DOROTHY DIX'S COLUMN

Lonely Woman

Lack Of Company Leads To Harmful Introspection

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman in my early thirties, plagued with just about every complex there is. To begin with, I'm a split-personality, half good, half bad. Sometimes I think the only answer is to join a church and bury myself in its work, then at other times I feel like going out and doing something really rash.

As a result, I'm a lonesome person and spend most of my time at home. Besides, where does an unmarried woman my age fit into the social life of a strange city? Although I'm considered attractive and dress well, my peculiar character, shyness and backward personality make me uncomfortable with others.

Recently I broke off with a boy I loved very much, but he was ten years younger than I. Do you think there could be true love between us?

ANSWER: You asked me not to print too much of your letter; in shortening it I hope I didn't leave out any problems, for you certainly have enough of them. You do give them in reverse order, though. I think the broken romance is responsible for more of your difficulty than anything else. You are, judging from your beautifully written letter, a very intelligent person, and shouldn't let things get you down as completely as they have.

YOU NEED COMPANIONSHIP You certainly need companionship, and outside work would also help to solve your difficulties. You have no more complexes than most folks, but unfortunately you have too much time alone to brood over your troubles. Get yourself into circulation, through church, civic affairs, voluntary hospital work, study groups—anything at all that will keep you busy and put you in contact with other people. Think of them more than you think of yourself.

DEAR MISS DIX: Six months ago, on the death of my father, a widower, I came to a big city from a small town. While at home, I had been going with a boy for sometime. When I came here I was being seen by other men, among them one special one to whom I was very much attracted. Last week, my home-town beau came to see me, and I told him frankly that I was interested in someone else. He told me he would be interested in me, but he now refuses to believe that I told my new friend of the visit and he now refuses to believe that I am seriously interested in him.

ANSWER: A man is certainly most unreasonable to fail to realize the justification of a girl seeing a former friend for the last time. This is jealousy and stubbornness carried to the nth degree. If he has given you, in this incident, a fair example of his character, I suggest that you consider well before continuing the friendship.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 22, and for the past four years have been going with Alan, whom I met in college. One of my parents approved of him, the other didn't. While waiting for the opposing parent's approval, I met Larry, who swept me off my feet. At first parent's approval, I met Larry, who swept me off my feet. At first parent's approval, I met Larry, who swept me off my feet.

DEAR MISS DIX: After ten years of separation, my husband has returned home. During the years he was away, I managed to support myself quite well. Since he returned, he refuses to work, expecting me to support him and do all the housework, besides. How can I get him to support him and do all the housework, besides. How can I get him to support him and do all the housework, besides.

For the Birthday Those whose birthday it is are likely to find their year opening on a sour note, with disturbances and distress as well as deceit and frustration, blighting all efforts and probably disappointing. Delays, conceptions, an undercurrent of malice are possible, as well as open ructions or recriminations, with little aid from elders. Find logical slants from queer factors. Shun extremes of thought and action, refrain from rancour. Then suddenly comes an illuminating flash to gloss over harm and to point a happier way. Such solace may come from a sentimental contact.

A child born on this day may have a hard row to hoe, with many difficulties and provocations to thwart and depress. However, its sociable, gay, pleasant and amiable glads.

The Stars Say - - By Genevieve Kemble For Tomorrow THE auguries are for a difficult and disturbing day, with nearly all the affairs subject to turmoil, confusion, treachery - on the whole, "Dead Sea Fruit." From all angles come connivance and sinister onslaughts, with a static and stubborn situation to nullify the best intentions and most arduous efforts. Be patient with elders, don't growl or bear resentment. Then as the hours wane comes a bright gleam, with all matters radiating a pleasant, joyous aura, heartwarming and glad.

That Body Of Yours

FOOTWEAR DISORDERS

I write frequently about the feet because, as mentioned before, men and women earn as much money with their feet as with their head. To have the feet in a healthy condition, free from pain and able to carry one about one's daily work or play, pays large dividends not only financially but in enjoyment of life.

From personal observation and from contact with orthopedic specialists and chiropodists, we learn that the trouble with most foot ailments is due to imperfectly fitted shoes.

Some of us may remember when shoes were made to fit the feet, when a man or woman was fitted for shoes, as he was and is now fitted for a suit of clothes. Today, notwithstanding that our shoe manufacturers are studying the foot needs of children and men and women, and shoes today answer many of the health requirements, the shoe customer wants his feet to look neat and buys shoes too small for him.

In the Canadian Chiropody Journal, Dr. E. S. Priestler, South Africa, outlines the Deficiencies of Normal Footwear, Inner Footwear and Outer Footwear. Deficiencies of inner footwear are (a) socks or stockings—nowhere are they made to the shape of the foot; (b) sensitivity - dyes, nylon; (c) due allowance for shrinkage not made; (d) the growing foot requires frequent changes of sizes.

Outer footwear: Too wrong construction of shoes will be readily understood when we consider the three shapes of feet, namely:

1. The first toe is the longest in about 85 per cent of the population. 2. The second toe is the longest (the so-called Ideal) in nearly 15 per cent of the population. 3. The third toe is the longest (the so-called "criminal type" because it has been found in people with a bad record of behavior) in a small proportion of the population.

Dr. Priestler points out that the majority of shoes are bought to suit the eye, not the feet. We, the public are most to blame because we know that the feet and shoes are noticed today as much as the hat.

Many parents forget that there is a rapid change in size in children's feet and even in the teenagers. While most parents may not be able financially to closely follow these changes, we should all know about them just the same.

Ages 2 to 6 years, size change in 4 to 8 weeks. Ages 6 to 10 years, sizes change in 8 to 12 weeks. Ages 10 to 12 years, sizes change in 12 to 16 weeks. Ages 12 to 15 years, sizes change in 16 to 20 weeks. Ages 15 to 20 years, sizes change in 6 months.

Islanders Present At 4-H Club Week In Toronto

Representing the cream of the crop of 4-H farm club members from coast to coast, 69 farm boys and 43 girls have converged on Toronto to attend the 22nd annual National 4-H Club week and to compete in livestock, poultry and grain judging events of the Royal Winter Fair, now underway in Toronto. Other projects in which delegates - selected from 68,706 members in 4,440 clubs across Canada—are active include home economics, field crops, tractor maintenance, farm forestry and others related to farm and home operations. While in Ontario, the representatives from nine provinces, including Prince Edward Islanders, June MacPhee, left, Thelma Willis and Bertie Robertson, will visit Hamilton, Niagara Falls, and Ottawa, where they lunched with Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture.

Morning Smile

That's Something The oldest inhabitant had just celebrated his birthday, and a local reporter was sent to interview him. "And tell me, what would you do if you could have your time over again?"

There was a long silence while the old man appeared to be deep in thought. "I think I would part my hair in the middle," he replied at last.
