

GERALDINE O'BRIEN, Red Cross volunteer, who has been doing voluntary work in the pediatric department at the City Hospital, is seen reading to Danny Heartz from books presented to him by the Junior Red Cross of P.E.I. prior to his departure for the Children's Hospital in Boston where he is undergoing tests in connection with a rare blood condition from which he is suffering.

Danny Heartz of Oyster Bed Stride is one of the 55 P.E.I. handicapped children for whom treatment was arranged by the Junior Red Cross of this province in 1964 through its Fund for Needy Children at Home and Overseas.

Junior Red Cross members raise in the vicinity of $1,500 for this special fund each year in a variety of ways such as self-denial, concerts, grab bags, auctions, etc. These funds are used entirely to help with treatment of handicapped and needy children at home and abroad and have no connection with the administrative costs of the Junior Red Cross program which in this province, are now raised annually through the P.E.I. United Fund with which the Red Cross is a partner.

Forbes Kennedy Day Proves Big Success

MONTAGUE — The Forbes Kennedy day at Montague yesterday proved a huge success and many students of the schools here will long remember his visit to their school. He spoke briefly then answered questions thrown at him by the students. He stressed the necessity of education cautioning the children to listen to their teachers who were their educational coaches. "If you won't listen to these coaches you will not listen to hockey, ball or any other coaches. Thus you will fail. Education is the one load you should carry. If your marks are good, hockey will help, if they are low you had better out the hockey," he cautioned. Among questions asked was: who will win the national league this year? He stated he felt the Canadians could come up with the trophy; who is the best hockey player? Hull or Howe? He advised Howe was "the best all-time hockey player and had the edge on Hull as a team organizer."

At the elementary school he was greeted by Brian Pearson one of the younger students, who addressed Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy. He then led the students in three cheers for the Island hockey hero. KNEW HOCKEY FACTS
Gilbert Clements, chairman of the school board, spoke briefly and handled the question period in which the young students proved they knew their national hockey facts. Shelly Pepler presented a bouquet of red roses to Mrs. Kennedy on behalf of the Y's Men. Following the presentation Mrs. Elsie Watterworth, Mrs. Ralph Beck poured.

THIS WEEK AT SDU
A Time For Politicians; Campus Votes In Force
By CHARLEY McMILLAN
It was a week for the politicians. Conservatives, Liberals, radicals, extremists — they all had a chance to seek political office this week in what were called the hardest fought student elections in St. Dunstan's history. Now when better than 85 per cent of the students turn out to vote, there has to be a reason. One might say that we had been enjoying the fruits of an excellent administration, and that the candidates were ready to upset the apple cart. Either that, or we lacked an efficient administration, and the candidates were going to rectify the situation. Actually it was a mixture of both. This has been a year of change, of trial, and of seek-and-destroy. Starting out with a new constitution and the frightening title of Students' Union Inc., the council faced many pressing issues, and handled them with unprecedented efficiency. Unfortunately, there were at times cases of too much efficiency, and these led to cries of "What happened?" Also touchy situations arose that questioned the constitution, and indignant students challenged its validity. BOMB OF EMOTION
But for the most part, these were few and far between. As the year wore on, they were all but forgotten. The Coffee Shop became a reality; a Students' Union store was opened; a new system of rules and procedure was adopted. But the Winter Carnival went on the rocks. Certain societies were denied mon-to the bylaws, and criticize anybody who will listen. The hockey team was to play Sir George Williams seven hours later. For this meeting did not prevent several hundred students from jamming the gymnasium to see the issues discussed in the open. No one was disappointed. There were changes made in the constitution, most of which altered the powers of the executive, and provided a system of checks and balances. After a brief intermission for supper, everyone returned to see the meeting out. There was little evidence of outright rage or disturbance, but little also of moderation or compromise. The first chapter of the election campaign came to a close. BEATING GEORGIANS

A few hours after the meeting over the radio came the ebullient voice of Mike Hennessey with the play by play call of how the Saints were beating the Georgians and advancing to the Canadian finals. But the politicians worked behind the scenes still. The following day, Saturday, saw an excited campus waiting for the championship game to come on at 10 o'clock. Manitoba showed just too much power and won the title by dumping the Saints 9-2. The Saints gave it everything they had, and earned the respect of all Martimers for a wonderful showing. The weekend electrifying culminated with a Students' Union sponsored a first at SDU, a debate between the candidates. Each candidate was allowed five minutes for a speech with a 15 minute question and answer period following for each office. Although not run as efficiently as expected, the debaters did provide a needed forum for the issues. It was evident that many questions were planned, and this took something from the debates. Had each candidate been asked to answer the same questions this problem would have been alleviated. MANY ISSUES
What were the issues in the campaign? To some, they were the control of the executive, apathy among the students, even the efficiency of the council. More realistically, several candidates expressed a genuine concern for the Coffee Shop, the constitution, the Winter Carnival, amalgamation with PWC, the mail service on campus, the lack of bus service to the campus.

Alcoholism Authorities Plan Conference Here

Top Canadian authorities in the field of alcoholism research and treatment will be here next week for a two-day conference on alcohol education scheduled Tuesday was election day. The weather was mild and clear, just right for voting. After the biggest turnout in history registered their vote, the students waited for the results. They were announced at suppertime by Gerry Fitzgerald. For the two major offices, that of president and vice-president, Dave Morton and Herb Murphy went in with huge majorities. A star center on the football team, Dave was the former vice-president of the Union, and used a straight "promise to do my best" appeal for re-election. A native of Georgetown, Herb was class president of the freshman class last year, and brings to the office several years of council experience.

Also taking part in the several sessions will be RCMP Superintendent A. S. McNeil; Rev. H. Tye, Park Royal United Church; Rev. Walter Reid, chaplain of the Charlottetown Hospital; Sister Mary Henry, Catholic Welfare Bureau; P. McConnell, provincial mental hospital; Rev. Ross Howard, chaplain of Riverside and P.E.I. Hospitals; Rev. David MacDonald, Alberton; Eugene MacDonald, provincial director of child welfare; RCMP.

Nearly $2,000 Damage Done In Accident

SOURIS — Close to $2,000 damage was sustained by two vehicles which collided Wednesday in a cutting on the highway about a mile east of St. Peters. A 1963 model car driven by Edward William Stevenson of Souris sustained $1,000 and damage to a 1964 half-ton truck driven by John Everett Gallant of Nausfrage was estimated at $900. A passenger in the Stevenson vehicle, Gloria Dixon of Fortune, suffered a few cuts and provincial mental hospital; bruises. No injuries were reported suffered by the other occupants. The accident was investigated by Souris detachment of thevincial director of child welfare; RCMP.
