Neutralist Prince Stalls

His Installation As Premier

By ANTOINE YARED

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma arrived Monday with new demands that stalled his installation as premier of a coalition regime, a ceremony planned for Monday morning. Informants said he threatened a walkout unless a settlement is reached by Thursday.

They said Souvanna protested against allowing the national assembly, dominated by pro-Western deputies, to have even a minor voice in the coalition agreement.

Souvanna's demands were reportedly endorsed by his 20 brothers. Prince Souphavong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels, who has been named to a deputy premier role in the coalition.

Remaining behind in Pathet Lao territory, Souphavong denounced "American imperialism" and accused the United States of trying to wreck the coalition even before it could be installed.

Thus trouble again threatened this Asian action, which has known little but trouble since the French made it independent in 1949.

OBJECTED AFTER TRIP

Informants said Souvanna raised his unexpected objections after he and Souphavong made a flying trip Saturday to Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam. North Viet Nam has poured men and material into the Pathet Lao drive against the royal government.

Informants said Souvanna objected because King Savang Vatthana's decree of installation means the national assembly last Friday approved the coalition agreement. North Viet Nam has his half-brother recaptured the national assembly, which is dominated by the pro-Western faction of retiring Premier Prince Bou Oun.
