W. Prince Music Festival Receives Warm Praise

TIGNISH — Christoper Gledhill, MA, B. Mus (Oxon), provincial director of music for schools and organist and choirmaster at Kirk of St. James, Charlottetown received a formal welcome to the first West Prince Musical Festival at Tignish Tuesday evening. Gerald Haadrahan, second vice-president of the Home and School association; Everett Broderick, chairman of school trustees, and Sister St. Mary Arnold, school principal gave Mr. Gledhill a warm welcome to the festival that commenced in the village Saturday.

The speakers said it was a privilege and pleasure to assist in the opening. Compliments were paid Sister St. George, music teacher of the village schools, and Sister St. Rosalia, superior of Tignish convent for their incentive in undertaking this project.

The speakers hoped that this festival may grow and be made part of the Island's musical festival, as it is a tremendous advantage to the boys and girls in this area. Sister St. Mary Arnold introduced Mr. Gledhill.

Mr. Gledhill said he was very flattered by the remarks and he was honored to be invited to adjudicate the festival. "What I say may not always be completely agreeable," he said, "but I will try and say it in a nice way, as my job is to try and improve music in our schools."

Speaking of the shortage of music teachers on the Island, he said any teacher may now take a six-weeks musical training course and the department grants a fee to help pay expenses.

He encouraged the small schools to get record players and records to help musical interest among the pupils. Anglo-Tignish who performed earlier in the day gave a remarkable demonstration, he said and this training was from a record.

He praised the sisters for making the festival possible, and said no fee would be charged by him, as he considered this part of his work. Funds received he hoped would be used as working capital for next year.

Maintain Standards, Tourist Ass'n Urged

By ELDON LARRABEE

Present standards must be maintained in regards to cost and accommodation for tourists on the Island during the 1964 centennial celebrations or Island tourism will suffer in years to come, said L.G. Ecroyd, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, Toronto. He addressed the dinner meeting of the P.E.I. Tourist Association at the Charlottetown Hotel last evening.

Islanders must face the responsibility of providing the food and accommodations for the many travellers that will come in '64, said Mr. Ecroyd, and make sure the tourists leave with pleasant memories of their Island visit.

LIQUOR SALE

Mr. Ecroyd stated that it was the people's privilege to refuse the sale of liquor openly in bars and taverns. However hotel and motel keepers should make it known to tourists where liquor may be obtained when such information is requested.

Tourism in Canada, he said, is the fastest growing enterprise and in a few years probably will be the major earner of foreign currency for Canadd Internationally it is the world's biggest business with $8,000,000,000 spent annually. A great change in tourism in all nations has taken place in the last 20 years, in 1946 only 40 per cent of the world's land mass was suitable for tourism and now 90 per cent is available to travellers.

Canada's foreign currency earnings through tourism have doubled over the past ten years, said Mr. Ecroyd, and by 1967 it is expected that they will double again. But our growth in international tourism is below average.

The Canadian people, he said, have been far too complacent about helping this industry come abreast of its potential and are now only beginning to realize this.

Mr. Ecroyd states that despite the growth in business from foreign tourists, Canadians still spend considerably more outside their country on travel, than foreigners spend here.

Canada, he said, is not tapping the U.S. travel market; out of the billions that Americans spend on tourism only half a billion will be left in Canada. This is poor considering the location of the U.S.A. to Canada and that the Canadian and U.S. border is the easiest in the world to cross for travel purposes.

Many people in the world know little about the tourist facilities available in Canada and this is the fault of all levels of government and those connected with tourist promotion, he said. Mr. Ecryd stated that these were just some of the reasons why he was not happy with Canada's competitive progress in the tourist field.

SOME PROGRESS

He mentioned that much was being done to remedy the situation by, Canadian transportation companies and those directly connected with the tourist business through promotion and advertising. On the local level he said it was the government's job to do the advertising and the duty of the people was to see that they are things for the tourists to see and do.

Hon. J.D. Stewart, in a short address, said the Confederation Chambers would open this weekend and weather permitting the travel bureau would open in the very near future. He said some changes had been made in regards to advertising for the tourist industry and he felt that these changes would bring more people to the Island.

The guests at the head table included Gordon Shaw, past president of the association; W. A. Macnald, co-ordinator of the Sutheastern New Brunswick Tourist Bureau; Mrs. Frank Pellerin; Hon. J.D. Stewart, provincial minister of tourist development; George Fraser, director of P.E.I. Travel Bureau; Frank Pellerin, vice-president of the association; Mrs. Charles Linkletter, L.G. Ecroyd, and Charles Linkletter, president of the association.

Albert Blanchard, provided the dinner music.

Tignish Squadron Has Inspection

TIGNISH — Inspecting officer, Wing Cmdr. R.M. Bubel, CD, had high praise for Tignish Air Cadet Squadron No. 641, as he carried out the annual inspection of the squadron at the Legion Home Tuesday evening.

The 32 cadets along with their officers were on hand for the inspection. The squadron ranking with the top 11 in Canada, and first on the Island with Flt. Sgt. Roger Pedersen in command gave an outstanding display of drill that won for them the Island drill competition trophy in April.

In his remarks to the squadron Wing Cmdr. Bubel told the boys that air cadet training is one of the finest available to youth today, preparing them to take their place in life in whatever field they choose. He also expressed pleasure at the attendance of a large number of parents at the annual inspection.

He spoke of the opportunity opened to cadets in flying scholarships, summer camps and exchange visits. Sgt. Perry and Flt. Sgt. Pedersen have been chosen from No, 641 squadron for a leadership course and exchange visit.

Certificates and prizes were presented to successful cadets by Wing Cmdr. Bubel. Cpl. David Perry was promoted to sergeant AC Terry Arsenault and AC William Waite were promoted to corporals.

Valmore Richard was awarded a prize for the best all around cadet. Kevin Perry was awarded a prize for the best first year cadet. Roger Pedersen received the non-commissioned officers prize.

Other officers attending the annual inspection were Sqdn. Ldr. A. Delmotte, senior air cadet liaison officer; Flt. Lt. S. Moir, liaison officer, RCAF station Summerside and Dr. G. J. Gallant, past president of P.E.I. air cadet committee.

Flt. Lt. R.S. McLeod, commanding officer; FO Hector Buote; civil instructor Earl MacDonald; E.C. Perry, chairman of the sponsoring committee of the Legion, and Russell Perry along with the inspection officers were taken on a tour of cadet work, and later were served a lunch by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Sell 'Friendliness' Industry Advised

The greatest selling job tourist operators and their staffs can do lies in the field of selling "friendliness", W.A. MacDonald, of the Southeastern New Brunswick Tourist Bureau, told members of the P.E.I. Tourist Association yesterday.

The Association held its semi-annual meeting at Charlottetown yesterday, in conjunction with a "hospitality conference". Presiding at the meeting is Charles Linkletter, Association president, Summerside.

In charge of the all-Canadian "Project Hospitality" is L.G. Ecroyd, executive director, Canadian Tourist Association, who has been presenting his program for improvement in the industry at meetings all across the country.

LARGE REPRESENTATION

A large number of members of the local association were on hand for the opening sessions of the conference, when Mr. Ecroyd and Mr. MacDonald were introduced by president Linkletter. Present were members from various sections of Kings County, the North Shore, Charlottetown and vicinity, Summerside and other sections of Prince County as well as from scattered communities across the province.

Using the workshop technique for the discussion periods Mr. MacDonald opened the session with methods of operating "hospitality school" in every community, small or large.

Mr. MacDonald said one of the most important factors in community tourist work was in having everyone conscious of the great economic impact on the region of a successful tourist industry.

To promote this, he suggested everyone become thoroughly familiar with the natural, or man-made, tourist attractions in the region. He suggested this could best be accomplished by the holding of meetings attended by all those who come in daily contact with the travelling public.

INCLUDES EVERYONE

He said this large group included everyone from the waitresses in restaurants to clerks in stores, gas station attendants and park officials, taxi drivers and policemen.

Mr. Ecroyd noted too often there was an absence of a friendly smile for the visitor, instead the stranger is given efficient but impersonal service and special efforts to make him feel welcome are lacking.

Seal Pelts Ownership Case Waiting For Final Witness

The ownership of the large number of seal pelts removed from the ice fields in 1962 may not be determined for several weeks as one more witness is to be heard, then time must be allowed to examine the evidence before judgement is passed.

The hearing was "recessed" yesterday for an indefinite period until the final witness could appear.

Three witnesses gave testimony yesterday. They were Irvine Denker of Denker Inc., New York, one of the defendants; Russell Dockendorff, St. Peters, who guarded the warehouse in Morell where marked pelts were later discovered; Connellus Sampson, who owned a storage shed in Rustico, and Sheriff Townshend, of Queens county who carried out the seizure of pelts in Rustico and later released them to Denker Inc.

Evidence given yesterd ay showed that some pelts removed from the Morell warhouse bore certain marks which according to the defendents had not been noticed when they were first put in storage.

The plaintiffs, however, contend that these marks are the identification marks put there by the sealing ships when they were still on the ice, and were therefore rightfully theirs.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

ILKESTON, England (CP)— When Diane Hickinbotham won four major beauty queen titles she decided her surname wasn't quite up to expectation for an aspiring movie star and sought to change it by deed poll. Now she has changed her mind because the name is unusual and "all the other Hickinbothams in Britain will be rather pleased."

RECORD

which "will take some months to complete."

It was also "pressing forward" with a review of recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

The new spending program, however, contains no funds for several new measures the government has said it will implement. As well, unforeseen costs always crop up as the year progresses, requiring supplementary appropriations which in recent years have ranged from $120,000,000 to $280,000,000.

These will have to be taken into account in Mr. Gordon's budget speech in which tax and fiscal policies for the coming year will be charted.

CONSIDERS STATEMENT

The only Commons comment was made by former Conservative finance minister George Nowlan. He gave a non-committal undertaking to give "proper consideration" to Mr. Gordon's statement, and expressed the hope that the former government's economy efforts would be pursued.

He also suggested some action to validate last year's spending estimates which were never approved before Parliament was dissolved last Feb. 6 for the election.
