A GREAT SCREAMER

More than 50 years ago Lachlan McDonald left his home in Strathspay, Scotland, and went to the shores of Lake Winnipeg. He did not neglect to carry with him his beloved bagpipe, and many an evening it spoke to him of the old home beyond the seas.

Even in the daytime, when he was busy in the woods felling trees, he would have it by his side, and on one occasion he had reason to be glad that it was so near.

He was merrily swinging his ax, when he was suddenly surrounded by a party of Indians, who looked very formidable as they drew nearer, gesticulating in a particularly threatening manner. Things began to seem ominous, when a happy thought came to the Scotchman.

Seizing his bagpipe, he blew a blast so loud and long and shrill that the startled red men looked upon him for a moment in consternation and then took to their heels, never stopping till the thick shadows of the forest hid them from the man who could give vent to such an unearthly scream.

They did not forget that prolonged cry; from that time the Scotchman was known among them as "the great screamer of the palefaces."—Exchange.

A Famous English Inn.

One of the oldest and most picturesque inns in all England is the Crab Tree inn in Fordham. Here cyclists from all over Britain have congregated and here men famous in literary annals like Kipling, Haggard and Andrew Lang have "put up" for an hour or two to rest and quaff the ale dispensed by this ancient hostelry.

The story runs that Robert Burns and Sir Walter Scott once partook of the hospitality of the place, and the queen herself, it is reported, once stopped by the wayside to partake of a frugal bowl of milk and crackers. The initials of men illustrious in Great Britain's history are graven upon the surface of its deal tables, and its very window panes are littered with the names of Macaulay, Dickens and Thackeray. It has been put in at least one book, and J. Quiller Couch has used it as the scene for one of his terrible tragedies.

SAVE THE MOTHERS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Their Only Safety in Female Diseases.

You have seen a flower nipped by frost, fade and die in the flush of its beauty. That is how women die when attacked by any of the diseases peculiar to their sex.

Woman's burdens are woefully heavy. Her sufferings are agonizing. Her patience is grand. Disease preys upon her. The light dies out of her eyes, her steps become slow and dragging; she loses flesh; grows sallow, listless, droops like a flower. Then she dies. Her family is left to the cold mercy of the world.

"Mother's dead!" What a piteous phrase. What sufferings have been endured before it was used. Why should mothers, wives, sisters suffer so? They need not. Dodd's Kidney Pills will quickly and thoroughly cure all cases of Female Weakness. They never fail. They give health, strength, courage: a new lease of life.

BEARS' GREAT STRENGTH

Yes, the strength of grizzly bears is almost beyond belief. I have read about the powerful muscles in the arms of African gorillas, but none can compare with those in the arms and shoulders of big grizzly bears. I have seen a grizzly bear with one fore paw shot into uselessness pull its own 1,100 pounds of meat and bone up precipices and perform feats of muscle that trained athletes could not do. I have seen grizzly bears carrying the carcasses of pigs that must have weighed 70 pounds several miles across a mountain side to their lair, and I have heard hunters tell of having seen cows knocked down as if by a thunderbolt with one blow of the fore paw of a bear.

Three summers ago I spent the season in the coast mountains up in Monterey county, and one moonlight night I saw a big grizzly bear in the act of carrying a dead cow home to her cub. I had a position on the mountain side where I could see every movement of the bear in the sparsely timbered valley below me. The critter carried the dead cow in her fore paws for at least three miles, across jagged, sharp rocks ten feet high, over fallen logs, around the rocky mountain sides, where even a jackass could not get a foothold, to a narrow trail up the steep mountain. She never stopped to rest for a moment, but went right along. I followed, and just about half a mile from the bear's lair I laid her low. The heifer weighed at least 200 pounds, and the bear would have tipped the beam at about 450 pounds.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

General McDowell.

I have never met any one who gave me a stronger impression of honesty and sincerity than Irvin McDowell. He was then in the prime of life—40 or 45 years old—powerfully built, but rather ponderous in movement, kindly and simple in manner, with a very pleasant, soldierly face, a water drinker and almost a vegetarian. After the cruel war was over I met him one day in some foreign city—Vienna, I think—and as we were conversing he said, "Strange, isn't it, our encounter today?"

"Why so, general?"
"Have you forgotten? This is the 21st of July—the anniversary of Bull Run. Had I won that battle I would have been one of the most popular men in the United States and you would have been another. I need not say how much it is the other way with us now."

"But I do not think his countrymen blamed him after all. When I went to the United States some years ago, I found him in command at San Francisco—much changed, aged and sad, but courteous and kindly as ever. I told him that I had in a place of honor at home the photograph which he gave me before he left my lodgings the day he was looking for Barry's guns. "And I suppose," he said, "your friends ask, 'Who on earth was General McDowell?'"—Sir W. H. Russell in North American Review.

ARCHAEOLOGY AND THE BIBLE

Oriental archaeology affords us a test and a measure for Old Testament history; it is not a substitute for it. There are large portions of Old Testament history which can only be illustrated by archaeological research not covered by it—portions which from the necessity of the case do not admit of monumental confirmation. The scenes of home life in the history of the patriarchs, for example, can never be the subject of an inscription. All the archaeologists can do is to illustrate them from the life of other orientals and to show that they contain nothing which is inconsistent with either history or geography. So, again, the wanderings of the Israelites in the desert are not likely to be recorded on the monuments of the past, but it can be shown that these wanderings are the necessary interlude between the exodus from Egypt and the conquest of Canaan and that for both the latter events there is sufficient archaeological testimony. Archaeology is the handmaid of the Bible, not its substitute.—Professor Sayre in Homiletic Review.

Charles Francis Adams.

Few people refer to Charles Francis Adams as general, but, as the Boston Globe says, he "saw not only a great deal of active military service during the civil war, but commanded a regiment of Massachusetts soldiers, among whom there were scores of distinguished heroes. At the head of the Fifth Massachusetts cavalry Colonel Adams led his men through several active engagements, and his conduct at the battles of Secessionville, South Mountain and Antietam was characterized in the general order that brevetted him brigadier general of United States volunteers as 'distinguished gallantry and efficiency.' In the same order his record is referred to as one of 'meritorious services during the war.' This order was dated 1867, the title of general to date from 1865."

Character in Dress.

One may have a good ear for music, and yet be unable to define what constitutes good music.

A man may know the sort of clothes he wants to wear, when he sees them, and yet be unable to describe their peculiarities to a tailor.

But it is just these little peculiarities which make character in dress, which harmonize it with the wearer's individuality, with his ambitions, mental proclivities, habit of figure, carriage of head and shoulders, etc.

"Fit-Reform" clothes (ready-made) are facts—not prophecies—and their effect can, by trying them on, therefore, be judged, before purchasing.

Price is about half that of the Custom Tailor for similar grades, viz., $20.00, $18.00, $15.00, $12.00, $10.00 per suit.
