Ottawa Builder Has New Plan To Aid Both Tenant And Owner

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Campeau, a leading Ottawa area builder and developer, has introduced a modified apartment ownership plan which he promises will make money for tenants as well as assure him of longer and fuller tenancy for his properties.

He calls it the Campeau Investor plan and its main advertised features are these:—A tenant puts up $250 in cash when he signs a 10-year contract and pays normal rent on a low-house "garden apartment" at a predetermined rate.

Each year, the investor pays the tenants a dividend of $14, or $140 over the life of the contract.

Called COMPROMISE, the Campeau Investor plan is described as a compromise between conventional lease terms, under which the tenant simply pays his rent and has no ownership interest in the property, and apartments which are fully owned by the occupants.

Each of the shares represents 1/242nd of the mortgage on the project, or approximately $5,900 plus $1,500 equity. The tenant buys $250 of the equity with his down payment. The balance is amortized on a 10-year basis with interest at six per cent.

Thus, after subscribing the initial $250 the tenant would pay $166 a year for 10 years. But here, another aspect of the investor plan comes into play. Campeau in effect pays a return of 12 per cent a year to the tenant on the total equity, or $180. The difference between the two—$14 a year—is actually paid over to the tenant.

Brutality is Charged In S. African Prisons

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The Johannesburg Sunday Times charged in a front-page story Sunday that electric-shock treatment is used to make prisoners talk and that there is widespread brutality in South African prisons.

It was the latest effort in an opposition campaign to force Premier Hendrik F. Verwoerd's white Nationalist government to hold a public inquiry into the management of South Africa's prisons.

One newspaper editor, Laurence Gandar of the Rand Daily Mail, already faces prosecution for publishing a three-part description of hardships and brutalities suffered by political prisoners.

Quoting a sworn affidavit and official reports by the head warden of a prison near Johannesburg, the Sunday Times said it has evidence of brutality, victimization, bribery and corruption. The newspaper said it held the report for two weeks of cross-checking before publishing.

Under the country's widening prison laws anyone publishing false statements about jail conditions is liable to heavy penalties.

Head Warden Johannes Andries Theron is quoted by the Sunday Times as saying: "I have seen electric-shock treatment being given prisoners as a punishment and in order to make them talk."

Theron also alleged misuse of convict labor on farms. South African farmers are allowed to hire forced convict labor for nominal wages.

Opposition members of Parliament have called for a judicial inquiry on the basis of allegations published by the anti-government Rand Daily Mail and the Sunday Times.

Earlier this month, security police raided the Mail's offices after it had published the first two parts of its expose, given them by a former white political prisoner. Senior police officers warned editor Gandar it would be in his interests not to publish the last article.

POLICE CRACK DOWN
Failure of motorists to observe the "no parking" regulation on the north side (Richmond Street) of Connaught Square has resulted in a stepped-up police program of prevention. Police Chief Sierns Webster said Saturday his force had orders to promptly ticket any cars found parked in the forbidden area as the rule was to be rigidly enforced.

ATTEND UCW SCHOOL
Mrs. Gordon MacDonald and Mrs. E. C. Howatt are among Island residents attending the annual school for United Church Women at Berwick, N.S., July 26 to 30. Mrs. MacDonald will be in charge of a program of religious drama and Mrs. Howatt is director of the school. The school is open to all women of the United Church in the Maritime and in Bermuda. It is the intention of Gulf Garden Foods Ltd., to start an on-the-job personnel training program and production schedule with a minimum of delay. Production will be geared to European markets for fish products and agricultural products, through the marketing facilities of Findus International of Switzerland, one of the largest food distribution companies in Europe.

Fish of almost all varieties will be processed by the plant and Baader Fish processing machinery providing fully automatic filleting of fish is on the floor and awaiting installation.

Fish will be filleted, canned, frozen in blocks and also packaged for individual and industrial consumers.

The frozen fish products will be transported to England by a refrigeration ship now under construction in England and from there distributed throughout Europe.

FROZEN DINNERS
Vegetable and other agricultural products will also be processed, such as French fried potatoes, spinach, brussels sprouts, broccoli and peas. It is intended to process complete frozen dinners.

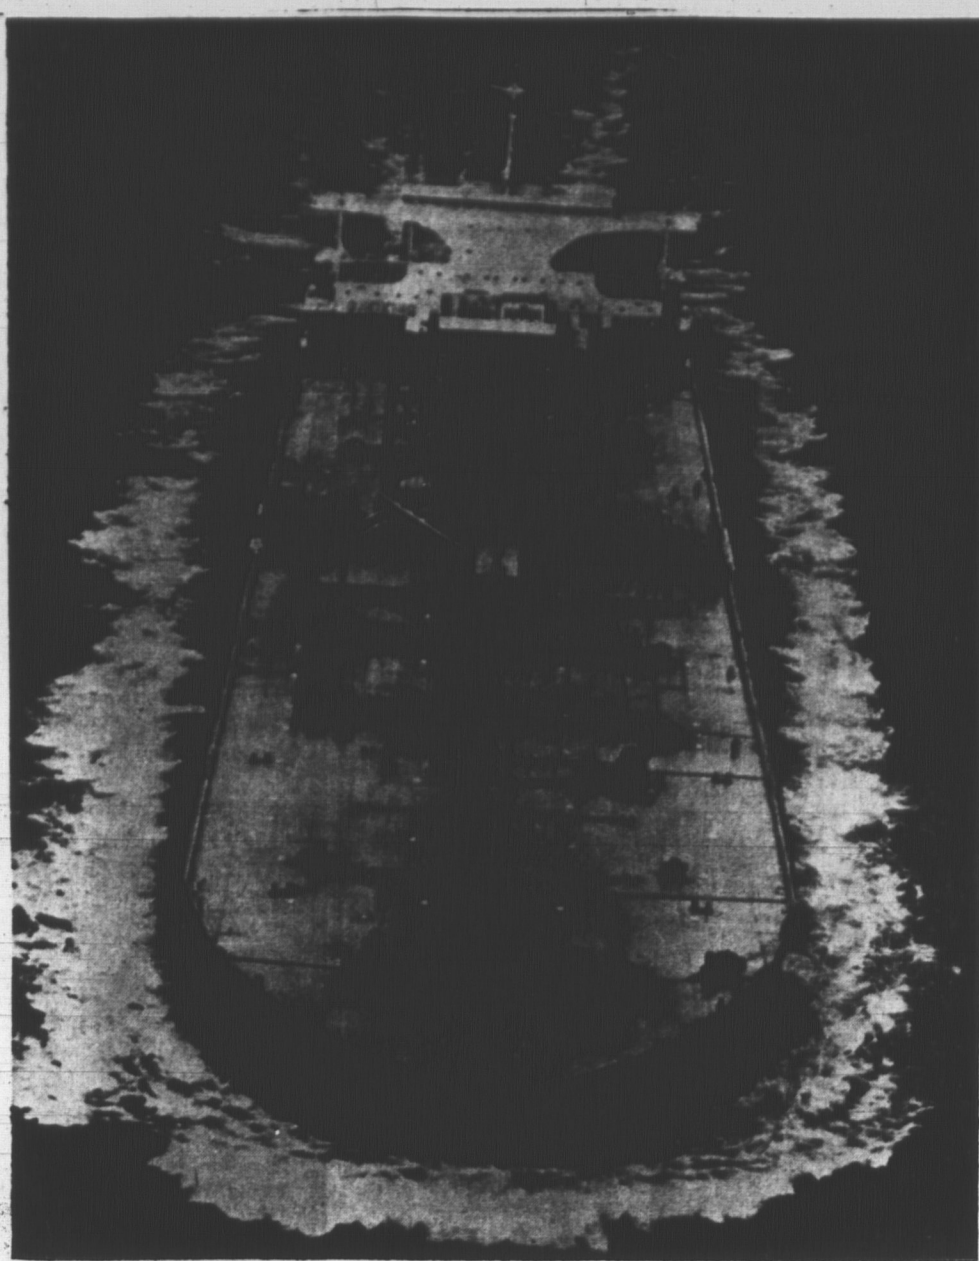

The processing of French fries and other agricultural products, some of which may be stock piled, will allow for around the year production.

Refrigeration machinery representing a large dollar value is in the course of being installed and will be in operation in late August. A fish meal plant, to be located in the near by service building will be in operation next year. It is hoped to have the plant in full production by late fall and by next summer with the possibility of two shifts of employees working the plant could reach an employment peak of close to 500 persons.

Marriage Rate In Province Shows Increase This Year

CAPITAL BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
OTTAWA — Marriage rate in Prince Edward Island is on the rise this year, the Dominion

Bureau of Statistics reports in a summary of vital statistics for the first six months of 1965. To the end of June there were 206 marriages on the Island compared to 171 for the same period last year. The figure is well ahead of the three year median of 189 for the province.

However, births show a decline from a total of 1,301 to 1,218. This is conformity with Canada-wide figures which show a drop of just over seven per cent from 1964. Some experts have said that a continued decline in births in Canada will take place as the result of wider use of birth control pills.

The Island's death rate is higher with 509 deaths reported in the first half compared to 462 in the corresponding period last year.

Net natural population gain for P.E.I. is 714 to the end of June.
