

Night Patrols In Viet Nam Termed Tough Assignment

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In Viet Nam, night belongs to the guerrilla fighter. American soldiers moving into the jungle to meet him on his own terms of ambush and swift withdrawal regard night patrols as a tense assignment. Coming from a world of lights, the soldier on night patrol finds himself prowling in single file through a strange and ominous world. Night patrol. No flashlights. No cigarettes. No talking. Under a moonless sky, lit faintly by the stars, the column moves forward, each man following the glow of two phosphorescent dots on the back of the man's helmet in front of him. Night is the time when the guerrilla plants his mines and sits safely in the crotch of a tree waiting to trip the wire. Paths cut through the jungle by previous columns must always be suspect.

Here the guerrilla digs a shallow pit and plants the sharp-tipped bamboo stakes that can cripple a soldier. NEVER SILENT. The jungle is never silent. Millions of insects and frogs send up a ceaseless cacophony, lizards and civet cats fill the night with strange, mournful murmurings and every now and then, just when nerves seem the most on edge, an exotic bird rends the night with a shriek.

Even worse is sudden silence in the jungle. Is the enemy at hand, waiting to set off an ambush?

The patrol halts and listens, spying the tall grass where spiders webs cling to sweat-smearred faces, straining for every new sound in the humid night. A small animal scurries underfoot and disappears in the underbrush. Mosquitoes resume their whirring, and the whole noisy chorus of the night picks up again.

The squad leader gives his silent signal, a tug at the sleeve passed down the line, and the column moves out again, bending the branches back, passing them down the line, as silently as the signal.

The darkness dissolves to reveal a slow-moving river, muddy and dun-colored in the opaque light of the stars. The patrol crouches on the bank, all ears straining again for the slap-slap of waves against the bow of an enemy sampan.

NIGHT EXPLODES

Suddenly the night explodes in light. A flare balloons down to earth on a tiny parachute. An outpost is under attack. Not knowing the size of the attacking force, the American patrol decides against attacking the attackers. Instead the squad leader breaks radio-silence, gives the location as best he can figure it and calls for an air strike.

Then the men pick up their rifles and begin the long walk back through the jungle, always along a new route, always in the same silence.

Conservatives Name Officers

OTTAWA (CP)—Del O'Brien, a 30-year-old Pembroke, Ont., lawyer, was elected president of the Young Progressive Conservatives at their annual meeting here.

Jean Sirois, 28, of Quebec City was named vice-president, and Helen Gillis, 25, of Halifax, secretary.

Mr. O'Brien succeeds Walter R. E. Goodfellow, 31, of Halifax, president for the last two years.

Elected regional officers were Lorne McGuigan, 30, of Saint John, N.B., for the Atlantic provinces; Michael Meighen, 26, of Montreal, grandson of the late Conservative prime minister, for Quebec; John Vivash, 27, of Oshawa, for Ontario; Larry Lang, 29, of Cardston, Alta., for the Prairie provinces; and Brian Smith, 31, of Victoria, for British Columbia, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Nkrumah Repeats Return Pledge

DAKAR, Senegal (Reuters)—Kwame Nkrumah, ousted president of Ghana, told Ghanaians he knows they will crush their new regime "at the appropriate time."

He repeated his pledge to return home soon.

Speaking in a special broadcast over Radio Guinea to mark the ninth anniversary of Ghana's independence from Britain, Nkrumah accused the coup leaders of insane acts of robbery, violence and assassination, saying they have added brutality to their treason.

The broadcast was delivered in level tones in contrast to the emotional tenor of his first speech, since his recent overthrow, which he made to a Guinean crowd Thursday.

KLAN OFFERS A WORD

LAPPS RADIATE MORE

HELSINKI (AP)—Laplappers are two or three times more radioactive than other inhabitants of Finland, a study has found. Though the level is well below danger, nuclear fallout has contaminated the lichen which feeds reindeer which feed the Lapps.

WATCH FREE RIDERS

JAIPUR (AP)—General K. M. Cariappa, chairman of the All-India Sports Council, is unhappy with the trips athletic teams take abroad. He said in many cases more officials than competitors make the free journey.

Here is a case where East made a spectacular play to defeat the contract. West led a spade against three notrump. East took the A-Q and then had to decide what to play next.

After thinking the matter over, he came forth with the only play which could defeat the contract—the king of hearts! As a result of this play, West acquired an entry to cash his spades and South eventually went down four.

Note that a low heart return instead of the king, would not have done the job. Declarer would have made nine tricks by establishing the diamonds.

From an East viewpoint the king of hearts return had to be the right play. He had to credit West with either the queen of hearts or ace of clubs as an entry to the spades; otherwise, declarer was virtually certain to make the contract with the aid of dummy's diamonds.

No great harm could come from leading the king of hearts, even if it turned out that South had the queen, but much harm could come from returning a club if it turned out that South had the ace. A club return could give South the timing to establish the diamonds and make the contract; the king of hearts return, though unusual was much more likely to do declarer in.

Election Issue In Britain May Have Effect In Canada

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the issues in the current British election campaign may have a bearing on the trend of government, business and labor thinking in Canada.

It is Britain's prices and incomes policy, to which the labor government of Prime Minister Wilson is committed. So committed, in fact, it is that a few days before the election was called the government introduced a new bill putting sharp teeth into the policy.

How the policy fares at the polls will be watched with interest here. The Canadian government has been cautious about commenting on either British or American wages and prices policies or guide-posts as they affect the internal economies of those two countries.

But the federal government has certainly been advised to adopt some sort of wage and prices policy. The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) has twice suggested it in the international body's annual reports on Canada. And the Economic Council of Canada has indicated the need, though it hasn't proposed a formula.

Finding a formula may be the most difficult hurdle since only under a wartime emergency has Ottawa the power to control prices and wages directly.

The new British bill requires businessmen, for instance, to give advance notice to a national board of prices and incomes of any proposed increase in prices or of any awards and settlements in labor negotiations. The board then has the authority to prevent the increases going into effect.

Such a thing would be unconstitutional here. The provinces might have authority to do so, but machinery on any interprovincial or national basis to exercise provincial authority in the field would be expensive and cumbersome.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE MAJOR HOOPLE

GOOD MORNING, VICKIE!

MORNING, TEACHER!

PERHAPS THERE'S A MORE OBVIOUS ANSWER—I MAY HAVE TRIED TO RUSH HIM! QUINCY TOLD ME TO BE PATIENT!

DART TO PUT THE SORRY TO YOUR DART INTO YOUR BALLOON, MAJOR, BUT BOTH THEORIES ARE WRONG! THE MAN WHO SOLD HIM WAS A CLEVER GUY—HE SAID "THE GUY CAN'T TALK!"

NEITHER CAN THE MAJOR NOW.

GRANDMA

REALLY, GRANDMA...

I THINK I DO ENOUGH JUST BRINGING YOUR MAIL-ORDER ART LESSONS TO YOU!

SO CAN'T YOU FIND SOMEBODY ELSE TO POSE FOR YOU?

YOU'RE A GREAT PUPPETEER, RONNA— THAT SALUTE WOULD BE LIKE A CHARM!

BUT THE COLONEL WON'T BE SO CHARMING WHEN HE COMES TO PHIL!

SHOULDN'T WE DUMP HIM?

CAN'T AFFORD TO—

WE NEED A PASSPORT TO THE BORDER. HE'S IT.

HENRY

WHILE I AM OUT, DO NOT BLOW BUBBLES IN THE HOUSE, HENRY!

THE LONE RANGER

EVEN IF THE ASSASSIN GOT AWAY, THE AMERICAN GOVERNOR IS SAFE!

I DON'T BELIEVE HE IS, CAPTAIN! I'D LIKE TO MEET WITH HIM TONIGHT.

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK GOVERNOR LOPEZ WOULD MEET WITH A MASKED MAN?

SHOW HIM THIS!

THAT NIGHT, AT THE TEXAS RANGERS' BACKPACKS...

WHEN I SAW YOUR SILVER BULLET, I ASKED TO THIS MEETING. THANK YOU FOR HELPING ME ESCAPE THE ASSASSIN!

YOU HAVEN'T REALLY RECALLED THEM!

NUBBIN

NUBBIN IS PRETTY HARD TO FIGURE OUT, ISN'T HE?

YES, HE DOES HAVE SOME PECULIAR WAYS!

BUT THERE'S ONE THING I KNOW FOR SURE ABOUT HIM...

HE LOVES THAT HAMMOCK!

JOE PALOOKA

STEVE REALLY CAME ON STRONG WITH THE GIRLS, DAD! I'M ASKING HIM TO GO SKIING WITH US THIS WEEK-END!

I'M NOT AT ALL SURPRISED!

IN FACT I THINK YOU'RE SHOWING EXTREMELY GOOD JUDGMENT!

OF COURSE I AM, SILLY! I'M YOUR DAUGHTER, AREN'T I?

KATHY... IF I CAN BE SERIOUS FOR A MOMENT—THERE'S SOMETHING I WANT TO ASK YOU ABOUT HIM!

MUGGS & SKETER

GOOD MORNING, VICKIE!

MORNING, TEACHER!

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOUR CHEEK, DEAR?

NOTHING THAT I KNOW OF... WHY?

IT'S ALL RED... CHAPPED BY THE COLD, I GUESS...

OH, THAT'S NOT CHAP, TEACHER.

... I KISSED GRANDPA GOOD-BYE THIS MORNING BEFORE HE'D SHAVED!

L'IL ABNER

YOU HAVE NO ASSETS, SO WHY HESITATE SIGNING 'EM OVER TO ME?

STOP HER!!

WHY?

I CAN'T TELL YOU!! SOB!!

STOP CRIVIN' SO LOUD, YOUNG BULLMOOSE!!—AN' YOU OLD BULLMOOSE, STOP LAFFIN' SO LOUD!!

IT'S SIGNED!! HAW!! HAW!!
