Renovated Market To Open Thursday

SUMMERSIDE — Gaudet's Save Easy, situated on Granville Street, and one of the top supermarkets on P.E.I., officially opens its doors Thursday following a renovation and enlarging program started three weeks ago.

The store, operated by brothers Mark and Hillary Gaudet, presents a new look and Mark said the renovation was done to "make it more convenient for customers shopping."

Receiving its first facelift since it opened five years ago, some 2,000 square feet have been added to the store, much of it to the storage area. The addition gives the building some 9,000 square feet of space.

The feature of the renovation program is the new refrigerated vegetable and fruit display units which encompass one side of the store. Frozen food units also span the other side of the building and Mr. Gaudet commented "we are now surrounded by these refrigerated units."

This again was done with the thought of more convenience to the shoppers.

Another feature of the supermarket is the meat department which staffs six employees, including Elmer DesRoches, the man in charge.

The store employs a staff of 28, both male and female. The Gaudet brothers are no strangers in this line of work. Prior to opening this supermarket they had worked in a store the brothers plan a sale where their father had been operating since 1921.

Mark is married to the former Marjorie Kennedy of Kensington and the couple have one child, while Hillary's wife is the former Marjorie MacNeill of Richmond and they have two girls and one boy.

To celebrate the expansion and renovation of their store the brothers plan a sale with the store being opened this week on Thursday from 9 in the morning until 9 at night. Store hours on Friday will be 8.30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday, 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Economist Advises Ottawa To Unpeg Canadian Dollar

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian government should improve the dollar before it is forced to take that step, says a Canadian economist writing in the United States treasury department's National Banking Review.

He is Robert A. Mundell of Kingston, now visiting research professor in international economics at the Brookings Institution here, a research organization.

The National Banking Review is an organ of the U.S. comptroller of the currency which carries independent viewpoints without necessarily endorsing them.

Mundell argues this in a paper titled: "Problems of Monetary and Exchange Rate Management in Canada."

The best solution for the Canadian economy at the present time is a resumption of the flexible exchange rate system. The time to release an exchange rate from a fixed value is in a period of relative calm, and not when one-sided speculation in movement has been demonstrated.

It should be introduced liberally. An early moderate appreciation through a market of dollars seems far preferable to a price that is either too high or too low, and on which the government is forced to act.

Canadian financial authorities here say there is no government backing for the Mundell argument, at this time at least.

They say the Mundell views do represent the sentiment among academic economists but that Canada's fixed exchange rate of parity with the U.S. funds—set in May, 1962, during an exchange crisis—remains much better adapted to Canadian needs at this time than a floating dollar rate.

Mundell notes that a flexible exchange rate permits much greater use of monetary policy in preventing inflation or producing jobs.

Mundell was graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1953 and subsequently attended universities in the U.S. and Europe. Later, he held positions at McGill University, UBC, in Italy and with the International Monetary Fund.

continued to have a share in the higher living standards.

"I frankly doubt anyone can reasonably expect free market forces to achieve these aims without other considerations," he said.

Mr. Capon said people have been persuaded that the government can plan the economy and so keep them from want.

R. M. MacInloch of Toronto, assistant general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, laid out the same plan should be only a rational attempt to apply foresight to economic problems.

He said, however, some quarters regard economic planning as nothing more than a device for playing beggar-my-neighbour games among the provinces.

We have seen a fair number of indications in nearly every province that regional planning can be turned into a weapon for the hot-house breeding of local protected industries at the expense of existing industries in other provinces.

"Sometimes the federal government itself seems to take the position that planning means the paring up of declining sectors of the economy."

Dr. J. Pringle of L'Esperance des Etudes Commerciales in Quebec sides there is a danger lack of co-operation between Ottawa and the provinces.

"Getting the support of local planning is difficult, especially in Canada, he added. Both sides agreed, however, reaching plan necessarily involved wide controls and they were not ready to accept that.

Sinatra Feels Spanish Police Gave Him Bum Rap

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The husband of a film star, far-off locations are illustrated by Frank Sinatra's recent encounter with Spanish authorities. Sinatra is back from the Malaga location of Von Ryan's Express, and he's thumping mad. His feet he was routed by the Spanish police on a bum rap and should be taking an apology instead of the $46 fine he was dealt.

The actor isn't talking about the incident in his lawyers are looking into it. But Brad Dexter, who witnessed the whole thing, said he was routed by the affair on his return here.

Dexter, ruggedly built actor who directed the Sinatra side, has been close to Sinatra, especially after helping him in the making of a film that was earlier this year. The pair was having an art - dinner here last night at the hotel of their hotel in Torremolinos a fortnight ago.
