A MAORI RESURRECTED.

A Priest Said to Have Performed the Miracle.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec 10—New Zealand papers received per steamship Mowera, report great excitement among the Tauranga natives owing to the reported resurrection of a Maori girl by the Maori King Te Henui, or his father confessor, called Te Rere. Te Rere, a confessed wizard, was accused of causing the death of many natives by witchcraft, and Father Te Henui was sent for. Among those whom Te Rere, as alleged, had killed, by witchcraft was one Marita, a young girl. Arriving at the scene of the trouble, the priest called on Te Rere, who acknowledged that he had killed Marita, but no one else. Te Henui told Re Rere he would save him this time, but that if he killed more people he would himself die and be torn to pieces in hell. The King's confessor then ordered the coffin of the dead girl, Marita, to be brought into the street. Thousands of people were present when this was done. A mass of humanity watched the proceedings.

To Elan shouted in a loud voice to the mourners to stop weeping, that Marita would be restored to them. He then placed his hands on the girl's forehead, and performing some incantation, told her to rise, which she did to the astonishment of all present.

The Maoris are frantic with joy, and are showering presents on the priest. The authorities have investigated the matter, and severely questioned Marita, who says she has been in heaven. That the girl was about to be buried, and would have been but for the arrival of the priest, is vouched for by scores of white persons. An explanation of the strange happening is not yet forthcoming. The priest insists that any hold person can bring back the spirit of a person that has been chased away by witchcraft.

Holy Land a Disappointment.

A despatch to the New York World from Berlin says: Disappointment was the dominant impression left in the Kaiser's mind by his visit to the Holy Land. His address to the evangelical clergy of Bethlehem, now first published, candidly expressed the feeling. He said:

"To describe the impressions of the last few days I must say I am above all things very disappointed. I did not want to say that here, but as I have heard that my court chaplain felt the same thing I will not keep it from you.

"It may be that the unfavorable approach to the town of Jerusalem contributed to this, but when one sees the state of things at holy places, and what goes on there, it cuts into one's heart."

"Only the Christian life can make an impression upon Mohammedans. Nobody can wonder if they have no respect for the Christians in ecclesiastical matters, as the Christians are divided. They must be prevented, even by force, from quarrelling with one another at this sacred spot."

The Emperor has said since his return: "My visit to Jerusalem has shattered the dearest illusion of my heart. Its squalor and undignified decay are indescribable."

CHRISTMAS MAGAZINE.

THE CANADIAN.

A very handsome cover, in bright warm colours, encloses the Christmas number of the Canadian Magazine. The front piece is a reproduction in colours of the famous picture, "The Berry Pickers," by G. R. Reid, President of the Ontario Society of Artists. Grant Allen contributes a very good Christmas story, which is thoroughly illustrated. "Kit" writes another entitled "Holy Saint Clause," illustrating the fact that Santa Clause is a German Saint, and that Irish children have difficulty in understanding him. All the children in the world do not know of our Santa Claus. The story by "Kit" is one of her bright Irish tales, with which nothing that is written in this country can compare. Eva Hamilton Young tells something about the origin of Christmas carols, Christmas boxes, and other customs peculiar to the Anglo-Saxon. W. L. Edmunds gives the origin of the dried fruits which we use at this season in our Christmas puddings and other delicacies. Besides these seasonable features, there are articles and short stories in the usual profession. Capt. Bell continues his story of Lord Walsley's expedition. Julian Durham describes the twelve-year-old city of Vancouver. Florence Hamilton Randal gives the history of Rideau Hall, and tells some good stories of former royal occupants—old and young. Altogether the number is a most attractive one, there being over 190 pages within the artistic cover. Canadian writers and publishers are making such rapid progress that we no longer need to go abroad to secure Christmas souvenirs.

Carelessness in girlhood causes the greatest suffering and unhappiness in after life. Little irregularities and weaknesses in girls should be looked after promptly and treatment given at once. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promotes regularity of all feminine functions, makes strength and builds up a sturdy health with which to meet the trials to come. The Favorite Prescription is not a universal panacea. It is good for but one thing. It is directed solely at one set of organs.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1008 page medical work, profusely illustrated, will be sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover postage only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR

THE WOMEN

The Uses of Sulphur.

The virtue of sulphur as a medicine is well known; many housekeepers use it for bleaching, and many more, in recent years, in the convenient form of sulphur candles, as a disinfectant. But comparatively few know what an admirable weapon it is—in this same convenient form—in the hands of the careful housewife who is obliged to wage continual warfare against various insects.

A new England lady who had moved into a new house and appropriated one of the hall bedrooms—in the absence of a New England attic—for a storage room was fairly appalled when she went to it one day after the rest of the dwelling was in order, to find it as, she said, "alive with moth millers." Fearing that they would invade the rest of the house, she darted back, shut the door and then "put on her thinking cap," for she was a clever woman and fertile in expedients. She had some sulphur candles, and the thought flashed into her mind. "If they will kill germs why not moth millers and moth worms?"

Procuring a china jar, she placed a sulphur candle in it, lighted it and went out, leaving it to burn. At the end of four hours she opened the door, threw up the window, making her escape again as quickly as possible, and then, closing the door, waited until the fumes had passed away.

When she had an opportunity to examine the contents of her store-room she found, to her delight, that her experiment had been a success; millers and moth worms were lifeless. Encouraged by this she tried her new weapon on other house holdpests.

Close the doors and windows of a kitchen in which water-bugs, roaches, or that almost invisible torment red ants flourish; put a sulphur candle in a deep earthen or iron vessel—so deep that there will be no possibility that the flame can set fire to anything and leave until the following morning. Then open the windows to let the fumes escape. For weeks not a vestige of insect life will appear. Every fly will of course be killed, and their eggs are evidently destroyed, too, for their buzzing will not be heard until fresh ones are admitted from the outside.

Care must be taken to guard against fire, and who ever lights the candle must avoid inhaling the sulphur. It must also be remembered that the candles should not be used in a room in which there are gilt paper, picture rods or picture frames.—Mary J. Stafford.

To Make a Good Whitewash.

For a good whitewash for your bedroom ceiling put a piece of lime weighing about five pounds in a granite pan or bucket; pour on it a gallon of water allow it to boil and slack until the steaming is over; take from this two quarts of the liquid lime, put it in a wooden or granite bucket, and add sufficient water to make it rather thin. Add a small amount of pure indigo, sufficient to give it a proper colour; add a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of lambblack, stir well. This will give you a perfectly white ceiling; if you wish it colored, add one of the colorings which you may purchase at any druggist's, stating that it is to be used with lime.—Ladies Home Journal

Brain Food.

What stands at the head of the grains, and containing the greatest amount of muscle-forming food of any of the grains. There is no special food that one can eat to build the brain. That which builds any part of the body will also build the brain. We certainly would be queer specimens indeed if we could eat to build one hand larger than the other, or if we could eat food to develop a bulge at one side and not at the other. Good, wholesome food that thoroughly nourishes and builds the body also thoroughly nourishes and builds the brain.—Ladies Home Journal.

Stranger at Tea.

Do not feel it necessary to put anything more upon the tea-table for guests than you would for your own family. Make a rule about serving each meal; have enough plain, well cooked food, and if the Queen of England should happen in do not make an apology nor add one thing to what is already on the table. Hospitality, after all, is good sauce for the appetite, and if your guest feels that she has upset the routine she will not enjoy the best meal you could put before her.—Ladies Home Journal.
