IF YOU FIND MISTAKES in this publication please consider that they are there for a purpose. We publish something for everyone, and some people are always looking for mistakes.

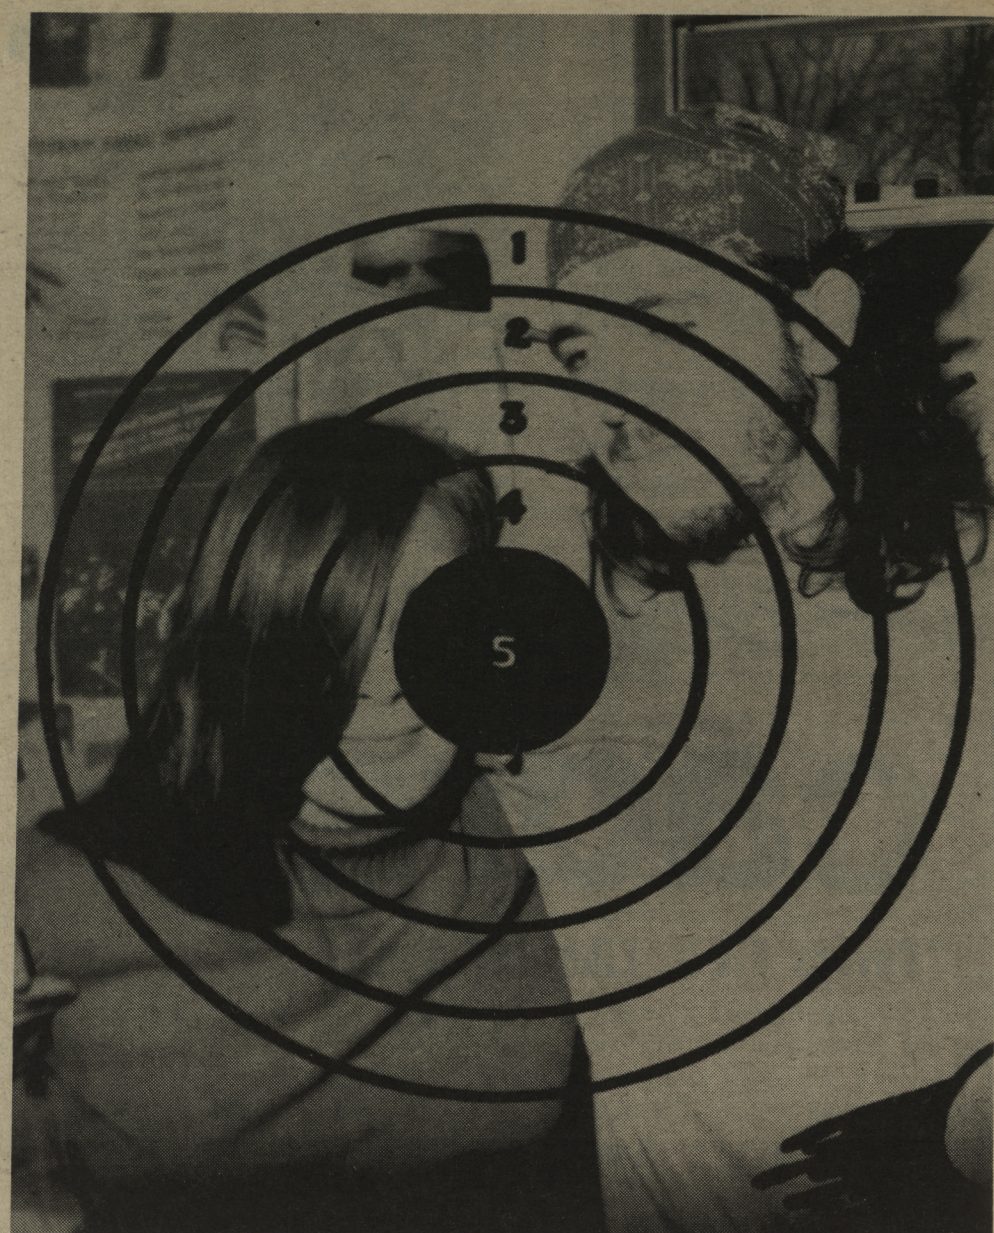

in editors... to all the changes in publishers...in staff...in the Student Union... to all the things that weren't printed that should have been... to the things that were printed that should not have been.. to all the letters that were written with pen names to fill up a page... to all those articles that weren't signed... to paranoid pictures... to five o'clockers where everyone was giddy and we threw in the first thing that came to mind... to all the arguments, teasing, and jokes...to Canadian University Press... to Dave McCurdy..the list could go on forever.

The three years and two years respectively that we have been working on the Cadre have been, to say the least, memorable.

What do you say when you say good-bye to something which is part of your life. A simple good-bye does not seem to suffice but it must. Take care--have a good summer --have a good life.

P.S. This edition was another five o'clocker.

Dear Mr. Editor:

On behalf of the Canada Manpower Centre on Campus, I would like to express our appreciation for the assistance you and your staff have provided us this year in communicating with the U.P.E.I. student population.

I would also like to acknowledge the excellent co-operation we received from Mr. Mike Hennessey and the staff of Radio Station CIMN.

We appreciate the assistance provided to this office by both of these student organizations.

Yours truly,
Joe Power

Dear Editor, I am not in the habit of writing letters to the Cadre but the events which are reported to have taken place March 27th so incensed me that I felt compelled to write.

The events of March 27th are outrageous. To think that a student was denied access to his own files! It is outrageous that teachers who naturally will have their own prejudices can impose their standards on the behavior of students in school and label them deviant, etc. while the student has no opportunity to express his viewpoint and defend himself if necessary. Is this the just society?

I don't think it is the right of teachers to comment on a student's political or behavioral aspects. They should only be allowed to comment on his marks.

In fact the very use of previous marks on file should be kept to a minimum since it can prejudice a teacher's view on a student tremendously. People can change and if they are labelled as "radical" or "a good student" the teacher's expectations follow suit.

A study was done which proved that point. A teacher was told by a psychologist after some tests were given to her pupils that certain students could be expected to do well with encouragement. In fact the pupils indicated were no different from the others. However, due to the teacher's expectations these particular students did show better achievement than the rest of the class. So much for labelling.

I also have two questions I would like to address to the registrar, Mr. Hennessey. (1) Who has access to a student's file? (2) And a hypothetical question: If it had been a professor who requested Scott Sinclair's file would he have been given the high school recommendations as a matter of course?

I have had second thoughts about signing my name to this letter. After all, perhaps I will be seen as a "radical" and this will be put on my record....

Sincerely,
Dorothy Hansen

To the University:

In concern with Monday March 31st, I am wondering where justification lies. As other students, professors and myself ventured through the usual routine of Monday classes, a number of drawbacks kept "popping up" throughout the day.

To begin with a number of offices and buildings (ie., Business office, Bookstore) were not open. I believed most people on campus do not even notice them sometimes except when they are closed, however this is not the whole issue.

Personally, a University can not be run effectively unless co-operation is held by all. With such people as secretaries, library staff, and administration members having an advanced 'holiday', many people are affected in one way or another. It causes a great inconvenience and annoyance to many Professors and students. I might add that the Dean of Art's Secretary was on hand as usual along with very few others.

This is where my question of justification comes forth, or is there any here at all? or, did most other Maritime Universities take an extra day for the fun of it?

No, it is not the above mentioned people I question but it is the mere principle of the situation I question. Not for the concern for UPEI. I propose if a Univer-
