Marketing Board

Continued from page 1 of the crop after October 1, 1953, unless a license had been procured by the producer. He said that the informant must establish that the appellant had sold potatoes after that date and contended that no sales subsequent to that date had been proven against Mr. Aitken. He told the court it was only shown on the evidence of an inspector that potatoes had been delivered to cars and laid in this Province it was customary for farmers to sell their potato crop far in advance of shipping dates. His contention was that the mere fact of delivery was not absolute evidence of a sale at that particular time.

Mr. Stewart spoke on constitutional grounds and said the scheme established under the Marketing Board Act was in restraint of trade and commerce and this power to regulate lies only with the Parliament of Canada. His argument centred around the authority of the Board to regulate only within the confines of this Province.

He stated that the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council cannot delegate powers than he himself has under the Act. He added that the substance of legislation must be within certain powers and asked the purpose of such an Act when the Board had 90 per cent of the potato crop was produced for export. Since only an infinitesimal part of the crop was consumed in Prince Edward Island he asked why the Board under the wording of the Act should be so concerned with increased production.

He insisted that the entire matter was simply an attempt to regulate trade and commerce, a power confined solely to the Federal authorities. Regarding the Act itself, he asked the true nature and power of the legislation and quoted cases indicating that it could be effective only within the borders of the Province.

Mr. Stewart said the fee charged producers had no regulation attached and while it might be $75 one year it could also be $500 another year. This, he said, would produce a tendency on the part of the producer to pass the cost along to the consumer and thereby result in indirect taxation.

Mr. MacQuaid said that at the time the original Order of the appellant, under Section E of the scheme, could not be required to secure a license if the potatoes were grown for export and that previous to the re-enactment of the Order the Board had no such authority.

Wills Case Cited Quoting from the Wills case he said that the decision handed down by the Chief Justice noted that P.C. 5150 did not give all authority and a license could only apply to production for sale within the Province. There was no evidence that any of the appellant's potatoes were grown for any other purpose than export. Mr. MacQuaid insisted that the appellant was growing potatoes for export in 1952. He was perfectly within his rights to do so without a license.

Following the luncheon adjournment, which was shortened at the request of counsel for the appellants who said that they had long drives to make when the court adjourned, the facts were not clear and he would therefore adjourn the case for one week to permit obtaining the needed information. The case will resume Thursday, November 19.

—Bucko Trainor is making a gallant effort to build up the Islanders to the point where they will be able to hold their own with the leading clubs in the Big Four, and we think his efforts should receive more encouragement than he is at present getting. Trainor has had tough luck in his dealings with players from Central Canada. He has had a lot of disappointments after having every right to feel that the boys he had dickered with would join the club. The brand of hockey dished out this year in the M.M.H.L. is as good as, if not better, than previous years, and if the Islanders can get two or three more top-notch players, especially one or two defencemen, they should be right up there with the leaders. Then we'll all see some of the best hockey that's ever been played in the Forum.

If the fans let the team and Bucko down now, however, it is probable that the Islanders will have to fold, and the Island fans will have to get along without the brand of hockey they have been enjoying the last three years. Oh, yes, we can stay home now, and say we'll take some later games when things really get exciting, but if the opportunity is no longer there, it's a better than even bet there'll be a lot of Island fans who will miss it like all get out. Which will it be, fans? It's strictly up to you.

Looks as if the football season is over as far as the Summerside High team is concerned. We understand that there was to be an interscholastic series, but nothing has been said of late about that. That long stretch of wet weather seems to have put out the fire of enthusiasm for football in these parts.

It looks now as if basketball for men in Summerside will be a dead issue. Schurman's have decided not to have a team. Perhaps the High School boys will organize a team this year. For the last two years they didn't start to show any enthusiasm for the game until the latter part of March. The girls have them beat in a frazzle when it comes to pep, vim and vigor in the realm of basketball.

—Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Cooke, that their daughter Myrna, who enlisted and expressed the hope that a political conference would bring peace to Korea. On NATO, the alliance of the North Atlantic nations has been effective thus far in preventing aggression in Europe. My government continues to regard the treaty as one of the foundation stones on Canada's external policy.

On other international affairs "Canada has continued to contribute to the international projects which will promote human welfare and thereby remove some of the causes of unrest and dislocation. You will be asked to approve further assistance for relief and rehabilitation, for technical assistance and for continued participation in the Colombo Plan."

Boost Technical Aid The government already has told the UN it is prepared to increase its technical assistance from $800,000 this year to $1,500,000 in 1954. Canada since 1946 has put more than $206,000,000 into UN emergency relief and technical assistance. Besides this, it has contributed $75,000,000 in the last three years to the Colombo Plan for capital development and technical assistance in south and south-east Asia.

On the UN, the speech said: "We have every reason for satisfaction that through the use for the first time of the United Nations Conference the objective of the United Nations in Korea has been substantially achieved. The aggressors have been driven back, the fighting has ceased and an armistice has been concluded. My government earnestly hopes that a political conference will ultimately succeed in restoring peace in Korea."

Though Canada's total volume of foreign trade has reached record levels, dollar shortages in many countries had continued to create problems for some Canadian exporters. Countries could best achieve economic strength and security through freer trade and overseas investment policies and the government was continuing efforts to bring about progressive reduction of trade restrictions.

A few hours before the throne speech was read the Canadian and United States governments announced formation of an economic and trade committee.

Major policies on the home front mentioned in the speech were an expanded housing program, added financial help for hog producers, more fish markets, an assistance program for totally disabled persons.

The new housing program would be undertaken by increasing the supply of mortgage money so that more persons with moderate incomes could build their own homes. A 10-per-cent down payment on the first $8,000 of the lending value of a new house likely will be a feature of the housing legislation, together with longer periods in which to repay loans.

Canada hog producers whose animals were destroyed in the government's cholera eradication program, may get increased compensation. Maximum compensation now is $30 for a slaughtered swine.

The speech said the government is giving "particular attention" to development of fish markets and encouragement of more modern production methods in the Atlantic fisheries, especially in Newfoundland. The federal and Newfoundland governments have already made public a plan for fisheries research, modernizing fishing vessels and relocation of some outport fishermen in better-equipped communities.

Disabled Persons The speech said plans for rehabilitation of totally disabled persons are being worked out with the provinces and that a bill providing for an assistance program for such persons will be introduced. Officials said later that some 20,000 totally disabled persons between the ages of 16 and 65 likely will get pensions not exceeding $40 a month.

The Commons will be asked to amend the Pipe Lines Act to give the board of transport commissioners jurisdiction over all companies authorized to construct or operate interprovincial or international oil or gas pipe lines. This would reinforce the government's support for a Canadian transcontinental natural gas pipeline. The board now has jurisdiction over pipe line companies incorporated by Parliament but not over those incorporated by provinces.

Parliament will be asked to resume its unfinished job of revising the Criminal Code. The speech also said a committee of penal experts has been appointed to examine and report upon methods of parole and remission of sentences.

The speech forecast some changes in veterans' legislation but officials said they will not be major ones. They will deal with "some extension" of benefits. Before the throne-speech ceremony in the Senate Rene Beaudry, 41, Liberal member for Val-de-Rouillon - Soulanges, near Montreal, was chosen unanimously as Speaker, or presiding officer, of the Commons.

Previously, Senator Wishart Robertson of Nova Scotia has been appointed Senate Speaker. The Speaker Beaudry, with other Commons, was summoned to the bar of the Senate by the gentleman usher of the black rod. There he tipped his trowel and pledged to do his best as Speaker though he was "unworthy" of so high an honor. The only persons in the chambers who could not see him were the red-robed justices of the Supreme Court, who sat with their backs to the entrance.

FAMOUS AWARDS The Nobel Prizes are awarded annually from an estate of $9,000,000 left by Alfred Nobel, who died in 1896.

Dr. Wilfred Callaghan, coroner, met in the Town Hall, Summerside, last evening to hear evidence bearing on the death of Joseph J. Tignish, who died in the Prince County Hospital on August 19th. The deceased had been found on the Griffin Road, near Tignish, on the night of August 16th in an unconscious condition and had not regained consciousness before he died.

Mr. Donald Stewart, C. C., acted as crown prosecutor in the interrogation of the witnesses. The first witness heard was Dr. J. P. Kelly of Alberton who had attended the deceased on the night of August 16th before he had been removed to the Prince County Hospital. He said he had been called to the Western Hospital and found the patient unconscious. A general inspection of the body showed no external bruises but the tongue was swollen and there was blood in the mouth. He believed that the injuries he found could have been caused by the deceased coming in contact with some heavy object. He said he thought he detected the odor of liquor on his breath but could not state so definitely.

Dr. J. K. Beer of the Prince County Hospital said that he and Dr. Hubert MacNeill had performed a post mortem examination on the deceased and had found multiple rib fractures, a broken spleen and kidneys and he said that cause of death was multiple shock.

Clifford Arsenault, age 12 years, was the next witness to be examined and he said that on the evening of August 16th he had been driving in a car along the Griffin Road. The car was driven by Ernest Arsenault of Tignish and in the car also were Victor Gaudet, Leo DesRoches and Ivan Arsenault. He said that when their car was about 20 feet from the body of the deceased they got out and found the deceased lying across the road, his bicycle a short distance away. They put him in the back seat of the car and drove him to Alberton where he was taken to the Western Hospital.

Two other occupants of the car, Ivan Arsenault and Leo DesRoches also gave evidence which substantiated that given by Clifford Arsenault.

The driver of the car, Ernest Arsenault, was not present at the inquest as he is at present out of the Province.

Sylvère P. Arsenault, brother of the deceased said he had seen his brother about 4:30 on the afternoon of August 16th. The next time he saw him was in the back seat of the Arsenault car after the car had started up the Griffin Road. The others had started for home along the St. Roch Road and when they were about half a mile down this road they had heard a sound like the squealing of brakes on the Griffin Road. Two cars had passed them going in the direction of the Griffin Road. The car of the Ernest Arsenault and the other a car owned by Emmett Ahearn.

John Joseph LeClair, the last witness heard, gave about the same evidence as his companions but said that he had not heard the squealing of brakes up the Griffin Road. At this point the inquest was adjourned until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Members of the jury were: Roland Phillipson, foreman; George Harris, John Schurman, Gordon Sullivan, Norman MacLeod, Roy Johnson and George Clow. —S.

Conservation of lobsters was the main topic and, in common with fishermen in other areas where meetings had been held, it was considered that if the berried or spawners were returned to the sea the industry would not suffer regardless of size limits.

A lively discussion centered a few minutes later on the minimum carapace measure this year. Among those addressing the meeting were Rev. William Simpson of the Extension Dept. of St. Dunstan's University; Rev. Father Robin of Rustico; Mr. Huert Gaudet, M.L.A., Tignish; Mr. C. F. Richards, secretary of the Fishermen's Association.

Set Up Joint U. S.-Canada Trade Group

OTTAWA, (CP)—Canada and the United States, concerned over the friction between the two countries, Thursday set up a special body of cabinet ministers to restore harmony and work to remove curbs hampering trade expansion.

The unprecedented eight-man body was established through an exchange of notes and an agreement signed in Washington by ambassador A. D. P. Heene of Canada and U. S. State Secretary Dulles.

It will be known as the joint U.S.-Canadian committee on trade and economic affairs. Canadian Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe, Finance Minister Abbott and either Agriculture Minister Gardiner or Fisheries Minister Sinclair, depending on whether farm or fish problems are involved in discussions.

Best Customers Other cabinet ministers can be brought in from time to time "as the need arises." Development of the body first was brought up during Prime Minister St. Laurent's visit to President Eisenhower in Washington last May. At that time Canada expressed deep concern over the growth of protectionism in the U.S. and its impact on exports from Canada and other free countries which depend largely on the American market for their dollar earnings.
