Better Trading Facilities Between Georgetown, Souris and Annandale.

SIR.—It is apparent to anyone visiting any of the above mentioned villages during the summer months that there is in their business transactions with each other a very sluggish feeling. It is my intention, in these letters to try and show the public the true cause of the small trade done between these ports. The first thing to be done, is to a certain the resources and natural advantages possessed by these three ports for trading purposes. We shall first consider Georgetown which, with its fine harbor, fed by Cardigan and Grand rivers, would seem to be destined to be a place of great business activity. But what are the facts? For about two months in the fall, and for about one in the spring of the year.

There is—putting together the shipping done at Cardigan, Newport, Montague and other wharves, on these rivers along with it—a considerable trade carried on. There is, also, during these periods, a considerable amount of trading between Georgetown and Grand River. But when this is over there is, all through the long summer months, a dullness in trade that must make strangers sometimes feel that the people are all asleep. The same remark will also do very well to be applied to Souris and Annandale, except that in the case of Souris, there is a considerable amount of trade done with Nova Scotian and American fishermen who seek in the shelter of its breakwater a refuge from the northers that sweep down the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the late summer and fall months. But still every one will admit that for the amount of public money spent by both the Local and Dominion Governments, on the Public Works at Souris East, and Souris West, and also being fed by the Railroad, which carries all the surplus produce lying between Five Houses, and Souris, to the latter place for shipment, that there is not the feeling of business prosperity that there should be. Now, for Annandale, it is situated, as everyone doubtless knows, at the mouth of Grand River. It is distant from Souris by water about ten miles, and by land about fourteen. By crossing Grand River and Cardigan ferries the distance to Georgetown is about eight miles. But by water or by the road about twelve, and twenty respectively. Grand River Harbor is generally the last harbor on the Island to freeze up, and the first to open to navigation in the spring. But this is offset by the want of a good depth of water, in the channel across the bar. In former years when vessels did not draw so much water as the deep keeled American and Nova Scotian fishing schooners do at present, the want of a good channel dredged was not felt as much as at present. There is a large number of fine farming communities on each side of the river, stretching away out towards Cardigan on the one side and St. Peter's on the other. The districts of Leucibus, St. George's, Dundas, Upton, Albion Cross, Little Pond and Little River, are too well known for their fine farms, to need any remarks. But with all these advantages neither Dundas, Bridgetown or Annandale are growing in importance as they should. It can be clearly seen that as Annandale is centrally situated between Georgetown and Souris, there should be a continuous traffic between Souris, and Georgetown running through it, causing a feeling of prosperity throughout all the surrounding country. But as this letter has reached a decent length I will close, and in my next show how Georgetown, and Grand River Harbor have not had a fair share of Government money spent in protecting them and in nourishing the growth of trade in their waters, Grand River particularly having much room for complaint in this respect.

Well Made and Makes Well

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists of today, who have brought to the production of this great medicine the best results of medical research. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, containing just those vegetable ingredients which were seemingly intended by Nature herself for the alleviation of human ills. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach and digestive organs and creates an appetite; it absolutely cures all scrofula eruptions, boils, pimples, sores, salt rheum, and every form of skin disease; cures liver complaint, kidney troubles, strengthens and builds up the nervous system. It entirely overcomes that tired feeling, giving strength and energy in place of weakness and languor. It wards off malaria, typhoid fever, and by purifying the blood it keeps the whole system healthy.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills and Sick Headache. 20c.

QUEER OLD NATURE.

"Why is it," asked a wondering child (Sweet, simple little thing),
"That the foolish tree puts on its clothes
When the sun shines in the spring,
And then, when chilly autumn comes
And the winds of winter blow,
Why does it stand out there, all bare,
In the frost and sleet and snow?"

"Wise nature has arranged it thus,"
I told the little one.
"The rustling leaves can only live
Beneath a smiling sun;
The tree that in the summer time
Makes shady bowers for you
Must have its rest, therefore it stands
Asleep the winter through."

She sat in silence for awhile
And gazed far into space,
And lines of thought and trouble came
To mar her childish face,
And so, at last, she turned and said:
"I'm sorry for the tree,
And glad that nature wasn't left
To fix things up for me!"

NOBODY CLAIMED THE PAPER

A Rebuke by General Washington That Evidently Frightened the Owner.

Major William Pierce left behind him a partial record of the debates in Philadelphia which supplement those of Madison, Yates and King; also the following anecdote:

When the convention first opened at Philadelphia, there were a number of propositions brought forward as great leading principles for the new government to be established for the United States. A copy of these propositions was given to each member, with an injunction to keep everything a profound secret. One morning, by accident, one of the members dropped his copy of the propositions, which, being luckily picked up by General Washington, our president, who put it in his pocket. After the debates of the day were over and the question for adjournment was called for the general arose from his seat and, previous to his putting the question, addressed the convention in the following manner:

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to find that some one member of this body has been so neglectful of the secrets of the convention as to drop in the statehouse a copy of their proceedings, which by accident was picked up and delivered to me this morning. I must entreat gentlemen to be more careful. Let our transactions get into the newspapers and disturb the public repose by premature speculations. I know not whose paper it is, but there it is (throwing it down on the table). Let him who owns it take it." At the same time he bowed, picked up his hat and quitted the room with a dignity so severe that every person seemed alarmed. For my part, I was extremely so, for, putting my hand in my pocket, I missed my copy of the same paper, but, advancing up to the table, my fears soon dissipated. I found it to be the handwriting of another person. When I went to my lodgings at the Indian Queen, I found my copy in a coat pocket which I had pulled off that morning. It is something remarkable that no person ever owned the paper.—American Historical Review.

Inadequate Identification.

A woman who is newly come to town went into one of the banks one day last week to have a check cashed. The paying teller examined the check with that air of suspicion a paying teller never loses.

"You'll have to be identified, madam," he said politely.
The woman was in a great hurry.
"Identified!" she said. "Why, I haven't time to go and get anybody to identify me! Besides, I don't know three people in town."

"I'm sorry," said the teller, "but the rule is invariable."

"But," protested the woman, "I really am the Mary L. Brown named on the check. You don't doubt that, do you?"

The teller looked embarrassed.
"It's only a form, madam," he said, "but we must insist on some identification."

A happy thought struck the woman. Her name was on her handkerchief.
"Would the name on my handkerchief be any identification?" she asked. The teller replied that it would.

"Well, then," said she majestically, handing over the square of linen, "perhaps you'll be good enough to give me the money now!"

The teller examined the handkerchief and handed it back without a word. In one corner was daintily written in indelible ink, "Sarah Jones."

The check was not cashed till next day, and the newly arrived woman has discharged her laundress.—Washington Post.

BETTER than cure is prevention. By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla you may keep well, with pure blood, strong nerves and a good APPETITE.

ADMISSION 10c.

Valuable Property BY AUCTION

I am instructed by S. Geo. Thorne to sell at auction, on TUESDAY,

May 3rd, at 12 o'clock, that very desirable property, situated on the Lower Spring Park Road—head of Pownall Street. The house is in excellent condition, contains fine large shop, dining room, kitchen and pantry, and thirteen spacious and well finished rooms. Large frost-proof cellar, together with barn. The halls and rooms are all painted—with two exceptions. In fact everything is in first class condition, and affords an excellent chance for some one to do business; as it is an old established stand.

A portion of the purchase money may remain secured on the premises.

Terms at sale.
