: "No person who knows either Mr. Stewart or Mr. Foulie would ever think of accusing them of offensive partisanship."

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—It is understood that the naval estimates which will be submitted to the Reichstag when it opens on November 30, next, ask for 8,000,000 marks to construct a floating dock at Dar-Es-Salaam, a seaport of Africa, 25 miles south of Zanzibar, and to repair the German African squadron. It is announced that Herr Krupp, the great gunmaker, has been commissioned to modernize five Turkish men-of-war. It is rumored that negotiations have been commenced between France and Germany for joint diplomatic action, and, if necessary, naval action, on account of the recent outrages upon missionaries in China.

Mail and Empire: If it is true that Sir Oliver is to be sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor on the 14th inst., he will have good reasons for joyfully and fervently celebrating Thanksgiving day. He will have escaped further contamination from associating with the unchristian Ministers at Ottawa, and will probably have again transplanted himself without having his name for a single day off the public payroll.

Montreal Gazette: In his speech at Vancouver, B. C., on Monday night, Sir Charles Tupper told his audience that in connection with the matters in dispute between Canada and the United States, the Laurier Government would have the undivided support of Conservatives in protecting Canadian rights. When a Conservative Government was in power, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier leader of the Opposition, he made a speech at St. Thomas in which he complained that in protecting Canadian interests in the Atlantic fisheries the Canadian authorities were harsh to the United States fishermen. A comparison is invited.

The London debt is thirty-five per cent. lighter for each taxpayer than the debt of Greater New York and this difference is likely to be considerably accentuated after four years of Croker.

The news of the attack on the German mission at Yen Chufu, in the southern part of the Chinese province of Shang Tung, has been officially confirmed. The Russian missionaries, Ntes and Henpie, were killed, Ziegler is missing, and Steng escaped. The German Government has ordered that the necessary orders be taken at Peking to obtain redress for the outrage.

Of the New Central Underground Railroad in London more than six miles have been excavated, and there are still twelve miles to be completed. The contractors are proceeding with the work at an exceptionally rapid rate. The question of elevated railroads in London has frequently come under discussion, but notwithstanding the disadvantages of travelling underground, it is preferred to what is considered to be the destruction of a public thoroughfare by an unsightly superstructure of an elevated railroad.

The king of Siam carries back to his country from Europe a big box filled with nothing but insignia of distinguished orders conferred on him by brother monarchs. Among other decorations he has the great crosses of St. Andrew of Russia, St. Stephen of Hungary, Saints Maurice and Lazarus and the Annunciation of Italy, the Elephant of Denmark the Black Eagle of Prussia, the Lion of the Netherlands, Charles III of Spain, the Conception of Portugal and St. Saviour of Greece.

Some of the most fancy dishes in silver have solid centers in bright finish, with openwork borders.

Oyster forks for the coming season have pointed prongs, broad at the base and somewhat far apart.

Plaid belts, which represent the colors of the various clans, are fastened with buckles decorated with a thistle or other Scotch emblem.

The latest combination is cut glass, silver and stag horns. It occurs in punch bowls, loving cups, cigar jars, etc. Glass constitutes the body of the vessel, silver the base and rim and horns the handles.

The cinch belt affords a decided novelty. It is of leather elaborately decorated in Mexican hand carving. It employs neither buckle nor clasp, but fastens by means of leather thongs and leather covered rings.—Jewelers' Circular.

THERMOMETER TALES.

The Temperature Taker and What the Patients Thought of It.

To people who are fortunately unfamiliar with sickness the thermometers used in taking the temperature of patients are always a source of considerable interest. A professional nurse whose experience has led her to numerous localities and brought her in contact with many phases of life tells two stories which illustrate the foregoing statement.

In one of the local hospitals she had a male patient who was threatened with a run of fever. As she approached his bedside one morning he querulously complained of a lack of nourishment.

"I didn't get enough to eat," he said. "I feel almost starved."

"Well, well," she said soothingly, "we will see about that. 'Here,' she added, "let me put this in your mouth."

She inserted the thermometer between his teeth and turned away a moment. When she looked back, he was working the bulb around between his jaws at a great rate.

"Hold on!" she cried, "You will break the thermometer!"

He drew in his cheeks and apparently gave a mighty pull on the little instrument, and then she removed it.

"Say," he grumbled, "there's no use giving me that. I couldn't suck a blame thing out of it."

Another patient, a woman, begged of the nurse for a drink.

"Wait," said the nurse and thrust the thermometer in her mouth.

The patient lay back on her pillow and placidly closed her eyes. A satisfied expression slowly stole over her face. When the time was up, the nurse withdrew the tube.

"Why," said the patient, with a sigh of gratification, "what a lot of good a little thing like that will do you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

No man can be very lazy in a mosquito section.

Before love grew blind it became very farsighted.

No woman who believes in cookbooks believes in total depravity.

It's a smart girl that can keep a man thinking long enough that he's only flirting with her.

The trouble with women in politics is that they are always wanting to rip the government up and see if it will go bias.—New York Press.

To Save Repairs.

A son of the Emerald Isle who had commenced building a wall round his lot of rather uncommon dimensions—viz, four feet high and six feet thick—was asked the object of it by a friend.

"To save repairs, my honey. Don't you see that if it ever falls down it will be higher than it is now?"—Nuggets.

The Law's Delays.

"Oh, the law's delays!" sighed the fair young girl.

How they tried her heart. Her case had dragged along for years and years.
