Family Entertained Before Departure

Mr. and Mrs. Reagh Sudsbury and family, who are moving from their Kensington home to one in Charlottetown, were pleasantly surprised on Wednesday night, November 12th, when their neighbours invaded their home to give them a farewell party.

Mr. Edison Raynor was Master of Ceremonies, and after briefly expressing the regret of the assembled guests on losing such popular neighbours, he called on quite a number for contributions to a pleasing programme of vocal solos, duets, readings and a sing song.

A feature of the program was the reading of an address and presentation of an appropriate gift to the Sudsbury family. Mr. and Mrs. Sudsbury expressed their appreciation for the gift and their regret on leaving "Paddy's Land."

A delicious lunch was served by the ladies after which all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne and "God Save the Queen."

Let's Talk It Over

One of the noteworthy features of our modern civilization is the institution of "Weeks". We have "Education Week," "Fire Prevention Week," "Fish Week" and many others. The idea, of course, is to bring the particular subject before the public, and to sell the idea to as many people as possible so that some of the salutary effects of the drive may last throughout the other 51 weeks of the year. This is "Young Canada's Book Week." It is a pretty important one, because young Canadians, growing up in a restless world with a great many external attractions and distractions, and a regular diet of capsule reading such as the comic books provide, are inclined to turn away from the pleasures of book-reading.

The schools emphasize the benefits of book reading more than they have ever done, and doubtless they are helping to stem the adverse tide, but a concerted drive such as takes place in Young Canada's Book Week should produce beneficial results. If you, as a volunteer in this worthwhile drive, can convert one youngster to book reading, he will probably carry this cheapest and most enjoyable of pleasures throughout his life, especially into the less energetic sixties and seventies, when reading often becomes the all-engrossing pastime. We shall probably never gain back all our lost ground, however. Radio had cut deep into the time taken up in book-reading, and television will no doubt make more disastrous inroads.
