Police have cleared curious crowds from in front of Clarence House an hour before the statement was issued to the press.

Many of the bystanders refused to believe it when newspaper men told them the decision had happened.

Margaret's decision was given, in the first instance, to two accredited "court correspondents" and representatives of British news agencies. Within minutes it was flashed all over the world.

Britons who had followed the last hectic 18 days of the romance heard the news from TV and radio announcers breaking into regular programs.

Churchmen who had opposed marriage of Margaret and Townsley were quick to express relief at her decision.

"I thank God," said Rev. Douglas Lockart, an Edinburgh clergyman whose outspoken views have been given wide publicity.

Next Census May See Population At 16 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's census which starts next June 1 may well find this a country of 16,000,000 persons.

Experts at the bureau of statistics, which will conduct the census, have forecast that the 16,000,000 milestone will be reached at about that time. The house - by - house count to be carried out in the first half of June is expected to be almost exactly on the mark.

Next year's census is a departure from the traditional census, which in the past has been conducted in the first year of each decade. The 1951 census showed a population of 14,009,000.

Since 1951 the bureau has been making monthly population estimates based on births, deaths, immigration and emigration. Basis of present forecasts is the fact that in the last three years this estimate has risen annually by an almost constant 400,000—given or take a few thousand.

Annual estimates of crops and livestock are made through sample inquiries by mail.

The count in urban areas is expected to be completed in a week or 10 days in rural areas it will take about a week longer.

About 17,000 enumerators, the same size as the 1951 counting force, still are to be chosen and trained. Many of them will be housewives, students, pensioners and other part-time workers. They won't be trained until just before the census starts.

Report Many Americans Poor Despite Prosperity

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many Americans are still chronically poor despite general prosperity, a Congressional staff report said Sunday. It said this poverty endangers the future economic strength of the nation.

In general, the study pointed to the south, farms, and the non-white population as areas having a disproportionate share of poor folk. But there are depressed areas outside the south, and in cities as well as on the farm.

The report was written by the staff of the joint committee on the economic report, the major economic study group in Congress. It was prepared for a sub-committee, headed by Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.), which from Nov. 18 to 23 will hold hearings on the problems of poverty.

The report called it a "paradox of modern economic society" that there should be in "continuing existence, during periods of (generally) full employment, geographic pockets in which chronic unemployment and underemployment are excessively high."

It said that in 1950 the department of agriculture estimated there was a farm population of 5,100,000 in areas characterized by "serious low-income problems."

Of the 145 major labor market areas in the country, the report said, 23 were classified by the bureau of employment security as having a "substantial labor surplus" in September, 1955. In addition, there were 91 smaller areas with a substantial labor surplus defined as six per cent or more of unemployment.
